HARD FIGHT FOR SILVER

Western Senators Unable to Gain the Endorsement of National League.

Major Warren Secunds the Nomination of General McAlpin—Ex-Senator Miller's Address—The Big Banquet in the Evening.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

Cleveland, June 20.—The committee on resolutions have been having heated sessions all day and at this hour have failed to reach any agreement. It is understood, however, that they have about determined to report in the morning a resolution taking from this convention as out of place any discussion on the silver question. United States Senator Dubois, of Idaho, and Carter, of Montana, have been working in every way possible to secure a different outcome, and a declaration by the convention in favor of free coinage at the 16 to 1 ratio. They have failed.

Major Warren, of our delegation, was one of the secondaries today of General McAlpin's nomination to the presidency of the league. Major Penman and Frithonyth Prior have tonight for the first time. The rest of the Luzerne and Lackawanna delegations remain over for the final session of the convention in the morning. Ex-Senator Miller, of New York, addressed the convention this morning most entertainingly. The banquet tonight to the delegates given by the people of Cleveland was a great success, 15,000 delegates sitting down to a delightful dinner, after which speeches were delivered by the best orators of the convention.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Election of President and Other League Officials.

Cleveland, O., June 20.—At the opening of the afternoon session letters and telegrams were read from prominent persons declining the invitation to be present. The roll of states was called and those who did not have a chance to introduce resolutions in the morning came to the front in the afternoon. Chairman Nagle, of the committee on time and place, reported the members had agreed to recommend Milwaukee as the next place for meeting, the time to be fixed by the executive committee some time after that of the national party convention.

The committee on resolutions not yet being ready to report, the rules were suspended and the league proceeded to the election of officers. George B. Green, of New York, nominated Adjutant General E. A. McAlpin for the presidency.

The mention of General McAlpin's name was the signal for tremendous cheering, and the nomination was seconded, the rules were suspended and the election made unanimous.

For secretary John P. Burns, of Denver, and William Grant Edins, of Springfield, Ill., president of the Illinois league, were nominated. The proceedings were interrupted at this juncture by the entrance of General McAlpin, who received an enthusiastic welcome.

General McAlpin, in concluding his address to the convention, said: "While I am privileged to be at the head of this great organization there should be but one motto, 'Hard work, thorough organization, Republican success.'"

"Republican success" being the aim, the greatest good must maintain an active organization throughout the entire year. They must increase the knowledge of Republican principles and render more stirring the enthusiasm of the people. The representative government cannot be secured by the mere wording of a written constitution."

The convention adjourned until tomorrow without finishing the election of secretary.

Scenes at the Banquet Hall.

The 1,500 delegates to the convention of the National Republican league of clubs was seated at a banquet by the local league members tonight. The magnificent American building, the largest structure of its kind in the world, was the scene of the fête. The interior decorations were gorgeous. They were made up of various colored electric lights and burning and tropical plants effectively arranged.

The upper balconies of the building, with a seating capacity of several thousand, were crowded with onlookers. The Iowa state band and a large orchestra furnished the music. The banquet was also enlivened by the glee club of the league.

A gold watch and $1,000 in money were stolen from General McAlpin, the newly elected president, on his arrival this morning.

DID NOT GET A NIBBLE.

Senator Quay's Fishing Trip is Without Favorable Results.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 20.—Senator Quay packed his grip this morning and is in readiness to take the first outward train for Philadelphia in the morning. He had expected when he started on a fishing trip today to spend the day in his favorite sport, but on his return there were a dozen telegrams awaiting his perusal and one of them was of such importance that it caused him to give orders to Captain Ben Soss, the sailing master on his fishing trip, to make immediate arrangements for his departure.

The senator was out nearly all day in the surf angling for drum fish, but he failed to get a single one, not even a nibble, so Captain Soss says.

MR. QUAY A DELEGATE.

Will Represent His District at Republican State Convention—Presidential Possibilities.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 20.—It was formally announced by ex-Congressman C. C. Townsend, of Beaver county, tonight, that United States Senator Quay is to be a delegate to the Republican state convention and an active member of the national committee of the state central committee. Mr. Townsend is a warm personal friend of the senator and knows whereof he speaks. William Moulds, of Rochester, who was elected a delegate to the state convention, also expressed his pleasure today making Senator Quay his proxy to the convention. This, it is stated, will be done in accordance to the wishes of Senator Quay and his friends.

MR. QUAY A DELEGATE.

This will not only make Senator Quay a delegate to the convention, but also an active member for the chairmanship of the state central committee. Mr. Quay's act in seeking the chairmanship is to line up the state for the next presidential campaign and to learn whether his views of those of David Martin, of Philadelphia, are to shape events toward that end. If Senator Quay can control a majority of delegates he will likely have the say as to who shall be Pennsylvania's choice in the next presidential campaign. Ex-Congressman Townsend, in speaking of McKinley and Reed, tonight, said that Senator Quay liked both gentlemen, but did not know which of the two senator would choose. Asked about the alleged breach between C. L. Magee and Mr. Quay, Congressman Townsend said he did not think there was any serious trouble between the two gentlemen.

