BASE BALL.

Yesterday's game lost to Syracuse made only three defeats out of the last seven games played by the Scranton club, a record not possessed by any Eastern league team excepting Springfield, who lost only three games out of twelve at the beginning of the season. By winning one game today the Springfield team will be equalled, and by capturing both games Scranton will hold the best record out of thirteen consecutive games played by any Eastern league team.

Up to two weeks ago each player, excepting the batteries, was filling a comparatively new position. It is within two weeks that the team has made its great spurt, and this fact gives promise of good work in the future. The most hitting well and the only chance for improvement is better team work. The collective playing is not bad by any means; it is better than could be expected of a team really only two weeks old, yet it does not compare favorably with the club's hitting strength. This fact is borne out by the club's victories which have been won by hitting rather than fielding. At all events the Scranton club of today could play the old team to a standstill, and if in next week's series with Wilkes-Barre we fall to win at least two of the four games—well, it will be hard luck and not a poor team that causes such a catastrophe.

On Monday and Tuesday next the Scranton club goes to Wilkes-Barre. Wednesday, July 3, is an open date. On Thursday, July 4, the club will play in this city at 10:30 o'clock, and for the afternoon game in Wilkes-Barre. The Scranton management will conduct an excursion over the Delaware and Hudson road. It is safe to predict that the games in Wilkes-Barre will be attended by a number of Scranton cranks two times greater than attended the last series, when the Alligators took from us five out of six games played. A winning team plays.

The pitching strength of the team, when Luby's split hand heals, should do much toward pushing the percentage upward. The ex-colonel, with Meany, Johnson and Delaney comprise a formidable quartette which will stand favorable comparison with the pitching contingent of any Eastern league. It is, in fact, however, that Delaney in particular and possibly Meany cannot do their best twirling when pitched offener than twice a week. Exactly the opposite applies to Luby and Johnson, who are heavy and phlegmatic, and work better when pitched reasonably often. The team has a considerable contingent of pitchers, and it is hoped that Luby's injured hand will soon permit him to take his regular turn in the box, and thus prevent a possibility of strain upon either Delaney or Meany, and at the same time boost the club along on its upward climb.

President Bitts said last week that the outfield would be rolled as the association could secure for the purpose the city's road roller. Only in three games of the present series at home have the Scranton outfielders been exempt from errors. A total of six errors has been charged against them, only one of which was for a muff. This fact speaks volumes and further comment seems unnecessary.

In mentioning things good and bad, the club's management should not be forgotten. Billy Barnie, who came a stranger to the city and a stranger, except by reputation and recommendation, to the association, has won for himself the absolute confidence of the owners of the club, and in the respect of the game's patrons. Even this little said of a base ball manager means much. But aside from Manager Barnie's professional qualifications he has a genial personality, is industrious and is gifted with a courteous and quiet manner entirely at variance with many in similar semi-public positions.

DIAMOND DUST.

Springfield, June 28.—Springfield-Toronto game postponed; wet grounds.
Providence, R. I., June 28.—Providence-Buffalo game postponed; rain.
Johnson and Meany will pitch for Scranton in today's two games. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock.
Runk says he can take the Indianapolis team and, with himself as pitcher, wipe the New Yorks off the face of the earth.
Meany has had only one chance offered him in right field in the last two games, and that chance was an assist Wednesday.
Pitcher Luedi, of Brooklyn, was given a gold watch in Boston by the printers in the Herald office. He used to be one of them.
Anson made an error after playing eighteen games without a misplay. In sixteen games he failed but once to make a hit.
Wilkes-Barre News Dealer: "Scranton just now appears to be very comfortably fixed in the way of pitching material, provided Luby can show up in as good form as Johnson, Delaney and Meany are doing."

They are to have night baseball games in Cantonment, if the Southern League continues the full length of the season. The plan is to have a great number of are lights on the towers surrounding the park. The plan was recently tried in Nashville with some success.
Wilkes-Barre Record: "Eagan, who used to be up in the front row of scrappers and kickers, has probably decided that it doesn't pay, for he's quiet as a lamb these days—saw's saw and says nothing." This refers to Billy Eagan, of Syracuse, not Pat Eagan, of the Scrantons.
Anson, who is credited with being the most astute of all the league managers, is said to have once inquired where the Cleveland got "that freak" referring to Cy Young, who was then pitching his first game in fast company. Uncle Anse has recently made an offer of $5,000 for Young's release.
Now that Bill Clark is making himself famous with the Giants, the Pittsburgh papers are falling over each other in a wild endeavor to let the public know that Bill was reared in the Smoky City. He played great ball for Scranton and the ## EASTERN LEAGUE.

Yesterday's Results.
Syracuse..... 2 Scranton..... 1
Rochester..... 11 Wilkes-Barre..... 8

By winning from Scranton yesterday Syracuse pulls up to a tie with Providence for third position. Wilkes-Barre goes from third to fourth by losing to Rochester and for the first time in six weeks is next above Scranton. However, the standing of the four clubs following Springfield is so close that their one day's playing can change their positions in any possible combination. This recent record of the three fall-enders indicates that two or more of the leading division will next week begin a ride on the toboggan.

TWO TO ONE.

Gannon, the New Syracuse Twirler, Was a Disasterous Mystery to Scranton's Hitters—Excepting the First Inning, We Put a Splendid Fielding Game.

