COAL TRAIN DERAILED.

Wreek on the Delaware and Hudson Near Carbondale Yesterday Morning-No Life Was Lost.

Section men were repairing the northound Delaware and Hudson railroad track about three miles south of Carbondale yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, when a coal train of eighteen empty cars, drawn by engine No. 69, Engineer Edward Smith at the throttle, olled along. The track had been raised for some distance with jacks, and as the coal train was going slow here was no danger of a derailment eared.

But the rails spread when the engine and five cars had ran onto the part that was being repaired. The engine first left the track and plunged along the ties, tearing up the track with it. The eight cars next to the engine broke ose and rolled down the five-foot embankment along the southbound track. Four hundred feet of the track were orn up before the engine came to a standstill. The wreck occurred above Mayfield, midway between the Erie breaker and Lee's crossing. The speed of the coal train would hardly be expected to result in the tearing up of so much of the northbound track. The passenger train that leaves Carbondale The teachers of the Scranton public at 12.40 was delayed forty minutes and upon Mr. Wagner and Mr. Lansing, of layed only ten minutes.
