OLD DEMOCRACY IS GOING

Silver Has About Wiped Out the Party in Louisiana.

POLITICIANS ARE SWAMPED

The New Organization Will Probably Label Itself Democracy, but the Leaders and Rank and File Will All Be for Free Silver.

New Orleans, June 14.—Louisiana politics were never in a more complicated situation than they are today, and it looks as if it would never be possible to get the Democracy together again in harmony. At the late state election the party split into two bitterly hostile factions, and there were two full Democratic state and local tickets in the field. The old bitterness of the anti-slavery and anti-Democratic still survives. Then there are the sugar bolt and the desertion of nearly the entire sugar-planting interest to the Republicans, the opposition to the governor and state administration, and the opposition to Cleveland and his policy, which is very strong again; there is the Ballot Reform league, a very powerful organization, which has entered the field in the last few weeks to get rid of the present corrupt election laws of the state, and has announced its purpose to pay no attention to party lines, but to support any party or faction that will support honest business elections. With one-third of the white vote of the state gone over to the Populists and another considerable fraction lost to the Republicans on the sugar question, the Democratic outlook is not promising, and the introduction of the silver question into local politics, the politicians say, will cause still further division and render defeat certain.

Nearly the entire political element in the state was opposed to bringing out the silver issue just now. All the federal officials, of course, were opposed to it, as they had been warned that any leaning on their part toward silver would mean their discharge. Of the representatives, Mayor and Police are against free silver, Buck and Robertson doubtless, but they give in to a call for a silver convention. Boatner is an international bimetallicist, and therefore opposed to the prevailing silver sentiment of his state. Captain Ogden, the only member from Louisiana in favor of the convention to consider the free coinage question and force it into state politics.

No backing from politicians. It will be seen, therefore, that the movement here had very little backing from the politicians, who, indeed, feared the issue and tried to crowd it down. When, however, a call was made for a silver convention to meet in New Orleans on June 19, it aroused a popular sentiment that was altogether unexpected. Everywhere in the country parishes the silver meetings were large and enthusiastic. The convention which assembled in New Orleans was one of the largest ever assembled in the state, and one of the most representative and influential. Only a few days intervened between the call and the convention, but these few days saw the silver boom obtain such proportions that the politicians all made for it.

There had already been a very strong silver sentiment in New Orleans among the commercial and middle classes. These acquisitions leave no doubt as to the fact that a majority of the voters in New Orleans are for free coinage, and it is generally recognized that the politicians would have come out in favor of it, but that the silver movement would win.

The country politicians have also joined the movement and many who have hitherto maintained a neutral or conservative position declared for free silver. The convention itself was a burrah affair. It listened to speeches, adopted resolutions, elected 250 delegates to the bimetallic convention in Memphis; but the chief work of the organization of a bimetallic league and the appointment of an executive committee. This committee contains very few politicians. Its president, Ashton Phelps, is a retired cotton merchant, although a young man, well to do, thoroughly independent in politics, and with no political ambitions. The committee has got promptly to work and issued an address to the people of the state, and has gone to work to organize systematically the silver sentiment of Louisiana.

New Party and Platform. This has caused a sensation, and already there are cries that the movement means a new party based on a platform. The address of the executive committee appeals to all the white voters of Louisiana to join the ranks of those who are contending for the renunciation of the free coinage of silver, and the league expects to win back the 20,000 white voters who have gone over to Populism. It has taken up the cry of ballot reform, and its two principal planks will be honest elections and the free coinage of silver. It proposes that these and all other questions, as well as the nominations of candidates, shall be submitted to a primary of the white voters of Louisiana, and that all white voters shall be permitted to participate in the elections, whether Republicans, Populists, or Democrats.

In many respects the organization of the white voters of the state, without regard to the previous political affiliations, provided only they believe in white supremacy, honest elections, and free silver. It may claim the name of Democracy on the ground that it embraces a majority of the white Democrats of the state, and that a majority of the Democrats approve the views of the executive committee and will support them. Some of the men who have embarked in the movement are a little afraid of names and that they may be accused of deserting the Democracy, and it is, therefore, probable that the name Democrat may be preserved. The silver people are asserting that, instead of the new movement weakening the Democracy of Louisiana, it will strengthen it, bringing back to its ranks some 20,000 voters who left it for the People's party. It proposes to make free silver a fundamental issue in state

WHOLE KICKERS AT BUTTERS.

