THE WORLD OF BUSINESS

STOCKS AND BONDS.

New York, April 27.--The general railway list was inclined to weakness this morning, the pressure being directed against the Grangers and the anthracite coalers. Delaware and Hudson fell 1 1/2 and Jersey Central 1/4. Subsequently they both rallied. In the closing hour of business, however, the Standard stocks occupied a subsidiary position, the professionals having taken up and advanced the Industrials and specialties. In the former group the rise was anywhere from 1/2 to 2 1/2 per cent. The Northern Pacific stocks and bonds were bought by firms with European connections. Speculations closed firm with prices anywhere from 1/2 to 3 per cent. higher on the day; the largest gains were in the Industrial and specialties. Total sales $11,000 shares.

INDUSTRIAL TOPICS.

Philadelphia Press: There has been considerable talk among the individual operators in regard to closing up their mines, one or two of them having done so, and it were not for the some all-knowing and timely news that they were not to be so fixed charges nearly all of them would follow suit. It is claimed by the individual operators that the price at which coal is now sold does not pay them for the mining of it; and notwithstanding this there is no disposition to make any advance. It is hoped by a number of these operators that the price will be advanced to such a point that something will have to be done to keep not only the coal operators but the railroad companies from bankruptcy, and to agree to the reading of the railroad bill will be a great loss to all concerned the sooner it is thought relief will be had.

"Holland," the New York correspondent, says: "A rapid computation of the aggregate losses of the coal carrying roads in the next year of probable warfare puts it as high as $20,000,000--so high, in fact, that with the exception of the Pennsylvania it is believed that these losses will make it impossible for any of these coal carrying roads to earn dividends. The sentiment, however, is that great as is the cost it is absolutely essential that the issue be met, and that there will, otherwise the cost would ultimately be still greater. Therefore it is not unlikely that tomorrow or within the next day or two, one of the greatest battles of the coal carrying roads will have been begun. The direct results of such a contest upon the roads themselves have been indicated. The indirect results it is very hard to estimate, but it is not an altogether unfortunate one. We were just beginning to think that the Wall Street barometer was indicating such revival of confidence as would be sufficient for any investments and important business undertakings. But with such a warfare as is now deemed probable, one which it is fairly admitted will involve some of the largest dividend payers probably to pass their dividends for the next year, the market may receive such a check as will affect business itself and thus the hope of returning prosperity be somewhat dimmed. The prospects for harmony in the anthracite coal trade, which were given something of a black eye by the refusal of certain railroad presidents on Tuesday to agree to the reading of the railroad bill for 21 per cent. of the total output, received another set-back Thursday when the sales agents of the big anthracite coal carrying and producing companies held a conference in the city of the Pennsylvania Coal company, in New York. It is supposed that most of them went to the meeting instructed by their presidents as to the course they should pursue in the matter of continued restrictions and the general conduct of the business in the future. The agents spent several hours in conference with the reading of the railroad bill, and then adjourned without action, to meet again at the same place on Tuesday next, at 11.30 a. m. The Reading railroad still adheres to its claim to 21 per cent. of the output, and the fact is gradually gaining recognition in the coal trade that either this proposition must be peaceably allowed to that company or the coal roads are likely to become involved in a war in which the solvent companies will suffer far more than the insolvent. As a move toward harmony President Power, of the New York, Ontario and Western railroad, has drawn up a plan of settlement, which he has submitted to President Harris, of the Reading, although it is not acceptable to the presidents of the important companies in New York. Mr. Fowler proposes that up to $10,000,000 tons the product shall be divided among the eleven companies according to last year's percentages. On the other hand, he proposed in excess of this amount the Reading is to be allowed enough to make up 21 per cent., and the balance is to be divided among the other companies by the award of arbitrators. An immediate advance in the price is also an essential element of this plan. Neither the Reading nor the other lines look upon this proposition with favor, and nothing is expected from it.

HALLSTEAD.

The funeral services of Mrs. N. D. B. Chase, formerly of this place, were held at her late home in Easton on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The remains were brought to this place on Wednesday for burial, which service took place immediately after their arrival on train No. 1 in the afternoon, and were borne by loving hands, the family being the bearers, to their last resting place in the family plot in the Easton Hill cemetery. Amid a profusion of the most beautiful flowers there were several sets of pieces of exquisite design. The services were conducted by the Rev. L. W. Church, of the Presbyterian church, and the choir rendered in an impressive manner "The Christian's Good Night." A large number of friends had assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed, showing the high esteem in which she was held. None knew her but to love her. She was a bright example of a Christian character, always looking on the bright side, and was a devoted wife and mother. The following are the friends from out of town: Edwin Wallace, Cincinnati, O.; George A. Chase and wife, Emmet Chase and wife, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Maria Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Sheak, Mrs. Hattie Butterfield, Mrs. Dr. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. George Loucks, all of Birmingham; Mrs. J. Cook, of Susquehanna; W. D. Link and Charles Van Wormer, of Montrose.