The family rushed to Long's assistance, and the man fled to the spring house, where he was afterwards tied with ropes after a hard fight.

OPENING OF BALTIC CANAL

The Great Water Way is Dedicated with Brilliant Ceremonies.

GRAND PARADE OF STEAMERS

Crowned Heads of Europe Among the Passengers—An Ovation to the Emperor of Germany—Order of Procession.

Kiel, June 20.—With imperial pomp and ceremony, and amid the plaudits of tens of thousands of people, the great canal connecting the Baltic and North seas was opened to commerce today. The weather was perfect, and the inauguration ceremony was a bigger national festivity than any other, the grounding in the canal of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, one of the vessels that took part in the naval parade. She took bottom near Levensau, near the eastern extremity of the canal, but she got off without damage. At 3 o'clock this morning the dispatch boat Grille entered the lock at Brunsbuttel, the western extremity of the canal and not through as a result of examining the banks and locks, and taking soundings in order to prevent, if possible, the occurrence of an accident when the great parade navigated the canal to Kiel.

Long before the hour set for the starting of the parade every available space along the river front was packed by eager crowds, all anxious to see the emperor, the German princes and the other royal personages, than which a larger national gathering has never been seen in this part of the empire.

The scene, as the emperor and four of his eldest sons drove along the river front last evening to embark on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, was one to be long remembered. Everything capable of being decorated bore masses of flags and var-colored bunting, and the crowd filled with holiday fervor, cheered incessantly as the emperor and prince sailed past. Hohenzollern, as she passed into the western water gate at 2:45 o'clock this morning.

As the Hohenzollern passed into the canal, the entrance to which was being flanked at every point, a salute was fired to mark the beginning of the little distance from the entrance to the lock, while the soldiers, composed of cavalry, infantry and pioneers, lining both banks, presented arms. At the same time a military band played the German national anthem.

An Ovation to the Emperor.

The approaches were crowded with military students, visitors and residents of the vicinity, who cheered loudly. The emperor was on deck and he bowed in response to the ovation he received, exhibiting much emotion. The Hohenzollern, at 10 o'clock, entered the canal and began her passage through to Kiel, the bands on shore playing national airs and the crowds cheering.

The other vessels in the procession followed in this order: The yacht Kaiserlicher having on board Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, the King of Saxony, the King of Sardinia, and Grand Duke, with the Duke of York representing Queen Victoria; the Italian royal yacht Savoia, with the Duke of Genoa, representing King Humbert; the Austrian torpedo catcher Trabant, with Arch Duke Franz Ferdinand, representing Emperor Francis-Joseph; the Hamburg-American line steamer Augusta Victoria, with the members of the Bundesrath and of the diplomatic corps; the same line's steamer Columbia, with the Emperor's suite; the North German Lloyd's steamer Trave, also with members of the reichstag and the Prussian landtag; and the Hamburg-American line steamer Rhetia, with members of the reichstag and landtag.

The warships steamed through in this order: Grille, Arctura, Surcouf, Groland, Grossathaus, Marques De Encarnada, Edla, Viking, Mariboech, Miroca, Roca, Alkmar. The rear of the procession was brought up by the Turkish yacht Fevaid.

The Marblehead Salts.

At 1:30 o'clock last night every one who expected to go through the canal on the American cruiser Marblehead, was on board that vessel, though she did not leave until this morning.

The Marblehead is very popular, owing to her very possible courtesy to visitors, and she was cheered last evening by the occupants of hundreds of steam and electric launches and thousands of people on shore.

At 11:30 p. m. Hohenzollern was in sight of the Hottelau locks, at the east end of the canal. The immense crowd of people who had assembled on the Hottelau festplatz to witness the spectacle set up a mighty cheer as the imperial yacht entered the locks.

Five minutes later she had steamed up to the locks, which she entered at 12:25. The emperor stood upon the high bridge, beyond the mainmast, attired in the full uniform of an admiral of the German navy, suggesting the well-known picture "With full steam ahead." The bands of the regular and volunteer troops struck up "Heil der Kaiser" which the Kaiser acknowledged by saluting.

Imperial Salute Fired.

At 12:40 all the ships in the bay fired an imperial salute. It was a grand spectacle. On each side of the lock was drawn up a company of the First Foot Guards of Potsdam, with a band, and a company of the Kaiser's Guard. The regiment were lined on the north shore in front of the harbor office, with the marine bands. The admirals and generals stood upon the center ramparts which divides the sections of the lock. Immense crowds kept up continuous cheering as the Hohenzollern passed through and went to her anchorage, followed by the Kaiserlicher. The harbor was teeming with pleasure boats

PROOF AGAINST DEATH.

David Murphy, However, Is at Last Fatally Injured.

Chester, June 20.—Having been run over by a heavily loaded oil barrel wagon and then crushed by a falling wall of a house which was being torn down, David Murphy, of Trainer, lived to be killed in the above accident. Both leg bones were broken and the roof of the mouth split, through which his brains protruded. Dr. Crothers, who attends him, says Murphy cannot recover.

