ELECTION OF OFFICERS
John M. Hornbaker, of Scranton, Elected Vice-Councillor.
REVISION OF CONSTITUTION
Large Number of Amendments Discussed. State Divided Into Three Districts. Delegates Accept an Invitation From the Moscow Council.

JOHN M. HORNBAKER, Vice-Councillor.

The second day's session of the Senior Order of United American Mechanics opened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
State councillor, Howard H. Holstein, No. 25, Harrisburg; state vice-councillor, John M. Hornbaker, No. 35, Madisonville; state secretary, Walter Graham, No. 109, Philadelphia; state county treasurer, Charles H. Kurtz, No. 26, Philadelphia; state county instructor, M. E. Davis, No. 394, Bradford; state county examiner, J. T. Fiegle, No. 57, Duncannon; state council protector, J. M. Atchison, No. 326, Cool Spring; national representative, Dr. R. A. Walker, No. 378, West Monticeny.
After some discussion as to the place of holding the 1896 state convention, the honor was finally allotted to Chambersburg.
The council thereupon proceeded to consider a number of amendments of the constitution, and by-law. The state councillor in his report suggested the following amendment:
Amendment to Constitution.
"Strike out section 2 of Article II of by-laws of State council and insert a new article as follows: 'On the regular election night for officers in the month of December of each year, each county in any county of the state shall elect three delegates to a meeting to be called by the council in each county at such time and place as may be designated by the state councillor, during the month of April, at which meeting they shall elect a deputy for that county. Said deputy must be an ex-councillor in good standing. He shall have power to appoint as many assistants as he may find necessary to aid him in installing the officers of the various councils, but who shall exercise no official powers of a deputy.' All deputies elected shall be governed by Article VII of State council by-laws."
As the constitution and by-laws can be revised but one in each five years, the number of amendments which have since 1890 formed a great task, amended placed before the delegates yesterday. Each amendment was discussed at some length, and although considerable progress had been made, when the session adjourned at 5:30 o'clock last night.
The delegates accepted an invitation from the Moscow council to pay them a visit last evening, and the majority left on the Delaware Lackawanna and Western 6:10 p. m. train. A closed session was held in the spacious room of the Moscow council, when an address of welcome was delivered on behalf of the local council, and was replied to by the state councillor, Johnson, State Councillor Holstein and State Organizer A. B. Saybolt. An excellent supper was served, after which a pleasant evening was spent, the delegates reaching Scranton at 1:30 o'clock this morning.
Notes of the Convention.
John M. Hornbaker, the newly-elected state councillor, was warmly congratulated upon his election. The great majority accorded Mr. Hornbaker shows that the nomination made by the Scranton council was an excellent one, and that they had selected the best man for candidate for the important position of state vice-councillor. Mr. Hornbaker is a carpenter, employed by Contractor Moir, and has been an active member of several secret societies in the city for some years. His residence is in Madison township, where he spends the week end, and all his leisure hours of evenings he devotes to the furtherance of the interests of the Mechanics' councils and other benevolent associations.
The board of officers have passed a resolution dividing the state into three districts. The member of the board residing in the eastern portion to be the member residing in the central section; and the western portion to be under the direction of the member residing in the western section.
The eastern portion to consist of the following counties: Bradford, Susquehanna, Perry, Sullivan, Wyoming.

Wayne, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Columbia, Pike, Monroe, Schuylkill, Carbon, Northampton, Lehigh, Bucks, Montgomery, Berks, Philadelphia, Chester and Delaware.
The central portion to consist of Tioga, Potter, Clinton, Lycoming, Monroe, Northumberland, Union, Centre, Huntington, Blair, Mifflin, Snyder, Juniata, Bedford, Fulton, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster, York, Franklin and Adams counties.
The western portion to consist of Erie, Warren, Mercer, Crawford, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Elk, Cameron, Clarion, Jefferson, Clearfield, Lawrence, Butler, Armstrong, Beaver, Allegheny, Indiana, Cambria, Westmoreland, Washington, Somerset, Green and Fayette counties.
The council met this morning at 9 o'clock, and will proceed to consider the amendments to the constitution and by-laws. The reports of committees will also be submitted.

BUFFALO BILL'S CAREER.

