Bonkrupt Last December.

PLAN ON WHICH THEY WORKED

On the sign board at the entrance t the Raub building on Spruce street is a modest tin sign which contains these words, "Industry Savings and Life Insurance Company, W. J. McIntyre, local secretary." Within the building McIn tyre has an equally modest office, which has been visited by a large number of persons during the week. Some were anxious to pay him money, others were much more anxious to learn something concerning money that they have been paying him for months past. Very few of these callers were able to even catch a glimpse of McIntyre. He called occasionally for his mail, but remained only a few minutes, and even his landlord, to whom he is indebted for two months' rent, saw him only at

To add to his troubles McIntyre wa arrested on a warrant issued by Alderman Fuller, at the instance of Chris tian W. Coleman, of Linden street, who charges him and a confederate named J. F. Harris with conspiracy and obtaining money under false pretences. McIntyre was arrested by Patrolman Moir and given a hearing, at which Alderman Fuller held him in $500 ball for his appearance at court. He was unable to furnish ball but after spending a night in the station house in duced Harry Wickham, of Birch street South Side, to become his bondsman, and was thereupon released. His home is at 533 East Market street. Harris Has Disappeared.

J. F. Harris, who appears to be Mc Intyre's superior officer in the alleged fraudulent transactions they have been carrying on succeeded in cluding the officers and left for Philadelphia with his wife. In the Quaker City all trace of him was lost, and his present wherebouts is unknown. He represented himself as the general agent of the Columbia Lean and Investment company, of Washington, D. What the Philadelphia Press Says. A recent issue of the Philadelphia Press contained an expose of the operation of this company in Philadelphia. Among other things the article in question said: Lorin Chambers, who is now under indictment in the United States district court in this city, charged with using the mails for the purpose of defrauding in connection with the Central Trust company, 1340 Arch street, who was tried and indicted for a similar offense in West Virginia and whose record as an organizer or member of com-panies and corporations suppressed by authorities for doing illegal business has made him notorious, has launched another venture in this city called the Industry, Savings and Life Insurance company. This company has very unpretentious offices at 1122 Walnut street, on the sec ond floor. It advertises that its specialty is loaning money to its shareholders. So far as can be learned it does not aim to do business in this city, but seeks to transact its work in small country towns. A very seductive ad-vertisement has found its way into some of the country papers, which says: "Our system affords an opportunity to borrow on either personal or real estate security. The plan is superior to building and loan associations. The amount borrowed may be returned in monthly payments without bonus with interest at 5 per cent. per annum." It is signed "S. S. Robertson, president, 1122 Walnut street, Philadelphia."

Claims to Have a Perpetual Charter. The Industry Savings company al delivery have reached us, which we have traced to stolen papers, that we now offer $5 reward for information that will lead to the did business in Pittsburg, but for some years went out of business. A few months ago it took a new lease of life. Lorin Chambers undertook the work of reorganization in this city and a very enticing prospectus was sent out. This prospectus states that the officers of the company are S. S. Robertson, president; Frank A. Bailey, secretary, and Melvin H. Campbell, treasurer. All of these live in Pittsburg. Chambers' name does not figure in the company at all, but he is said to be a large shareholder. he is said to be a large shareholder.

The prospectus places the capital stock of the company at $1,000,000, made up of 20,000 shares at the par value of $50 each. According to this little pamphlet "every individual applying for a loan is interested and a part owner. They share the profits and have a voice in the management." The system of borrowing is then explained. First, those intending to borrow must become those intending to borrow must become shareholders of the company. To do this they sign an application for the number they sign an application to the state of shares they wish, at $75 a share, although $50 is the par value, $2.50 per share to be paid in cash and the rest as often as assessments are made under the by-laws, which is as often as the directors see fit. A glance at the by-laws shows how absolutely an investor is at the mercy of the directors. According to Article IV, the stock is of two kinds, full paid non-assessable stock and assessable stock. Section 2 as follows:

They Can Water the Stock. "The directors may from time to time, as they shall deem it to be advantage-ous to the interests of the company, issue certificates of full paid non-assessable stock for such prices as they shall deem proper, which full paid non-as-sessable stock shall share in the profits of the company upon the par value thereof."
This apparently means that the directors can at will "water" the stock to an and get the best. At Guernsey Bros.

unlimited extent, and can also sell the same at any price they please from $1 or less, to above the par value of $50. None of this stock can be assessed further, but all of it will share in the profits. This may be a good way for the directors to obtain stock, if they so desired.

The prospectus emphasizes the fact that "as this company makes loans to shareholders only every individual, firm analysis for a loan is or corporation applying for a loan is interested and a part owner." Yet this section states that the directors may authorize loans to persons not share-Section 3 says: "The directors may prescribe the terms upon which loans shall be granted, and such rules and regulations as shall be made from time to time governing the granting of loans and describing the terms upon which the same shall be made shall be attera-ble by them as necessary occasion in their opinion arises." All Powerful Directors.

