"Short? Well, the idea of such a thing! Why, the skirt comes two inches below the knee—and I wear—trunks and stockings! But, madam, I persisted, you are saying a good deal more than I, as a physician, can. I don't think she will survive the day."

"I turned to me and said, with a little laugh: 'Doctor, you physicians surely cannot pretend to know all things.'"

"Her indifference to such a serious question aggravated me, so saying I would call again in the evening, at the same time again telling her that I expected she would be dying by the time I left. Well, I called again that evening."
