SENATOR QUAY IS HERE

His Arrival Was Not Expected Until This Morning.

MANY CALLERS ARE RECEIVED

Walked from the Depot to the Hotel Where He Informally Received Last Night—Night-Bower and Secretary with Him.

United States Senator M. S. Quay, accompanied by his secretary, W. F. Wright, and chief right hand, Sergeant-at-Arms, R. Harrah, of the state senate, is at the Wyoming house, where he arrived quietly and unheralded at an early hour last evening.

His visit had been anticipated, but he was not expected until this morning. It may account for the absence of Senator Quay's Scranton friends when that distinguished person alighted from the 6.45 train at the Jersey Central depot. He walked to the hotel, where he was greeted by two of his local lieutenants, Major F. E. Penman and City Treasurer Reese G. Brooks.

Phainly and carelessly dressed in a light-weight sack suit of dark brown color, a black bow tie and a straw hat, and without a cane or valise, he attracted no special attention and was apparently unobserved as he passed through the depot along Lackawanna avenue, excepting one person whose identity could not be ascertained.

Secretary Wright first registered the names of Mr. Quay and Sergeant Harrah, as having been "beaver," and then attached his own name and "Washington." To Mr. Quay was assigned two connecting rooms on the first floor and a room each to the two accompanying him.

After not more than a minute's conversation Mr. Quay remarked that he would meet with his friends in the evening. He then went to his room. From 8 until nearly 10 o'clock it became known that the senator was in the city and a number of well-known Republicans called and in each case their call was answered by a request to "come up."

To a Tribune reporter Senator Quay said he had not been in Scranton since the riots of 1877, when he was here with Governor Hartranft. While he was not personally acquainted with the reporters and attractiveness of the city, he remarked, he knew of its rapid strides in wealth, advantages and growth.

NOT A CHARITY HOSPITAL.

Misconception of the New Order at Moses Taylor Hospital. On Saturday last notices were posted about the city announcing that hereafter the Moses Taylor hospital will be open to all patients with the exception of those affected with contagious diseases.

Heretofore the benefits of the institution were confined to sick or injured employees of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company and the Lackawanna Irons and Steel company. Not even the widows or children of the beneficiaries would be received at the hospital or given outside attendance by the hospital corps, as it was against the decree of the charter.

Now, however, the institution is open to all patients who will be received and treated at rates varying from $7 to $20 a week, according to the accommodations desired. This attendance includes board, medicines and all such necessities.

This Williams was wont to have custard pie and rice pudding for dessert, while his fellow boarders had to satisfy themselves with prunes and apple sauce, and it was hinted among the other occupants of the house that Williams never had any trouble in standing off the boarding bills.

MR. JUDGE'S RESOLUTION

THE ROSA ARGUMENT.

Detective Frank Agli's Deposition Before the Three Judges. From Friday the argument for a new trial in the Leonardo Rosa case was continued yesterday morning. Attorney James J. H. Hamilton spoke of the contradictory evidence of the principal witnesses for the commonwealth, and he criticized the charge of Judge Edwards to the jury.

President O'Hara's Remarks. A fervent plea for individual effort in the cause of total abstinence, he said, should offer, properly directed, he said, can sometimes accomplish a great deal, and good example is always more potent than five speeches.

Dr. Connor, of Scranton, told of the injurious effects of over-indulgence in alcoholic stimulants on the human system and urged the use of good statistics and opinions to support his theories. John Kelly, of Carbondale, and Vice-President Timothy McCoy, of Hyde Park, also made brief addresses calculated to encourage the delegates.

At the instigation of Poor Director John Gibbons the poor board convened Saturday evening to take action on the application of the members of the stranded Laurel Hill Park Opera company for transportation to their homes. INVENTOR OF A FAUCET.

What Christ Von Schilling Claims for His New Idea. Christ Von Schilling, a graduate of the pyrotechnic school at Berlin, who is now a resident of this city, has invented a faucet which is said to be an improvement on anything now in use.

It obstructs the pressure of gas arising from porter and other beverages of a similar nature and prevents the bursting of the button of spigots and the consequent leakage. Pillsbury's Flour Mills have a capacity of 21,000 barrels a day.
