GOOD CITIZENS' GATHERING

Third National Conference of Municipal Reformers. Convention at Cleveland. Many Distinguished Citizens Are Present.

Cleveland, O., May 29.—The opening session of the third national conference for good municipal government, it being also the first annual conference of the National Municipal League, was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms this afternoon. It was perhaps the most notable gathering of men ever held in this city for the purpose of devising ways and means for the better government of municipal corporations. The motive drawing these men together is purely patriotic and honest economic municipal administration.

Carters' Speech. The annual address of James C. Carter, of New York, president of the league, opened with a statement that the third of the general conference of the Municipal League of the United States, which has the whole problem of municipal improvement under consideration, is a development of the municipal movement of the league were "theorists assembled to speculate concerning the abstract principles upon which the league seeks a cure, and government is founded." That it is practically impossible to have in any other municipal government superior in character to the prevailing standards of morality at home, he said.

Carters' Speech. The "municipal degradation" which has compelled the organization of municipal leagues, and urged the co-workers to give their best attention to a study of the right line of action. Mr. Carter diagnosed the disease of the body politic as the result of the municipal degradation which has compelled the organization of municipal leagues, and urged the co-workers to give their best attention to a study of the right line of action.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Theme of a Stirling Speech Delivered at Washington by James A. D. Richards.

Washington, May 29.—The members of the Interstate Democratic association, in the city of Columbia held their annual meeting today at Marshall hall, a well-known pleasure resort down the Potomac river. The principal address of the evening was delivered by James A. D. Richards, of Ohio, Mr. Richards chose as his theme "The Monroe Doctrine."

He asked: "What is the meaning of the mounting of modern guns and the strengthening of the fortifications at Quebec and Halifax? For whom are the massive fortifications and new guns at Esquimaux on the Pacific intended? Why are the fortifications of British Honduras being strengthened? Who is menaced by the new and powerful fortifications lately so secretly constructed on one of the Bermuda islands? Whose commerce and whose cities are threatened by the great naval station and yard on another of the Bermudas? Why are the Atlantic and Pacific shores of this continent constantly patrolled by a fleet of British iron-clad cruisers? Against what nation are all these guns trained? Whose peace and interests are threatened?"
