· EXPLOSION OF POWDER.

Three Men Fearfully Burned in That Manner at Old Forge.

Fred Gardner, of Duryea, a miner in Jermyn No. 2 shaft, Old Forge, and his two laborers, Mike Zooskoski and William Orch, were terribly burned by the explosion of powder yesterday morning. A large quantity of powder near them was set off by a spark from one of their lamps.

Gardner was in the worst condition and his burns are apt to result fatally; he was removed to his home, and the laborers were taken to the Lackawanna hospital. They are resting as comfortably as could be expected. All three were burned on the face and hands.

Thursday night at the home of Mr. and | nue, Scranton. Mrs. James Archbald, on Jefferson avenue. It is to be given by the Ladies' Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church and will be called a 'Birthday Social' from the fact that each person attending will pay one cent for every year that he or she is old. Invitations for the event have been issued and attached to each is a bag for enclosing the admission price. The plan illustrates its promoters' confidence in the willingness of their friends to divulge what is commonly onsidered a very tender subject.

A rare treat was missed by those who were deterred by the storm from being present Thursday night at the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. DeVal, at their home, 409 Wyoming avenue, for the King's Sons of Elm Park church. Arrangements had been made for a lawn party, but the storm served to turn the event into a delightful house affair, during which Mr. and Mrs. DeVal were assisted by Mr. and six years, during all of which time she Mrs. C. PINAFORE WELL SUNG.

reditable Work of the Members of the Juvenile Company.
"Pinafore" was presented in a most pleasing manner at the Frothingham last night before a large audience which was highly pleased with the manner in which the Juvenile Opera company rendered the opera.

The little folks sing well, presented a graceful appearance on the stage and imparted a spirit and character to their lines that spoke volumes for the intelligent manner in which Professor Lindsay had drilled them. The cast of characters was as follows, and nil the members of it acquitted themselves with great credit:

B. (First Lord of the Admiralty). Captain Corcoran (Commanding H. M.

Dick Deadeye (Able Seaman)....M. Niland

Billy Bogstay (Boatswain) M. Crowley Josephine (the Captain's Daughter), May Niland

Florence Rafter Little Buttercup (a Portsmouth Bumboat Woman)......Tessle Hanaway The performance was for the benefit of the Foundling Home under the auspices of St. Aloysius cadets, Arthur Frothingham kindly giving the use of his theater. A feature of the performance was the dancing of the Lally chilact. Tonight the performance will be repeated and should be greeted by a large audlence.

There was no cooler place in the city last night than the Frothingham Those who occupied boxes were B. B. and F. O. Megargee and party, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. and Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Casey and party, P. W. Gallagher and William F. Coyne and party.

FUNERAL OF DOGTOR LEETE

His Body Has Been Laid at Rest in Porest Hill Cemetery.

THE SERVICES AT THE HOUSE

Conducted by the Rev. E. L. Miller-Many Beautiful Floral Tributes-Names of the Pall and Flower Bearers. Services at Grave by Elks.

The funeral of Doctor Allen Norton Leete took place yesterday afternoon from his late home, 629 Adams avenue where funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. L. Miller, pastor of the Holy Trinity Lutheran church. At the grave the services were in charge of the Elks, the members of which attended the funeral in a body.

They marched from the lodge room on Franklin avenue to the house, where they viewed the remains of their late brother, which reposed in a casket in the front parlor. Across the foot of the casket was a large bouquet of roses and near its head were a floral lyre from the Elks. A floral pillow containing the inscription, News," another pillow from Tribune employes, containing the figures "30," the universal symbol for good night dren, who appeared during the second in the newspaper world, and a floral representation of a page of a newspaper with the words "The Press" across the top as a title. It was sent by newspaper workers of the city.

After the Elks had taken their leave of the remains Rev. E. L. Miller began the funeral services.

Rev. Mr. Miller's Remarks. The clergyman took his text from Cor., xv, 15: "O, Grave, where is thy victory." He urged his hearers not to Miss Tessie Hanaway, on behalf of the forget that it was only the baser part of man we lay aside, the immortal part, his soul, is in the hands of God. "We sorrow not as others who are without hope," he continued, "and sad as this day is to those dear ones he has left behind, they can yet cry out 'O Grave, where is thy victory.' "We know that the grave does not end all, but that we only begin to live when the earth encloses our body. What is passing and perishing w must leave, but what is true and real we take with us. What the world can not rob him of we believe our departed friend possessed in great measure. I knew and admired him for his maniiness, generosity and Christianity, and when we consign his body to mother earth she will cradle it until the glorious resurrection day." Mr. Miller concluded his remarks with a fervent

Interment at Forest Hill. At the conclusion of the services the immediate friends took their leave of the remains, which were then conveyed to Forest Hill cemetery, where interment was made. The services at the grave were according to the ritual of

This is said to be caused by the fear that a capitalist who intends to go to Austria soon and establish a steel manufacturing establishment there, is on a visit among the prominent mills of this country in order to benefit by the observation in the improved methods of machinery. In the South mill of late there have been made many improvements around the rolls, and his quest would prove interesting.
