OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Charles House, one of the bright young men who keep tabs on the city inances in the office of City Controlle Widmayer, is a firm and enthusiastic advocate of enforcing the ordinance against allowing wagens to stand on the public streets. Until Tuesday Mr. House was not particularly interested in keeping the city's thoroughfares free from obstructions and the change was brought about in this way. Mr. House the replevin suit of W. E. Arnout is a bicycle rider and Tuesday night he was speeding cityward from Green Ridge on his steel steed. He dashed along Capouse avenue unmindful of danger until he reached New street. where he collided with the wagon of Herman Hagen, which was standing in the street. On the instant Charles alighted, after describing a circle through the air. Foreible contact with the pavement injured his shoulder camaged one of his eyes and left him with a large collection of bruises. Th blcycle also suffered in the fray.

Warden James Boland, of the Luzerne county prison, at Wilkes-Barre, was the guest of his brother, C. G. Boland, in this city, yesterday. Mr. Boland is a Scrantonian who straved to Wilkes. Barre several years ago and concluded to stay there. He quickly won for him self a conspicuous place in business and political circles of Luzerne and is now one of the most prominent men in the parent county.

Ex-Congressman E. J. Jordan, of Tunkhannock, was in the city yester day and called on many of his friends. Mr. Jordan was ele .ed to fill the unexpired term of the ate Myron Wright of Susquehanna, .rom the Fifteenth district. He served about three weeks this spring and earned for himself a place in history as an ex-congressman of the famous Fifteenth

Mr. and Mrs. Reese are young people, well known and possess-ing a large measure of respect and esteem. Mr. Reeze is an accomplished cornet player in Bauer's orchestra, and his bride was confidential clerk for Alderman Liewellyn Roberts in the North End. They will be tendered a reception by their

CHILD'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Corpse Found in the Cot by Stricken Parents.

When Mrs. Reese Price, of Prospect avenue, went to the cot yesterday morning where her 5-year-old son, David, had been sleeping, she was horrified to find him cold and rigid in death. The little fellow was put to sleep the vening before in good health. During the night no sounds came from the cot that would indicate a sudden attack of liness, and the position of the body did not signify that the last movements of the boy had been painful.

He was affected with epilepsy and subject to attacks of fits and probably well-worn Bible, while a woman of middied of suffocation while struggling in one of these spasms.

Undertaker G. A. Miller, of Cedar ivenue, was sent for to prepare the oody for the funeral and he advised the arents to notify the coroner, which ons done. After Coroner Kelley beame acquainted with the history of the ase he decided that an inquest would e unnecessary. The funeral will take clace tomorrow afternoon, and internent will be made in Washburn Street cemetery.

DECIDED AGAINST ARNOUT

lle Lost His Replevin Suit Against Conetable Miller and Leab Iones-Davis. The report of Arbitrators James W McDonald, R. H. Holgate and B. F Ackerly was filed in Prothonotary Pryor's office yesterday, and the award was rendered against the plaintiff in against Leah Jones-Davis and Constable J. S. Miller, of the Ninth ward. Several months ago the dining room furniture and appurtenances of Mr Arnout were selzed and sold on a landlord's warrant by Constable Miller at the instance of Mrs. Davis. Arnout sub-rented the basement from her of the building on Wyoming avenue adjoining the Hetel Jermyn.

The selzure was made on a claim of $230 of arrearage in the rent. Arnout replevined the things taken in charge and sold by Constable Miller, and the case was submitted to the fore going attorneys for arbitration. Their award not only was in favor of the defendants, but also a subsidiary award of damages was made in favor of the defendants in the sum of $10 for detention of the property.

Large Number of Visitors Entertained at the Hillside Home.

THE INMATES WELL CARED FOR

of Directors Approved-Super intendent Beemer Complimented on His Work-Inspection of New Wing for Female Inmates.

By invitations of the poor directors large number of citizens visited the Hillside home yesterday, and passed many hours inspecting the new. cellently equipped and well-appointed buildings. The majority accompanied the poor directors by the 9 a. m. Delaware Lackawanna and Western train, and others followed by the 11.10 a. m. train, while a string of vehicles brought scores of visitors during the morning. President Langstaff and his colleagues were assiduous in their attentions to the visitors. The visitors were unstinting in their praise of the clean-liness and neat order which prevailed in every branch, and complimented Superintendent and Mrs. Beemer.

The visitors were received at the front entrance of the main building and after a visit to the cloak room. were shown the private apartments of the Superintendent and Resident Physidan Evans, on the first floor. Passing through the spacious dining room and kitchen, the visitors were ushered into the recreation corridor of the female insane department.

One Read the Bible, Other Danced. Here a very impressive scene was itnessed, where the ridiculous and sad features of life were absurdly mixed One of the inmates, a lady of evident good birth and breeding, sat reading a dle age waltzed by as if in a ball room. An air of happiness, however, seemed to be attached to the majority of the inmates, but the unutterable sadness of a few afforded a fair criterion to the troubles through which they had passed.

After a few minutes' inspection the visitors moved from the sad spectacle to view the snug rooms of the attendants, each of which contained a personal library, the contents of which proved the good quality of the reading ndulged in during the leisure hours. Recrossing the main hall, a visit was paid to the men's corridor, where a number of male patients were assembled in knots discussing the un-usual number of visitors. A few of the ien recognized some of the visitors and eagerly discussed various incidents which occurred years ago. Their memtentive and ready than that of the visitors. The eagerness with which they conversed of old times was deeply interesting, and their regret when they heard of the deaths of old friends seemed profound. The visitors were then shown the fire scape ladders and the other accessories after which they adjourned to the reand horsemen. Indeed they do things cently completed wing for the accommo dation of the pauper females. The building is constructed in the most substan tial manner conceivable and is of fireproof design throughout. #### Impressive Incidents of the Day.

Two incidents made a deep impression on the visitors. In one end of the building an aged couple occupied their husband is constant in his attention, and devotes the remainder of his time to attending to fifty plants which are set in the room. The old couple have all the comforts of a home, without the responsibility of earning a livelihood, and are happy in the assurance of spending their declining years in comfort together. From this room President Langstaff invited the visitors to see "his babies," who were under the charge of an elder ly inmate in the nursery. This depart ment spoke volumes of the tender care shown by those in authority. lady visitors were charmed by the picture of combined innocence and happiness in the cribs, and lingered long is the room. All kinds of sewing, knitting, etc., ar done by the inmates and samples of the work was shown. In turn the conservatories, men's wards, kitchens, store rooms, creamery and other numerous departments were visited. A welcome call to dinner was obeyed with alacrity by the guests, when the sharpened appetites did ample justice to the substantial meal provided.