So says Article II, section 2. Two directors or the president may call a special meeting of the board, and three directors constitute a quorum for the transaction constitute a quorum for the transaction when the directors constitute a quorum for the transaction constitute a quorum for the transaction when the directors constitute a quorum for the transaction constitute a quorum for the transaction constitute a quorum for the transaction when the directors constitute a quorum for the transaction constitute. Where Harris Figured. J. F. Harris, the operating partner of McIntyre, was the agent for the Columbia Loan and Investment company of Washington, D. C., a concern which became insolvent last December, and was placed in the hands of a receiver. At that time a decree of the court at Washington was made directing that nothing should be collected on stock on which loans had not been made. In defiance of this decree Harris and McIntyre, who transacted business for him, continued to collect the regular monthly assessments on the stock, and in that way made themselves directly amenable to the law. Among the host of persons from whom they received money from month to month was Christian W. They did not do so, and he applied for an injunction. His bill of complaint set forth that he had been induced to sign the paper through "fraud, trick and artifice."

The defendants filled their answer Saturday in court. They make a general denial of every allegation in the bill of complaint. They said they did not know Mr. Mullen's name was on the paper which they or their agents had in their possession in reference to the conveyance of power of attorney to them entitling them to enter suit against the street rallway company. They did not promise to erase his name, for they did not know that his name was on the paper.

GILMORE'S GREAT BAND

Will Open Laurel Hill Park with Concerts Next Saturday.

Old-time friends of Gilmore and Gilmore's band will probably never lose their affection for both, for they fairly earned the rich reward of public good will which was given. It is intense satisfaction to all such friends to know that the famous old band is in a most prosperous condition in every way, and has taken new hold on public confidence and esteem by the magnificent showing it is making under the direction of Victor Herbert, the young Mozart of the period.

When Herbert consented to take the leadership of the old organization he got back most of the old-time fam soloists and artists of Gilmore's day and a lot of new ones from both sides of the Atlantic, and put them through a long course of orchestral training. With the old Gilmore library and his own to draw from, some thousands of copies of the best music in existence, he has now a repertoire that can scarcely be equalled on earth. And the old band is playing as it never played before. The people are wild over it every-where it is heard. It will play at the great Pittsburg exposition next fall and also at the Atlanta exposition. It will open Laurel Hill park for the season next Saturday with concerts.

Special services were held at the Penn Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning, when Miss S. C. Krigbaum presented the eleventh annual report of her work as church and Sunday school missionary. The report read as fol-To enable us to better understand the work it may be well for us to look for a few moments upon the field which is directors are present. As three of the officers live in Pittsburg that might not be uncommon.

The charter, under which the Industry company claims to be doing business, was, by proclamation of Governor Pattison, issued May 7, 1883, declared forfeited. From Philadelphia it is reported that money flowed in a constant stream into the central office on Walnut street for a long time. How in vain. One Case in Point.

In one of the worst quarters of the city lived a mother and two daughters, because of cheap rent. By help of a little clothing we kept the girls in the Sunday school. During the very hot weather of last summer, the young girl died, and her last moments were full of testimony of her love for her Sav-iour. Her little life had been well lived and her death gave proof that even children may come to a saving knowledge of Christ. We could spend all the time allotted us with incidents, for there have been so many during the year to encourage the heart of the worker. Our industrial school held every Saturday afternoon in the lecture room has been quite well attended, while it has not accomplished what we hoped from lack of helpers, it has, through its influence, reached and benefited many homes, that could not otherwise have been reached. It is also a school for been reached. It is also a school for the Christian worker. We hope in the coming year, the Lord willing, to make much advance in this line of work;

It the artist could see an angel in the block of marble, the redeemed of the Lord ought, through faith, to see His image in the soul of every child. While speaking of children, I may elevators. While speaking of children, I may mention that on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock our Junior Christian Endeavor is held, and we feel it indeed a great help in developing young Christians and bringing others, who attend, to a better understanding. Care of the Poor. The care of the poor is indeed a diffi-cult problem. One's sympathy is apt we give instead of helping. It is much easier to give the money than to give the time and effort in finding work that they may earn a living. We be-lieve that self-help is necessary to self-respect and are sure that much almsrespect and are sure that much aims-giving fosters pauperism; so, when-ever it is possible, we find employment. To find employment is at once difficult and delicate Vices, bad habits and ig-norance of what work really means are to be taken into account. We found employment for twenty-four during the year. Bright pictures of a busy, big city attracts a great many easy-going city attracts a great many easy-going persons to Scranton to find an easy place to grow rich. From necessity a good deal of time was spent with the fallen and vicious. One girl was taken from one of these dens and placed in the Florence mistion. In the summer a girl, 14 years of age, who had become incorrigable, was sent to the house of correction in Phil-adelphia. Her letters to me are full of gratitude for the care taken to keep her from a worse fate. She was one of the homeless, friendless girls, of whom nuch is expected and little given, and the feeling that she did not belong to any one who really loved her, caused to fail to appreciate the kindness she did receive.

Your bountles to the poor have car-Your bounties to the poor have carried blessings with them into many homes during the year.
