WILKES-BARRE.

[The Tribune has opened a branch office at No. 29, Landing building, Public Square, Wilkes-Barre, for the transaction of business. The publishers propose to extend the circulation of The Tribune in Wilkes-Barre and the surrounding towns, and to that end will present a very complete department of Luzerne county news. For success in this undertaking dependence is placed solely upon the superiority of The Tribune as a purveyor of all the news of the day—domestic, foreign, local, commercial and financial. The general interests of the people of Wilkes-Barre and the Wyoming valley will have in The Tribune an earnest advocate, editorially and otherwise. It is the purpose of the publishers to issue a newspaper as valuable to the general public as the metropolitan dailles, and deliver it to the people throushout northeastern Pennsylvania from three to five hours earlier than the Philadslphia and New York papers can reach them].

NEW COUNTY TALK.

Hazletonians Declare They Will Continue the Fight from Year to Year.

number of prominent citizens of talked freely as well as emphatically about the defeat of the Quay county bill on Tuesday. They are sorely dis-appointed but not wholly dismayed. "We have sustained a reverse, but we are not yet beaten," remarked one. Said another: "We have not yet been knocked out as often as the Lackawanna people were. They made fight after fight and met reverse after reverse, but they won finally, and so will we. We can afford to weit, our time will come finally. The selfishness of the people yet there is not even the element of common sense in their selfishness. The separation of Lackawanna county proved to be no detriment whatever to Vilkes-Barre and what was left of old Luzerne, and it was an incalculable benefit to the people of Scranton and Lackawanna county. The erection of Quay county would prove equally bene-ficial to the people of the lower end and would not injuriously affect Wilkes-Barre and what remained of Luzerne. Yes, we shall keep up thi battle for a new county at every session of the legislature until we are successful. The interests of the people of the lower end must be considered and some day we will have a legislature composed of men who will be swayed by the spirit of justice." The people of Wilkes-Barre naturally take a different view of the matter and will battle valiantly against any further dismemberment of the county of whose grand proportions, great wealth Hamburg, 1b and large population they are so proud. The people of Hazleton cherish the idea that the erection of the proposed new county would give the town a tremendous boom and that it would speedily develop into a second city of

One of yesterday's visitors from Hazleton took a somewhat different view of the situation of it. Said he: "If the worst comes to the worst, I shall be in favor of seeking annexation glad enough to take us in, and if we can't get away from Wilkes-Barre in any other way I shall favor annexation to little Carbon, and perhaps we may some day be able to remove the county eeat from Mauch Chunk to Hazleton. But for at least ten years more we shall keep up the fight for a new

It may be doubted if there is another city of 40,000 people in the state that has larger banking facilities than Wilkes-Barre, or one whose banking institutions average a greater measure of prosperity. There are eight banks in Wilkes-Barre—three national and five state banks. The combined capital stock of these institutions is $1,825,000 and they have a surplus of $1,382,600 aggregating in capital and surplus the Incorporated banks here, but one after the other either failed or wound up its affairs and disappeared. The Rockafellow bank was the last of the lot and ended the most disastrously. The Wyoming Valley Trust company is the newest of the banking institutions of the city, having been organized after the Rockafellow failure and now occupies the same building. Two of the banks have a surplus greater than their capital stock, viz: the Miners' Savings Hazleton were in town yesterday and bank and the Wyoming National. Each has a capital of $150,000, and the first named has a surplus of $300,000 and the latter of $260,000. There is not today a weak bank in Wilkes-Barre and all of them are constantly growing stronger.

When tell you, however, that in answer to the prayer of this woman the decrepit mother was restored to activity, and the senses which had been numbed for years had renewed their youth, that Miss Jordan, hopelessly dying of consumption, was lifted from her bed of suffering and is now an active teache among the freed men of the south, well and strong and happy in her new life, I find myself constrained to the confession that, so far as I know, science applies no explanation of this phenomenon, and one seems to hear satisfactory arrangements with Mr. the voice which said: 'Be still and Stephens for the old ball grounds.
