The train had just started from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western yard on the Southern division, and Newton jumped on the front of the engine on the way to the pit. BROOKS HAD CONVICTIONS

Excused from Serving as a Juror in Jennings Trespass Case.

Court Refused to Allow Jennings to Go on His Own Recognizance in the Perjury Proceedings—Other Cases Called Up During the Day.

It is the unexpected that always happens in the Jennings trespass case in court. Another sensation, but a mild one, was sprung upon the court yesterday morning. John H. Brooks, 422 1/2 street, South Side, was one of the jurors. Mr. Brooks is general manager of the Meadow Brook silk factory on Cedar avenue, a place employing 300 girls and several men and boys. He arose in the jury box, and addressing Judge Schuyler, said that he could not pass upon the case without bias and desired to be excused from the case. He is in a position where he has been and is liable in future to be a defendant in trespass suits, and although he tried hard to bring himself to that frame of mind which he could render a conscientious verdict, yet he had found it impossible to outweigh the conviction that had grown upon him from hearing and reading of the Jennings case.

Attorney Smith put him on the stand and asked him if he could not put his opinion aside and render a verdict from the evidence in the case. He answered that he could not, and the court immediately withdrew him from the box. Mr. Smith refused to go on with eleven jurors and the case went over until next term.

Court Held to Its Position. In the perjury proceedings Mr. Smith filed exceptions to the order of court. He contended that Jennings could not be liable for perjury until the case from which the perjury arises is disposed of. Court did not see it in that light and ordered Jennings to give bail for court. Smith asked that Jennings be let go on his own recognizance, but that did not work and finally Smith qualified as bondsman in the sum of $200.

Judge Schuyler is now hearing the case of Claude Pitcher against the People's Building company, of Luzerne county. A motion for a nonsuit was made at adjournment by the defendant company's attorneys and opposed by the plaintiff. Court will make known its ruling this morning.

This has grown to be a famous trespass suit. On Nov. 23, 1887, Claude Pitcher, son of Attorney Charles H. Pitcher, on his way home from the School of the Lackawanna, was seriously injured by being run over by a street car on Lackawanna avenue, near the Wyoming house. It was a dull, wet day and the car started up before he could get away from the ground, and his foot caught under the wheel, injuring him so that he will be lame all his life.

Compulsory Non-suit Granted. Attorney P. B. Peuser is representing the plaintiff and ex-Judge Jessup and Attorney Horace E. Hand the company. The case was tried before and a compulsory non-suit was granted on the ground that the negligence of the company had not been established, the driver and conductor of the car had seen the plaintiff, and therefore that they did not know he was about to become a passenger and could not be guilty of negligence.

Before Judge Archibald. Before Judge Archibald in No. 1 court room the most of the day was taken up in the trial of the suit of Mrs. Catherine Winter against Ambrose Mulley and others, executors of the estate of Nathan P. Fish, deceased. The verdict of $232.25 made on Oct. 23, 1893, by Fish to W. W. Winter. The jury was out at adjournment.

John Howey, tried before Judge Schuyler in No. 2, to recover a judgment of $110, ended in favor of the plaintiff. The jury found a verdict of $23.31. In the assumption case of McFarlan & Co. against Henry Goodman, a verdict of $625.35 was returned, and in the case of John Smith against E. D. Barber for wages a claim of $13.71 was allowed.

The Century House company will parade in Taylor tomorrow as the guests of the hose company of that borough, under whose auspices a picnic will be held, at which will be decided the contest for a gold watch in which Miss Lulu Sunday, of South Washington avenue, an active competitor.

CLARK'S SUMMIT.

William Clark, the great-great-grand-son of Horatio N. Patrick, settled about the year 1840 at Clark's Summit in Abington township, then a mighty wilderness, now a highly cultivated farming district, whose gently sloping hillside of meadow and ground are loved by all who know them well and admired by all whose eyes are passing glances have rested upon them. The son of William Clark, William Clark, Jr., built and lived for many years in the dwelling now occupied by Mr. C. P. Matthews, in Clark's Green, and many of the old maps which render this home so attractive are placed by his hand. The Clarks owned the land running from the dam at Clark's Summit to beyond the eastern reservoir of the Providence Gas and Water company, some three miles distant, and the villages of Clark's Green and Clark's Summit were named after them.

A few years ago Mr. Patrick purchased the Rankin farm, west of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western tracks, and subdivided it into town lots and started the development of the village, then consisting of a half dozen dwellings, the hotel and depot. On this tract many neat houses have been erected, four store buildings, two of them double fronts, a lumber yard, planing mill, etc., and the handsome new Methodist church.

In 1892 Mr. Patrick, with others, purchased the old John Clark farm, cut it into lots and established a successful colony of attractive homes. Highland Park attained a wonderful development in the three years since its purchase.

In fall and winter Mr. Atherton purchased the William Atherton farm, lying west of his original purchase, and the real development and construction of about 170 acres, and has now plotted a large portion of the property into town lots, under the name of Woodland Park, including all the lots in lots of the usual size up to one or more acres. This is the only tract here convenient to the railroad, offered in lots to one acre or more.

No more feebly located or naturally attractive land for homes can be found in this region. Mr. Patrick is the only real estate dealer in this locality, excepting his recent partners in Highland Park, Messrs. Erickson and Dimick, who have been long purchasers in building homes. He not only sells them the land, but aids them to build their houses. It is through the development of such methods that the development of the two plots with which he has been connected has secured for them nearly 75 per centum of the buildings now erected at Clark's Summit, and made happy homes for many men of narrow means. He has erected for himself a fine residence and conferred upon many of his fellow-townsmen homes which they might never have had without his aid.

Clark's Summit are inseparably interwoven.
