Fortunately they were running slow and only a severe scalp wound resulted. Had the train been making good speed he doubtless would have been killed.

ARCHBALD.

Archibald observed the Fourth of July in old-fashioned style. In the morning a grand parade was held. There was an oration and the reading of the Declaration of Independence and two large plenums gave the pleasure loving element of our population ample amusement. In the morning mass was celebrated in St. Thomas' church by Rev. Dr. Lucas, after which all the Sunday school children, the Catholic societies and the Home company formed in line for parade. Preceded by the East Side band, the column marched down Laurel street to Wayne, thence Main to Sylvan park. On arriving there Rev. T. J. Comerford made a few remarks and introduced James F. McAndrew as presiding officer at the execution which were to follow. Mr. McAndrew made a very eloquent and appropriate address; the East Side band played a selection and P. A. Phillbin read the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Powderly, the orator of the day, then delivered an address, which in its lucidity and interest, it would be difficult to surpass. It was not of the spread-eagle type. It was an address filled with common sense and the broadest and most liberal Americanism. He was generous in praise of the founders of our government and severe in condemnation of those who are blindly endeavoring to subvert the principles on which it is founded. In every respect the address was remarkable, and it was delivered in Mr. Powderly's characteristic style. At its conclusion three hearty cheers were given for the orator. The remainder of the day was spent quietly, yet enjoyably. The picnic of St. Thomas' congregation and of the Young People's society of the German church were both successful and there was nothing to mar the pleasure of those who attended them.

HIP DISEASE

Results from a scrofulous and impure condition of the blood, and it is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla the great blood purifier. The father of a Philadelphia girl writes this: "We gave Hood's Sarsaparilla to our little girl, who had symptoms of hip disease. She could not put her foot down on the floor when we commenced giving her the medicine, but in a short time she was able to get off the couch and to reach her playthings. Since then she has steadily improved, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and her general health is such that could be desired. When any of the other children are not well we give them Hood's Sarsaparilla and we earnestly recommend it to others." E. Barry, 208 Richmond St., Philadelphia.

We deal honorably, frankly and fairly with you and it costs you nothing to consult us. There are some diseases which at certain times no man living can cure, but there are no diseases which cannot be benefited and life prolonged with the right kind of treatment. Dr. Smith has ever made it a life long rule to be honest with his patients. If he says he can cure your trouble he will accomplish it. When invalids hear these cheering words, "I can cure you;" that is if they know him, hope springs into new being within their breasts and from that very instant a change takes place which, as a rule, brings them back to physical as well as mental health and vigor. It is this new birth of hope and confidence in Dr. Smith, an absolute faith in his powers and an absolute belief in his methods which has led hosts of patients to remark, "Well, doctor, I feel a hundred per cent. better for just having had this talk with you." And there is a psychological reason for this statement which is much deeper than any one would suppose. When a patient loses confidence in a doctor, no matter how skilled he may be, that doctor's usefulness ceases. The absolute belief of a patient that he has at last found a doctor who can cure him is worth more to the doctor than all the medicines he is acquainted with. Dr. Smith and staff are permanently located in Scranton, Pa. Their parlors at present are at No. 212 Wyoming avenue. They may be consulted absolutely free of charge from 9 to 5 daily except Sunday. They will remain in Scranton permanently. Should they move their office in the near future notice will be given in all of the daily papers.
