There will be a balloon ascension in the afternoon.

DEATH RATE DECREASING.

Lower in May Than During the Corresponding Months Since 1892.

Every member of the board of health, except President Bentley, met yesterday afternoon in the municipal building. Colonel E. H. Ripple was elected temporary chairman. Secretary Briggs gave his report, showing that there were 111 deaths during last month, the lowest death rate in three years. In 1892 there were 129 deaths; 1893, 136; 1894, 139. Seventy-three male children and as many females were born during the month.

Health Officer Allen made a verbal report of his doings. He called particular attention to the bad sanitary condition of Belmont street.

The secretary was instructed to request council to lay a sewer in the street, from Edwards court to the river. The special committee appointed at the last meeting to inspect the crematorium, reported that their visit resulted in finding the place in good shape. The only complaint was in regard to the water supply. Frequently it has happened that the water has been suddenly cut off. The secretary was instructed to ask council to transfer part of the money appropriated toward erecting a fence around the crematorium, to be used in building a reservoir.

It was decided that steps be taken toward obtaining cheaper oil or oil at better prices than are now being paid, for the use of the crematorium. The secretary was instructed to obtain quotations as to the price of a quantity of oil.

GROUND IS STILL WORKING.

Cracks in the Surface at Prospect Park Are Widening.

The settling of the surface of Prospect Park still continues. Most of the cracks are nearly double the width they were the day before and the houses are slowly sinking, especially those of F. C. Taylor and Thomas Green, both of whom will have to rebuild the foundations and replaster the walls.

The squeezing seems to be spreading toward Summit avenue, as there are several large cracks on the upper side of Church avenue, where Thursday there were none, but as yet no damage has been done to the houses.

PURDY'S STRANGE CASE

Though Reduced to a Skeleton He Is Still Possessed of Life.

HE Baffles Medical Skill

It Cannot Assign a Reason for the Tenacious Way in Which He Clings to Life Although He Would Prefer to Be Dead.

Among the strangest of wonders happening within the range of medical science, the case of Abram Purdy, of 1040 Quincey avenue, in Petersburg, is one of the most startling. Six months ago he was a tall, powerful man, brawny and snowy, weighing 210 pounds; since then he has wasted away by degrees, and today he is a gaunt skeleton of less than fifty pounds, and he hangs to life by a frail thread.

Dr. Arthur H. Bernstein, of Ash street, has kept the breath of life in Purdy for the past three months, but the patient has arrived at that stage, where it is a question of but how many hours longer before the reaper appears with his sickle and snags away the sufferer from the land of the living.

An ontoker is terrified at the sight of the bony form; cuddled on a bare cot, all animation apparently gone. A Tribune reporter, in company with Dr. Bernstein, visited the house yesterday afternoon. Purdy is at the home of his son-in-law, Martin Heintz.

Would He Kill Himself if He Could.

Purdy is insensible to all pain, but he retains his senses of hearing, speaking and seeing. When he recognized Dr. Bernstein, he asked for laudanum with which to end his life. For several weeks he has taken no food except a tablespoonful of milk at rare intervals, which he drinks through a tube.

He was born on July 18, 1831, in Plankkill, Dutchess county, N. Y., and grew up to be a giant in strength, reaching the height of six feet. His frame was correspondingly developed. The early days of his life were spent in the forest as a sawyer, and when the war broke out he enlisted in April, 1861, in Company K, Sixth Pennsylvania Reserve, and served until the close of the rebellion. He fought at Bull Run, Antietam, and Gettysburg, and the last fierce engagement where he fought for the Union was at Cold Harbor. His regiment after that remained passive until the end, when he retired to private life with an honorable discharge and badge of distinction.

Settling first in Susquehanna county after laying down the musket and the sword, he resumed the rough life of a wood cutter and later drifted to this county. All through the long marches and sleepless nights of the war he bore with remarkable endurance and he was not known to complain of even a trivial ache. While he toiled in the woods he suffered no sickness, until last summer. Then he became attacked with spasmodic pains in the abdominal region.

The Doctors Were Baffled.

Last August his health failed and yet he did not lose any muscle. He seemed to think, although he was of a round old age, that a trip to Florida and some of the watering places might restore his vigor and fit him to battle with life for several years to come. On his trip he consulted many physicians and attended several hospitals, but no encouragement greeted him.

His purse got light and he was forced to come home, returning on Dec. 11, last year. Dr. Bernstein's office is at a block from Purdy's home; and one day he was casually attracted to the old man related all his experiences with doctors and his journey after health. A diagnosis of his case was made and Dr. Bernstein took charge. He found that Purdy was affected with cancer of the ascending colon of the intestines, and saw that the sufferer's life would be short.

Within three weeks Purdy fell from 210 pounds to 175, and the decline continued until a month ago, when he reduced to 110 pounds. His superhuman vitality kept him at that mark until a week ago, but since, day after day, he has been losing, so that now there is no tissue left except the skin and the emaciated heart. The lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, and intestines are desiccated, and he lives and can see, hear and talk in one of the strange mysteries of the case.

