Away from a Life Fraught with Good It is no new fight for Mr. Platt. A majority of the incorporators of the State club are the same that have been fighting him for years.

Some Ancient History. Shortly after Mr. Harrison's election in 1888 he found himself confronted by an ugly patronage fight from New York. Ex-Senator Platt, who had carried the state for the national ticket, wanted to be secretary of the treasury. Ex-Senator Warner Miller, who had been left outside the breastworks, also wanted to be secretary of the treasury. Mr Platt's friends claimed that he had a omise from Stephen B. Elkins for the place dating back to the National convention. The Union league people were as usual against Mr. Platt. At one time it looked so much as if Mr. Platt would be appointed that the anti-Platt people, including C. N. Bliss, Elihu Root and General Dan Butterfield, desided that something must be done. A dinner was held at General Butterfield's house, at which a statement was

She Fell Upon the Wires and the Man Who Bravely Tried to Roseue Her Was Badly Injured.

Cleveland, June 18.-People passing along Ontario street last evening were startled by the piercing shrieks of a woman which came from the roof of a restaurant known as the "New Wright House." Looking in the direction from which the cries came, they saw a woman entangled in the telephone and electric light wires, forty feet above the ground. Her clothing was on fire and she was loudly calling for help. Several men ran up the stairs leadign to the roof, and Thomas Bell, a stereotyper in the employ of the World, asended by the fire escape. Bell reached the terrified woman as soon as the other men, and together they rescued her from her perilous predicament. Just as they had succeeded in freeing her, Bell caught hold of one of the wires with his hands. In an instant he was writhing with pain. Somebody had the presence of mind to cut the wire, but that did not save Bell. He fell head downward to the fire escape, a coil of wire being about his hips and holding him suspended in the air. He screamed for help, and for a time it seemed that he would be burned to death, the flames playing about his body. He was finally released, and, with the woman, was sent to a hospital.

The latter, whose name is Edith Johnson, waitress to the restaurant, will die, her arms and legs being burned to a crisp; but Bell, though badly burned, will recover.