After yesterday's 9-inning argument with Syracuse, Billy Barnie's Turkish raptures ought to be glad they are living. After falling to shut Syracuse out in the first half of the first inning, in which the visitors scored without even a assist from Gannon, of Syracuse, and Stearns were stricken with stage fright in the Scranton half and ingloriously fanned out with Pete Eagan on second. That was one cause for Scranton's defeat. Another cause was a little round rebble which jumped the ball over Huston's head in the ninth and permitted a scratch two-bagger for which he scored on Simon's single. Another peculiar feature of the run-getting is that Scranton's tally was made on a walk to first, a sacrifice, a balk and a fly-out.

From the beginning of the contest there was a great exhibition of pitching by Gannon, of Syracuse, and Stearns, and Zerkow's field work in nooting the enemy down. After Scranton's half of the third not a runne crossed the plate until the little double jumped the ball over Huston's head in the ninth. Gannon, who was recently secured by Pittsburgh from the Iron and Oil league of the western part of the state and then released, was practically invincible. Released his were as scarce as hens' teeth, the large number of put-outs by Powers and only four by the fielders showing that Gannon had us in a complete strangle. An exception may be made of Pete Eagan, who pushed out a double and a single and sacrificed ones. Delaney was without his usual speed, nor did he have his wonted control of the ball; only the sharp holding behind him kept the game in doubt.

BANNON'S STAR FIELD PLAYING.

Another prominent factor in Scranton's plucky fight with Tommy Bannon in center field, whose eight put-outs do not tell the whole story. He was everywhere and anywhere, and covered more ground in a minute than any player seen in that position on the Scranton grounds this year. He gave an exhibition of rapid and sure throwing in the third, when, with Welch on second and Sweeney on first Simon sent a red whiskered grounder into center. Bannon ran in less than a dozen strides, when he met the ball and sent it like a shot to Rogers, who stopped Welch in time to return the ball to Huston at second, giving Simon a close call. Sweeney reached third on the play. It was pretty work.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Yesterday's National League games result in an advance in position by Pittsburgh and Chicago and a drop by Cleveland. The two former moved from fourth and fifth to third and fourth, Cleveland falling from third to fifth. Boston, Philadelphia Cincinnati and Louisville did not play. Rustie and Clarkson were pitted against each other and pitched equally well in the New York-Baltimore game, but Rustie was not well supported. The Bridgeport and Senators games were over in two innings with three runs as for as three of the visitors at bat. Exactly the opposite is true of Scranton. In one-inning we were moved down in one-two-three order, and only in the second chapter did we have as many as five men facing the pitcher.

GENERAL SPORTS.

Locally and abroad the past week has been one to interest all manner of sporting enthusiasts. Bicyclists, carmen, horsemen, the rig element and the base ball cranks have all had their fill. The trio Soared race on the Hudson Monday, and the Yale-Harvard race yesterday, trotting races in Manhattan and at Philadelphia, the only John J. Mast's 47,000 feet and out Judge-Leonard race, the Zimmerman-Johnson comedy and the Wilkes-Barre and Carbonate bicycle races—all these and much else has transpired to whet the athletic appetite of old and young. Truly, we are a great outdoor people.

YALE WINS EASILY.

Harvard Crew Did Little Better Than Give the New Haven Crew a Practice Spin. Race Was Won by Eleven Open Lengths.

New London, Conn., June 28.—The last and most brilliant jewel in Yale's athletic diadem was placed with true blue setting in the New Haven boys' crew by unwillful Harvard on the Thames late this afternoon. Clean and steady rowing, ably aided by Harvard's adventurous steering, shot the Yale shell down the four mile course from Gales Ferry to the drawbridge, beginning with a superior start continuing with a steadily increasing lead over the entire course, and culminating in a magnificent crossing finish at the four mile stake. Thirty thousand persons witnessed the race.

It was Yale's fourth consecutive victory and her eighth in nine years, and the presence of 200 yards of open water between the shells took the triumph of a keen sportsmanlike rivalry and made it a contest of the highest order. In the past college year, the foot ball, track athletic and crew championships for 1895 now standing to her credit. Today's event closed a year's experiment with Harvard. With the inauguration of the system of practically no coaching, the Harvard crew, under the new aquatic era, was thought to be inaugurated for the crimson.

VERY RAGGED HARVARD.

Today the results of Coach Watson's work were to be put to the test and critically judged. Harvard's exhibition was meritorious. The stroke was slow when it should have been sharp, speedy when it was needless, but ragged occasionally. The coxswain's errors, too, were numerous. Yale was judicious and on no risks. In consequence, however, as won without getting in long range record time, but no chances were taken in winning. Sure, not speedy, as the Yale policy.

Clark, the Yale coxswain, took the "chance" currents on the course like naive New Londoner. He lost hard by the margin of the race, but he gained a strong point for his skill by getting the most out of the ill adventured in the Yale waterway. Rust evinced an affection for the shore. He hugged too closely for comfort, proved hickelater and steered the Harvard over a semi-circular course, not as a powerboat in his vicinity, but enough to lodge encroaching aft.

GREATER THAN '88'S TWO-MILES.

A single record was broken—the two-mile distance in a four-mile competition. The champion '88 crew of Captain Stevenson, covered the distance in 9:35. Today Captain Armstrong's men made it in 10:21. Not a man dropped in either boat after finishing.