Would Prefer Death.

Dr. Bernstein has kept him alive, but the sufferer would prefer death. He has no money and no friends and wants to die. He has applied for a pension, but his pilgrimage is so nearly completed. Dr. Bernstein says that he cannot survive three days, although he has been in a living death for three weeks.

No coffin lid lifted could expose a ghastlier sight than the cold, clammy bones that protrude through the skin of Purdy's earthly tenement.

William D. Moore, an old veteran from the Soldiers' Home, at Hampton Roads, Va., is nursing Mr. Purdy.

MRS. MORGAN RELENTED.

Her Son Thereupon Made Miss Augusta Cron His Wife.

About a month ago Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, of the West Side, went to the clerk of the courts office and forbade that official to give her son, John Morgan, who has not yet reached his majority, a license to marry Miss Augusta Cron, of Sterling, Wayne county, a young woman who is one year older than Mr. Morgan.

The young people convinced Mrs. Morgan that a marriage license and her permission could both be waived if they desired to be married without either or both and after thinking the matter over she relented.

Yesterday she notified the clerk that he could issue the required license and soon after Mr. Morgan and Miss Cron departed to claim it. They were at the home of Rev. L. C. Floyd, pastor of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church of the West Side, where they were married.

MET AT THE POOR FARM.

Report of the Committee Appointed to Visit the Charitable Institutions of the City Read and Adopted.

Yesterday's meeting of the Scranton poor board was held at the Hillside parsonage, and all directors, except Mr. Houston, were present. A thorough inspection of all the buildings, outbuildings and appurtenances of the Home was made and everything was found in a satisfactory and cleanly manner. The crops of the farm were found to be growing excellently and showed attention and intelligent gardening. At the most of the annual number of monthly bills were approved.

Mrs. Frances B. Swan, W. S. Langstaff, John Gibbons and Charles Tropp went in carriages and Director Williams and Secretary E. J. Lynett were whirled on the fast train to Clark's Summit and met at the station by Superintendent Beemer's carriage. The following report of the committee approved to visit the different charitable institutions of the city, where children are maintained at the expense of the district, was presented by Mrs. Swan and was adopted.

As to the Orphanage.

The St. Patrick's Orphan asylum, in Hillside Park, is a commodious building, with sufficient ground surrounding it for open air exercises and is admirably adapted for the purpose to which it is devoted. The committee, through the annual interviews with the superintendent, found the school rooms, play room, dormitories, halls and bath rooms well lighted, well ventilated and in perfect sanitary condition. The faculty hope to do up the school rooms, dining room and lavatories. The healthy and contented appearance of the children gave evidence of the good care bestowed upon them. They are taught five days in each week, and the girls are deeply interested in their work. There are at present 125 children in the orphanage. A large number of these are subjects of charity. The committee, in their interviews with the fifteen children, ten boys and five girls, who are at present charges upon the district, and would recommend that the entire number be retained in the orphanage with the exception of the McMahon children, who should be indentured to the institution. Too much credit cannot be given to those who have graciously given their labor and strength in bringing this institution to such a high standard of excellence.

The Home for the Friendless is conducted on a smaller scale, owing to the lack of funds for the building, is entirely inadequate to its need, as there are at present ten old ladies and thirty-one children domiciled therein. We were conducted through the building and found everything neat and clean, but the decaying timbers and flooring, the narrow halls and crowded dormitories are a sad reflection upon the generosity of a public whose coffers are overflowing with money, but crying shame that the only institution of its kind in our city should be so retarded in its noble work from a lack of funds. The children looked well and happy and who are of school age attend the public school, while the younger ones attend the kindergarten in the home. Fortunately, in the summer season, there is a large yard where the children can enjoy the fresh air and sunshine. There is but one child in the home at present who is a charge upon the district. In both the orphanage and Home for the Friendless the physical, moral, spiritual and educational interests are carefully guarded.

Foundling Home Not Suitable.

At St. Joseph's Foundling Home we found a still more aggravated state of affairs, as the building was originally erected for a school and was never planned for the work. In one medium sized room there lay ten very sick little babies, without a particle of ventilation, there being only one window in the room and so located that it could not be opened. In a very small room adjoining, where the only light came from a window in the outside door, lay four sick babies. It would be impossible to expose anything but a heavy mortality under such environments.

The committee saw six of the seven children who are at present charges upon the district there, Bridget Hoban, who is blind and so located that she could not be opened. In a very small room adjoining, where the only light came from a window in the outside door, lay four sick babies. It would be impossible to expose anything but a heavy mortality under such environments.

The committee would recommend the immediate removal of the building, and the children to be placed in a suitable institution for the blind, so that they may be taught to be self-supporting; also that the resolution adopted by the board to maintain the home for two years of age at our homes, unless given for indenture, be more strictly adhered to. Respectfully submitted, Frances B. Swan, chairman.

Entertainment at Elmhurst.