SENT TO A CUBAN PRISON.

Brutal Treatment Accorded the Crew of the Emily Reed, a West India Sugar Vessel.

Philadelphia, June 20.—Six sailors, who were discharged yesterday from the ship Emily Reed, now unloading sugar at the Sparckels sugar refinery in this city, today went before United States Commissioner Craig, claimed American citizenship and etted their late captain, E. W. Simmons, to appear before the commissioner tomorrow against the above-mentioned decision. Simmons engaged at $18 per month, each of them $45 in wages. The sailors, whose names are James Corrie, Peter Jellis, Isaac G. Isaacson, Cornelius O'Brien, Theodore Nelson and Albert Smith, and who were accompanied by Lawyer Joseph Harton and Agent Atkinson, of the Seaman's union, told a story of starvation, overwork and captivity in a Cuban prison.

The men shipped on the Reed from New York April 2 last, for San Pagan, Puerto Rico, engaged at $18 per month. From the beginning of the voyage, the men claim, they were fed on salt beef and decomposed pork, and when San Pagan was reached, on April 27, this was continued. Being compelled to work at loading sugar from 4 a. m. until 8:30 p. m., and the diet not being improved, the seamen rebelled and complained to Captain Simmons. The captain took them before the acting United States consul, who, the sailors say, remained them to jail, where they were chained to a long bar and made to lie upon a stone floor. Twice a day Spanish soldiers would beat them with bayonet and put them to work in the night. The men claim that they were twenty-five days and then when at the loading of the ship had been completed, the half dozen sailors were compelled to sail on the Reed to this port, which was reached on Tuesday.

Seaman O'Brien stated today that yesterday, when he and his companions asked Captain Simmons for their wages, the captain declared that they had forfeited their pay. The commissioner will hear the case tomorrow.

FATE OF FRANK LENZ.

Footloose Bicyclist Was Murdered by Fanatical Kurds.

Washington, June 20.—The first definite information concerning the fate of Frank Lenz, the missing cyclist, who was traveling around the world, was received at the State department today in a cable message from Mr. Terrell, the United States minister to Turkey, dated at Pera, the diplomatic section of Constantinople. Mr. Terrell's dispatch follows:

"British consul at Erzerum informs me that Lenz, the cyclist, was murdered near Dabar by five Kurds, whose names he gives. Arrest and punishment demanded by me at the Sublime Porte, and the co-operation of British consul requested."

On receipt of the message the secretary of state sent telegrams to Mrs. Lenz, the mother of the cyclist, who resides near Pittsburg, Pa., and to the editor of the New York Magazine, for whom Lenz was traveling, giving them information contained in the cablegram.

Frank Lenz was last heard from alive at Tarbiz, in Persia. According to a letter received from him, he had left that place on his wheel in April, 1894, for Erzerum, in Armenia, 200 miles distant, where he intended to have a check cashed. Time passed and nothing was heard from the young man, and in September of last year the state department was asked to endeavor to ascertain his fate. According to one story he had been seen by two Turkish soldiers riding along an Armenian road on his machine and a dispute arose between them as to whether the strange object was man or devil. To settle the controversy they fired at the cyclist and he fell from his wheel. Dabar, the name given in Mr. Terrell's message, does not appear on any maps at the State Department, and it is believed that Deger is the place meant. Deger is about fifty miles east of Erzerum, showing that Lenz had completed most of that stage of his journey when he met his death.

SENSATION AT BUFFALO

Conspiracy to Defraud Insurance Companies Is Uncertified.

PROMINENT BANKERS ACCUSED

Two Brothers Confess That They Were Hired to Burn Buildings Heavily Insured—Wealthy Penn Yan Citizens in Trouble.

Buffalo, June 20.—Disclosure of a sensational character, implicating a trusted bank president and prominent citizens of the interior of the state in a conspiracy to defraud insurance companies by setting fire to a mill house in Penn Yan has been brought to light in connection with a civil action which came up in the United States circuit court here in session in Canandaigua. Morris E. Sheppard, president of the Yates County National bank, a wealthy and influential citizen of Penn Yan, and a prominent politician, is charged with being the chief operator in the alleged fraud, and Charles E. Bush, an extensive merchant of Penn Yan, is alleged to have been a party to the conspiracy. D. C. and Wm. H. Hurlbut, who live in the same village, are also named as defendants in the action. These two brothers confessed to having been hired by banker Sheppard for a consideration of $500 to burn the insured mill house, and are charged in the complaint with having actually set fire to said buildings on Jan. 2, 1894.

The action in question was brought by the Aetna insurance company against the above-named defendants. The suit seeks to recover its share, $14,000, of the insurance money paid on the fire. Five other insurance companies issued insurance, the aggregate amount being $24,700. Similar suits will be begun by Leavitt Joseph Harton and Agent Atkinson, of the Seaman's union, told a story of starvation, overwork and captivity in a Cuban prison.

The men shipped on the Reed from New York April 2 last, for San Pagan, Puerto Rico, engaged at $18 per month.
