NEWS OF THE SUBURBS

IMAGINARY TRIP TO EUROPE

Marriage of Peter Saltry and Miss Ada Smith in Holy Rosary Church—T. P. Letchworth Sues the Borough of Dunmore for Damages.

SOUTH SIDE.

Bookkeeper Joseph H. Davis, of the Lackawanna Knitting mills, tells a story that he is willing to pin his reputation on. He says that not very long ago a number of sparrows were pecking tiny morsels of food on the ground near the rear wall of the mills, when suddenly and without warning a large rat, as ugly looking a rodent as any that ever proceeded after the famous Field Pipe of Hamelin, came forth from the bottom of the foundation, sprang into the midst of the birds, seized one in its teeth, and prepared to dart back to its lair with the prey.

There were upwards of two dozen birds in the fight for the emancipation of their hickory playmate; the rat fought with desperation, but never let go of the captive. Finally, in the efforts to liberate the bird from the fangs of the rat, the shipping creature was torn from limb to limb. The other birds then gave up the fight and withdrew from the battleground. The rat retired and died, and Mr. Davis states, that the birds remained around the mills all day, as if in appreciation of the captive who returned and greeted them.

CHANGES AT COURT HOUSE

Will Be Necessary to Paraphrase Modifications for Superior Court.

TO FIT UP THE THIRD STORY

By Moving the District Attorney's and Grand Jury Room Up One Floor Another Court Room Can Be Secured.

County Commissioners Giles Roberts, S. W. Roberts and John Demuth are now considering how they can make suitable accommodations in the court house for the superior court, which will meet in this city.

It has been decided that a new court room will be necessary, and to secure it many changes will have to be made in the upper floors of the building.

Plans for these changes have not been prepared, but it is probable that they soon will be. The only space on the second floor of the building available for court rooms and provisions for the suite of offices at the northwest corner of the building used by the district attorney and the grand jury.

By removing the partitions and converting the space between the corridor and the side wall of the building into one room a fair sized court room would be secured. Adjoining the grand jury room is a large jury room supplied with cots for juries that have to remain together over night.

Proposed by the Library Association. This room has been promised to the Bar association for library purposes, and it is probable that the association will soon ask for it as the present library room is becoming too small.

This third floor of the building was not finished when the building was constructed with the exception of one room which is used by the Lackawanna Institute of History and Science, which has a large collection of books and relics of the early days of the valley stored there.

The institute has not had a meeting for some time and the room is rarely visited. Officers of the institute will meet with the county commissioners today and arrangements will probably be made by which the effects of the organization will be moved to some other place.

Will Fit Up the Third Floor. A portion of the third floor in the north end of the building will then be fitted up for the grand jury and the district attorney, and provisions will be made for several jury rooms. That is the plan that now finds most favor with the county commissioners, and the one that will probably be adopted.

MAY CHANGE LOCATION.

Proposition to Sell Penn Avenue Church Property Has Been Discussed.

At a meeting of a number of the men of the Penn Avenue Baptist church held a few nights ago the proposition to sell the church property on Penn avenue was discussed in an informal way. No official action was taken, but it was decided that if a reasonable offer for the building and ground could be secured it would be well to sell and purchase another site more removed from the business part of the city and closer to the majority of the membership.

If a sale is affected it is likely that a site south of Vine street and west of Jefferson avenue would be decided upon. There has also been some talk of dividing the membership of the church and erecting another building in the vicinity of Monroe street to accommodate the Baptists of that rapidly growing portion of the city.

The officers of the church are of the opinion that it is to a certain extent handicapped by the present location and that better results would be obtained if it was on some street not so entirely devoted to business as Penn avenue.