An entertainment was given last evening at Elmhurst by the well-known Columbia quartette, consisting of Gal Morgan, Ambrose Morgan, Herbert Jones and W. Morgan. The boys were assisted by Boyd Smith, pianist; Daniel Clemons, whistler; John Lewis, soloist, all of this city.

For Dyspepsia.

Take Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. T. H. Andrews, late of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "A stomachic which gave me most gratifying results in the worst forms of dyspepsia."

Reason on This.

You would call a man a fool to try to run an engine with a crooked piston-rod. Yet you are attempting that when you live with your system in a disordered condition. Whatever you may be mentally, you are physically a machine. Nothing interests you more than keeping it in order. If your digestion is out of condition, or your kidneys are disordered, use Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, a medicine prepared by a famous physician, and tested for years by thousands, who all indorsed it.

EIGHT TRAINED NURSES

Received Diplomas at Exercises Held in Albright Library Hall.

ADDRESS OF DR. H. C. WOOD

Spoke to the Young Women About the Duties that Will Confront Them in Their Exactng Calling—First Graduates of the School.

Albright Library hall was filled last night with an audience of cultured people whose presence attested the deep interest felt in the first commencement exercises of the Training School for Nurses connected with the Lackawanna hospital.

Two years ago the school was organized, and it was chartered by the state recently. To become a trained nurse requires two years of arduous study and preparation, and last night marked an eventful epoch in the history of the school, as it was the occasion of the graduation of eight women as qualified trained nurses. The diplomas with which they were presented during the evening, entitled them to positions in any hospital, public or private, in the United States, or to go forth and minister to the sick in families.

Library hall was decorated with tastefully arranged potted plants and illuminated with pendant electrical lights. A large number of the physicians of the city were present and at the platform were the following clergymen: Rev. J. A. O'Reilly and Rev. Kenneth Campbell, of St. Peter's cathedral; Rev. Rogers Israel, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, and Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of the First Presbyterian church.

James P. Dickson, Presiding Officer.

President James P. Dickson, of the Lackawanna hospital, was presiding officer of the evening, and the gentleman who was present as the guest of honor of the occasion and to whose lot fell the address to the graduating class was Dr. H. C. Wood, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The eight young ladies who were graduated were: Misses Annie Moon, Grace Miller, and Jennie Haggerty, of this city; Misses Anna Rodden and Maggie Cummings, of New York; Misses Swingle, of Lake Ariel; and Misses Edith Vanderwoort and Carrie Schaffer, of Gettysburg, Wayne county. They were attired in the costumes which are worn by trained nurses, light gowns of blue muslin, white aprons and lace.

They were seated in two rows to the right of the platform diagonally facing the audience.

Miss Helen McDonald, superintendent at the hospital, and the staff of nurses were seated in the front row of seats. Chairman Dickson announced the opening prayer, which was given fervently by Rev. Mr. Israel. The Dickson Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar club, seated in the left passageway, favored the assemblage with a selection. The members of the club are: W. W. Watkins, leader; C. W. Sproule, D. F. Mill and F. R. Shortz.

Mr. Dickson occupied the time briefly with an abstract of the work of the training school, and told of the good that it is destined to accomplish. After some more music, Dr. H. C. Wood was introduced as the speaker of the evening.

Dr. Wood's Practical Advice.

He spoke in an easy, graceful style to the graduates, and impressed upon them the responsibility of the avocation which they are about to undertake. Their work is one of the grandest in life, because it is devoted to the alleviation of pain, sickness and suffering. Their prototypes were active in prehistoric times; and the example of the Savior is an incident, for He was given to healing the sick. The speaker told how they are expected to conduct themselves, how trying their labors will be, what they must bear whatever trials and inconveniences arise with patience and cheerfulness. The Dickson club was heard again, after which the chairman, in a felicitous address, presented each graduate with her diploma. Dr. H. V. Lohan afterward presented them with badges to be worn indicative of their calling.

The chairman called upon Dr. McLeod for remarks, and the reverend gentleman responded. He said if he had not been a clergyman he would be a trained nurse, and he praised Dr. Wood for his excellent words, saying that it was glow with sunshine. He hoped that as good things shall be said of all future classes and invoked Divine blessing upon them and all present.

That concluded the exercises and the graduates then received the congratulations of their friends.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

(Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accompanied, for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune will not be held responsible for opinions here expressed.)

Say It Was Unauthorized.

Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: Under the heading, "Say Aug Member Talks," there appeared in the Scranton Times last evening an article which has done the Crystals a great injustice and which reflects seriously on the Nay Augs. That the published statements were made to a Times reporter was positively denied by each member present at the meeting last evening. If reporters wish to come to the engine house for news they are welcome, but it is only proper that they publish such articles given them as news and not listen to the conversation between members relating to the affairs of the company or department. The feeling existing between the members of Nay Aug and Crystal companies at present is friendly rather than it has ever been and the attack made on them by the Times was unauthorized by the company or any of its members.