Professional Ballet Girls from New York Shock the Audience at a New Brunswick College Show.

New Brunswick, June 16.—The sophomore class of Rutgers college created a sensation Friday night with great pomp and enthusiasm. About 1,000 persons paid 25 cents each for seats on the grand stands which had been erected on the vacant lots on Somerset street, where the exercises were held.

The recreation began at 11:30 o'clock. A band played dirges, while the students danced about in the grotesque costumes of gnomes and devils. A stuffed figure, with a face made up to resemble a pig, was made to perform the tasks of the students particularly hard, was thrown into the fire, and then there was a song of joy.

The main feature of last evening's performance was an oriental dance before the great light dignitary, the vice president, Li Hung Chang. The Chinese statesman was supposed to be trying his general, Analyticus, for causing China's continued defeats. Analyticus was found guilty and was condemned to die at the stake for treachery. Then the entertainment of the emperor was begun with a procession of Amazons, represented by sophomore in gauze shirts and flesh-colored tights. After the Amazons had danced with great grace the premier dancers were announced.

The calcium light man put on all the power of his apparatus, and soon shapely limbs in fleshings were seen shooting skyward with surprising agility. The old men began to get deeply interested and the young men, sitting beside their best girls, were uneasy. The dancers were not students but women, and they were giving an open-air can-can.

ALLISON BOOM STARTED.

His Friends Will Insist Upon Recognition at Next Convention.

Chicago, June 16.—A special to a morning paper from Mason City, Ia., says: The candidacy of Senator W. B. Allison for president will be formally launched at the national convention of the Republican league clubs at Cleveland. In previous years Allison's candidacy has been regarded, even at home, as more of an expression of respect from the people to a man of high character than a real desire to see him elevated to this exalted position. This year the Republicans of the state will not be satisfied with anything short of seeing him placed at the head of the ticket. Some of the prominent leaders here are going so far as to name for his running mate Robert T. Lincoln. The best political workers the state affords will be present at the Cleveland convention for Allison. Heading the delegation is J. S. Clarkson.

YIETSI WAS MURDERED.

Romance of a Lithuanian Boarding House Ends in a Tragedy—An Undertaker's Discovery.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 16.—Friday night the body of Andrew Yietzi, aged 26, a Lithuanian, who worked at the Blackman mine, was found dead under the coal in his chamber in the boarding house. He was taken to his home and was to have been buried today. The undertaker who had the funeral in charge found that the dead man's body had been washed and dressed by his wife and two boarders and they refused to allow him to examine the corpse. He notified the police today, and examination followed, and it was found that Yietzi had been murdered. Bullet wounds were found in the back of the head, in the side, the right arm, and the small of the back. All had been inflicted by a thirty-eight calibre revolver. The police arrested the dead man's wife, Anna Yietzi, Anthony Zentis, William Zentis, John Orbin and William Skiffon, boarders in the house.

The term of Major General Showen, of the National guard, will expire in a month, but it is expected the governor will reappoint him.

TOTAL RAILROAD MILEAGE

Statistical Report of Interstate Commerce Commission.

INCREASE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Interesting Figures Concerning Railroad Business Generally—The Number of Employees for 1894 as Compared with Other Years—Money Invested.

Washington, June 16.—The seventh statistical report of the Interstate commerce commission has just been submitted. It covers the fiscal year 1894 and completes the preliminary statistics published last September. The first published report covers the last four months of the Columbia exposition, during which time there was an increased passenger traffic. The second part covers a period of widespread business depression. The third, commencing June 1, 1894, when 192 railroads operating upwards of 43,000 miles of line and representing about one-fourth of the total railway capitalization, were in the hands of receivers. The effect of these conditions is apparent in nearly every item of the figures presented.

The total railway mileage in the United States was 117,768, an increase during the year of 2,247 miles. The increase during the previous year was 4,875, or 4.2 per cent. Pennsylvania shows an increase of 200 miles, or 0.4 per cent. During the year 1,579 locomotives and 20,388 cars were fitted with train brakes and 1,127 locomotives and 24,186 cars were fitted with automatic couplers.

The total number of reported railway capital on June 30, 1894, was $10,796,472,813, an increase of $290,238,493. The gross earnings of the railway for the year show a decrease of $147,390,077, or 12 per cent. The number of employees on June 30, 1894, was 729,608, a decrease of 29,394 and less than in any year since 1890.
