Just a few minutes before her day's work would be over Saturday afternoon an accident happened to Miss Maggie Connery at the Meadow Brook Slik mill, where she is employed. She is a daughter of John Connery, of Stone avenue and Moosic street, and an estimable young lady. By accident her hand got caught in the machinery and one of her fingers was injured so that it had to be amputated. She is most fortunate that the swiftly moving wheels did not drag in her arm and mangle it.

ARGUMENT OF THE

It Is in Behalf of the Reasonableness of Christianity.

DISCUSSED BY REV. HUGHES

Made Christ's Argument fot Christianity the Basis of a Brilliant Sermon at the Jackson Street Church of tho West Side Yesterday Morning.

At the Jackson Street Baptist church yesterday morning Rev. D. C. Hughes, D. D., delivered a thoughtful sermon on "Christ's Argument for Christianity."
The speaker took his text from the words of John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begot-

Him might not perish but have ever-lasting life." During the course of his discourse Dr. Hughes said:

discourse Dr. Hughes said:

Some say that Christianity is still on trial. It would be a wonder if it were not so, for this is an age in which nothing is considered settled. The evolutionist, archeologist, astronomer, chemist, literary critic historian, theologian, and many others, in their respective fields, are forever testing the principles and adductions of the past, and are seeking to reconstruct everything that comes under their ken. Nothing has been more thoroughly tested than Christianity. It shinks not from the test. "Believe me." says its illustrious author, "that I am in the Father; or else, believe me for the very works' sake, "(John xiv, 11.)

Morning and evening services in the Penn Avenue Baptist church were well attended yesterday, when the pastor, Rev. Warren G. Partridge, preached the reasonableness of Christianity. This argument may be regarded as five-fiold: 1. In the impulse that gave it birth. 2. In its representative agent. 3. In the method chosen. 4. In the condition of its practical efficacy. 5. In the gift it has to bestow.

Your attention is invited to these points in the order just named.

Second—This divinest of all principles, Jesus says, is the impulse that gave Christianity its birth—"For God so loved, etc"—and in the exercise of this principle on the part of our heavenly Father we find its purest and brightest rays shine forth. For what form of love could be more disinterwhat form of love could be more distinct. Roche and Miss Maggie Kennedy is announced.

God's Gift for Our Salvation.

God's Gift for Our Salvation.

First—This is philocophically correct in principle. To believe in Jesus Christ is to accept Him as God's gift for our salvation; it is to rely for pardon and peace and life from God through His merits; it is to reverence His name, obey His word, adopt His precepts, cultivate His spirit, in a word, to become in every true sense His follower. In no other way can anyone be benefitted by Jesus Christ or by anyone else. No person can do us good in whom we do not believe. No truth can be a truth to anyone which he will not believe. Every fact of history, of science, of everyday life will be thrown away on him who rejects it. So also in regard to Jesus Christ. The principle of faith holds good in regard to Him. However, perfect His character, pure His method, gentle and loving His spirit, and mighty to save, it will all be thrown away on every one who will not believe in Him. This, then, is an argument in behalf of the condition of the practical efficacy of love that is unanswerable. The principle of faith is as essential for salvation through Christ as the fact of eating is the support of physical life.

V. Finally—The argument from the gift that God proffers through Jesus Christ is equally unanswerable.—"That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." Eternal life is the gift of God through Jesus Christ.

Life only can give life. The staunchest evolutionists now admit this principle. "No increase of complexibility," says Alfred Russell Wallace, "could have produced living protoplasm,"—Darwinism, p. 474.

Eternal life can be imparted by Him who Eternal life can be imparted by Him who Eternal life can be imparted by Him who alone possesses it. The only being in this universe that has eternal life is Jesus Christ, and He to whom He gives it. This is His proffer, to all, without respect of persons: "Whosoever."

Thus we have seen Christ's mighty argument holds good in every part of it, and by it He shows that Christianity is God's last and best gift to man, because His only begotten Son is its life, its substance, its all in all—worthy of its author and its all in all-worthy of its author and worthy of universal acceptance. RELIGIOUS JOTTINGS.
