WILKES-BARRE.

[The Tribune has opened a branch office at No. 29, Lanning building, Public Square, Wilkes-Barre for the transaction of business. The publishers propose to extend the circulation of The Tribune in Wilkes-Barre and the surrounding towns, and to that end will present a very complete department of Luzerne county news. For success in this undertaking dependence is placed solely upon the superiority of The Tribune as a purveyor of all the news of the day—domestic, foreign, local, commercial and financial. The general interests of the people of Wilkes-Barre and the Wyoming valley will have in The Tribune an earnest advocate, editorially and otherwise. It is the purpose of the publishers to issue a newspaper as valuable to the general public as the metropolitan dailies, and deliver it to the people throughout northeastern Pennsylvania from three to five hours earlier than the Philadelphia and New York papers can reach them].

The detectives who worked up this case seem to have depended largely on securing confessions from the prisoners as a means of convicting them. It was an unusually difficult case to unravel, and it is a question whether the jury will attach the expected importance to the alleged confessions made to the detectives. It is evident that upon this is supposed to be that of the man who will hinge the verdict. The Wilkes-Barre Club Gets Away with Syracuse by Six to Two.

Wilkes-Barre won its t'ird straight esterday before over 1,500 spectators. Campfield, though troubled with a sore arm, pitched a good game and kept the hit by a pitched ball; reached first on an error, and Griffin and Power each singled, bringing in two runs. The feature of the game two catches of difficult foul flies by-Hess. Wilkes-Barre scored first in the third inning. McMahan singled and went to second on Campfield's fly to Simon. Lytle singled and Shannon same, allowing both McMahon and Lytle to cross the plate. Shannon tried to seach second base, but was put out, closing the inning. In the fourth a three-bayger by Earl and a by Diggins yielded another run; and in the sixth the remaining three runs were scored. In this inning Betts singled, going second and third on long flies of Lezotte and Earl to Simon and Griffin respectively. Diggins got to first on an error, and Smith and Mc-Mahon each got doubles, scoring the three runs. No more runs were made. The score: WILKES-BARRE.

FAIR PLAY FOR OLEO.

From the Philadelphia Record. Good oleomargarine cannot be differ-entiated from good butter either by the ense of sight or smell or taste. Good oled margarine is as much better than poor butter as good butter is better than sons grease. These are facts which the legis hature cannot repeal. It is folly, and worse than folly, to fight against new chemical or mechanical discoveries which enable men to improve and increase the means of living and to turn waste subtances to use and profit.

It is right enough, and proper enough, to make regulations forbidding the sale of eleomargarine as butter. It is not butter; and to sell it for butter is a fraud. Those who buy butter should get it. But oleomargarine is a wholesome and wal-atable substitute for butter, and it is an outrage to either interdict its sale or its manufacture. There is neither ordinary business sagacty nor good moyals in the legislation which keeps out of Pennsyl-vania a wholesome food product, and rears up among us a peskilent brood of spies and informers.

The Lehigh Valley ticket office seem to be a favorite place for robbers to attack. Wednesday evening train No. 29, east bound, due at the Junction at 9.45, was ten minutes late. Oscar Gru ver, who acts as night agent, locked the ticket office and went out to attend to the baggage and mail. After putting them in the upper office, he came out caped any broken bones, but sustained upon the platform again and saw a man standing at the door of the waiting room on the lower platform. Gruver's suspicions were aroused and he went down. As he did so the fellow called to his companions inside and three men came running out. Gruver seized one of the fellows but one of the others felled him with a blow in the ribs, causing him to let go his hold. Humboldt, Kan., May 2.—The fossil skeleton of what is supposed to be a large extinct sea unimal was recently discovered by a settler in the Chero kee strip while searching along the banks of the Arkansas river for drift wood. The beak or bill was projecting through the sand. On breaking, it was found to be bone, which aroused the finder's curiosity to the extent that he set to work to exhume it. The beak or bill, the skull, a few verterbrae some ribs and propellers were in a fall state to reversation, but the remainder crum to soon as exposed to the air. The coverer stored his find in a shed, and did not attach much importance to it.
