

"Well, he saw me at a little distance off-I was behind there, at one of the desks-and raised his hand to me and said: 'How d'ye do?' I came across and took his bills and dealt with them in the usual way. He had a new umbrella lying on the counter-rather a handsome umbrella-and I made a remark about the handle. He took it up to show me, and told me it was a present he had just received from a friend. It was a gorse root handle with two silver bands, one with his monogram, C. W. L. I said it was a very nice handle, and asked him whether it was fine in his district on Sunday. He said he had been up the river, and it was very fine there. And I think that was all."

"Thank you. Now about this umbrella. Did he carry it rolled? Can you describe it in detail?"
. "Well, I've told you about the handle and the rest was much as usual, I think; it wasn't rolled-just flapping loosely, you know. It was rather an odd-shaped handle, though. I'll try and sketch it if you like, as well as I can remember." He did so, and Hewitt near the end, and another, with the handle. Hewitt put the sketch in his by here?" pocket and bade the cashier good day.

does not want it-about the stomach and hips. When one begins to lose flesh-and this can be ascertained by being weighed every week-a little massage will be found a great help. The masseuse, if she untierstands her business, will soon be able to tell where the superfluous flesh is, and will direct her energies to the particular place or places. Of course, massage is an expensive luxury, but it is not a thing that needs to be continued, and a few iours will often word a wondrous change. For instance, one hour three times a week for a fortnight has been nown to reduce the size of the waist half an inch. Standing erect with the hands pressed well down on the hips, and then, with the hands still kept on the hips, bending the body forward, backward and sideways several times, wice a day, will also work off accumu lafed fat about the hips and stomach But this exercise must be conscientiousy perservered in-

TREES THAT GIVE MILK.

Recently Discovered in South America by a Noted Traveler. Dr. Spruce, the renowned South American traveler, mentions a tree, a member of the dogbane family, the juice of which is used as milk. On the bark being wounded the milk flows abundantly, and is of the consistency of cow's milk, and of the purest white and sweet to the taste. The Indian mode of taking it is to apply the mouth directly to the wound, and thus receive the milk as it flows. Dr. Spruce says he has often partaken of it with out experiencing any Ill effects. In Guiana the natives employ the milk from a tree belonging to the same family as the last named; in the veracular, it is known as hyahya, and to botanists as Tabernaemontana utilis so named after Jacobus Theodorus Tabernaemontanus, a German physi-cian and botanist). The milk has the same flavor as sweet cow's milk, but is rather sticky, on account of its con-taining some caoutchouc. In Para a lofty tree, belonging to the star apple family, attaining a height of 100 feet, is used in a similar manner to the others mentioned. Incisions are made in the bark, and the milky juice flows out copiously about the consistence of cream, and if it were not for its taste, which is somewhat peculiar, could hardly be distinguished from it

Tey sat in the twilight and spoke softly.

"Edward," she observed, "you seem to have grown more introspective."

He laughed, but his laugh gave no token of that which he was about to say.

"Yes," he replied, "Yes, hy darling. Since you have been doing your own cooking, my attention has been much attracted in that direction."
