But the public, in their postponement, is conscious of a sense of disappointment, which is intensified by the knowledge of the insignificant character of the bills upon which so much valuable time was freely wasted.

While the Republican party will probably not have, in the next legislature, a majority so large as it had in this one, there is really nothing in the record of the minority party to encourage the public in giving it larger responsibility. During the recent session it got as deep in the dirt as its friend, the enemy, got in the mire. There was no job it didn't have a finger in, and no scheme to which, if its help was needed, it refused a willing hand. Its on- trick of helping to defeat reapportionment illustrated its animating motive, which was to do as much mischlef as possible with as much energy as was necessary. If the people at large have by this session's work been taught that it pays to look to the character of the individual candidate as well as to the party label at the head of his ticket, the disappointments and vexations of the past six months of legislative activity in this state will have been experienced to a good end. If not, the lesson will simply have to be learned some other time.

opinion that this suggessful trip of a flying machine fulfills to some extent the prediction that was made when aluminum became cheap enough for comparatively common use. The metal is so light, and is capable of being alloyed to so much advantage that the scientists who had been wrestling with the problem of nevial paylgation felt that it would enable them to build engines and frames of aerial machines which would be well within the lifting power of mechanical wings. The builders of the new yacht Defender, which is to meet the British yacht Valkyrle, next September, in contests for the America cup, has her top sides plated with aluminum bronze, and has deck beens made of the same material. The difference between the weight of these plates and beams and plates and beams of steel is estimated at no less than seven tons. This lightening of the upper portion of the yacht is an advantage of no small account. It will offset the pressure of a large area of canvas and enable the new yacht to stand up more stiffly against the wind than if she were built of steel throughout.

> figures? The infmediate inference, of course, is that the American people are cay. This is a natural consequence of the prevalent crowding of great masses of people into unwholesome cities. Fifty years ago the man was a rarity in this country who had not, as a boy, been reared on a farm or else sufficiently near to a farm to inhale pure air, get ample exercise and preserve a speaking sequentance with Mother Nature at first hand. Today, if a census could be taken of the young Americans who have never seen a real, country farm nor basked with any regularity in the health-giving freedom of rural environment, it would doubtless astonish the cheerful optimists who imagine that the rush of the younger generation citywards is fraught with no evils to the future of our country and of our race.

No doubt a time will some day come when the American people will come to their senses and then take life easy. The strong characteristic of Secretary Gresham was his loyalty to his friends One of his warmest friends was Colonel William R. Morrison, a lifelong Democrat of the shagbark hickory school. Morthe sparring matches these old soldlers of politics would have with one another. When the circuit judgeship was vacant recently in Chicago, and before Showalter was appointed to fill it, there were perhaps a score of applications for the place. Morrison called on Gresham to casually talk the vacancy over. Afterward Morrison was asked what candidate Gresham favored. "Well," said the colonel, cheerfully, "Grasham and I are the best of friends, but of course we don't tell each other everything.