Valuable Services That He Has Rendered to the Government.
"Buffalo Bill," or to give him his proper name and title, William F. Cody, deserves recognition at the hands of his countrymen, not only because he has been a successful entertainer and has afforded a vast amount of instruction through the valuable object lesson imparted by his reproductions of wild life, but because he has demonstrated that he sets duty and patriotism above all other considerations.
In 1876, he received a letter from General B. A. Carr, informing him of a certain amount of money, arranged for a substitute to complete his role in the play, finally packed a valise, caught the first train leaving the city, and speeded onward to the front. This fact is attested by Captain Price, Captain Buell, and others, in books, newspapers and other publications. The services he has rendered under General Carr at that time need not now be recounted. They are matters of history which will ever remain to his credit.
Again the remarkable "Ghost Dance" craze among the Sioux, and at that time he was in Germany. General Schofield and Miles, and other military leaders, familiar with the moods of the redskins, knew that the time was ripe for most energetic measures. Colonel Forsyth was at that time in Alsace-Lorraine with a band of a hundred Indians, who were in a state of continual ferment by the news that they received from time to time of the feeling among their red-brother in this country, and Cody realized the situation, and felt that he could do both his countrymen and the warlike savages some service, and possibly pacificate the dangerous malcontents. Without hesitation, and at a heavy expense to his partner Saluberry and himself, he closed his entertainment and put the entire outfit into camp for the winter at Benfield, near the city of Strasburg, taking with him Major Burke and the band of discontented Indian warriors, and went on his mission of peace; he crossed the Atlantic and landed in New York, prepared to risk anything, and to throw himself to the forefront of war if need be. Sending Major Burke on through Washington, Pine Ridge, he journeyed to Chicago and was there entrusted by General Miles with the mission to Sitting Bull. He started from Chicago and went westward to Standing Rock, via Elmencok, but before he could put into operation his plans for a general amnesty of the troubles, his mission was annulled by orders from high quarters, prompted by mistaken philanthropists, and the episode ended in the death of Sitting Bull. Soon after he was appointed assistant general of the frontier militia on the staff of Governor Colby, of Nebraska, and went to the assistance of General Miles, as volunteer and scout.
With such a record, the world-wide popularity of Buffalo Bill is not to be wondered at.
The Wild West will exhibit at Scranton Saturday, May 11, at the Driving park.

A Relic of the Visit of Commodore Slingerly to this City.
PIPERS NOW WANT THEIR PAY
Daughter of James Forrester Injured in Peculiar Manner—Distribution of Certificates—John Connolly Injured at the South Works—Other Notes.
Constable John C. Moran, of the Twelfth ward, has a summons for Charles G. Rosar, of Cedar avenue, who Alderman C. C. Donovan issued at the instance of the members of the Germania band. A history of the case is this: When the Democratic hosts of Scranton were making preparation for the blazing reception that was paid to Commodore William M. Slingerly, ex-candidate on the Democratic ticket for governor of Pennsylvania, on his visit to this city during the last campaign, Mr. Rosar, it is alleged, hired the Germania band to play in the parade. The band played, but the 33 that they figured on for their services has not since materialized. The county committee went into involuntary after the available toll on the floor and her nose struck against a large spool, or silk bobbin, on the floor. Dr. Manley was called and he found the child's nose broken and the face lacerated. He advised to administer ether and to sew up the wound, which it required three stitches to do. It was not certain just then whether the child would live, but Dr. Manley believes she will recover.

CHILD'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin P. Flynn, of Vine Street.

The funeral will occur this morning and the remains will be brought to Carbondale on the 9 a. m. Delaware and Hudson train. The remains will be taken from the parents' residence, 420 Vine street, at 8:30.
The reason of such a hurried funeral is because the illness was scarlet fever.

BUFFALO BILL'S CAREER.

Valuable Services That He Has Rendered to the Government.
"Buffalo Bill," or to give him his proper name and title, William F. Cody, deserves recognition at the hands of his countrymen, not only because he has been a successful entertainer and has afforded a vast amount of instruction through the valuable object lesson imparted by his reproductions of wild life, but because he has demonstrated that he sets duty and patriotism above all other considerations.
In 1876, he received a letter from General B. A. Carr, informing him of a certain amount of money, arranged for a substitute to complete his role in the play, finally packed a valise, caught the first train leaving the city, and speeded onward to the front. This fact is attested by Captain Price, Captain Buell, and others, in books, newspapers and other publications. The services he has rendered under General Carr at that time need not now be recounted. They are matters of history which will ever remain to his credit.
Again the remarkable "Ghost Dance" craze among the Sioux, and at that time he was in Germany. General Schofield and Miles, and other military leaders, familiar with the moods of the redskins, knew that the time was ripe for most energetic measures. Colonel Forsyth was at that time in Alsace-Lorraine with a band of a hundred Indians, who were in a state of continual ferment by the news that they received from time to time of the feeling among their red-brother in this country, and Cody realized the situation, and felt that he could do both his countrymen and the warlike savages some service, and possibly pacificate the dangerous malcontents. Without hesitation, and at a heavy expense to his partner Saluberry and himself, he closed his entertainment and put the entire outfit into camp for the winter at Benfield, near the city of Strasburg, taking with him Major Burke and the band of discontented Indian warriors, and went on his mission of peace; he crossed the Atlantic and landed in New York, prepared to risk anything, and to throw himself to the forefront of war if need be. Sending Major Burke on through Washington, Pine Ridge, he journeyed to Chicago and was there entrusted by General Miles with the mission to Sitting Bull. He started from Chicago and went westward to Standing Rock, via Elmencok, but before he could put into operation his plans for a general amnesty of the troubles, his mission was annulled by orders from high quarters, prompted by mistaken philanthropists, and the episode ended in the death of Sitting Bull. Soon after he was appointed assistant general of the frontier militia on the staff of Governor Colby, of Nebraska, and went to the assistance of General Miles, as volunteer and scout.
With such a record, the world-wide popularity of Buffalo Bill is not to be wondered at.
The Wild West will exhibit at Scranton Saturday, May 11, at the Driving park.

CHILD'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin P. Flynn, of Vine Street.
William, the 5-year-old son of Martin P. Flynn, of the firm of Short & Flynn, died at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. The child had been ill slightly since Monday and his death was totally unexpected.

The reason of such a hurried funeral is because the illness was scarlet fever.
