OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Semi-Annual Inspection Held on the River Common Before a Crowd. At the semi-annual inspection of the Wilkes-Barre fire department on Saturday the entire fighting outfit was out, on Saturday night, Mr. Errick, of Edengines and carts being as clean ward-ville, drove close up to the crowd, and bright as polish could make them. The inspection was conducted by Chief Ambrose Constine and Assistant Chiefs George A. St. John and George Stegmaler. The fire department committee of the council, consisting of Robert Williams, chairman, and Measus, Meyer. Wright, Carpenter and Kirkendall, wore also present, as was President Harvey and several other members of council. The fire department is in excellent condition and is among the best in the state. Numerically, it consists of about ndred men, seventeen of whom one In are under salary and the remainder are paid 50 cents per hour for actual ser-

The engines are in the best condition possible, and the carriages, all save one, rfectly satisfactory.

The department is supplied with about 11,000 feet of hose, all of which was ested. The greater part of it is in good condition and the defective portions, consisting of 1,500 feet, will be ed with new.

The uniforms of the men are not all as good as desired, but the committee will have the poor ones replaced with the latest and best within a few weeks. a pretry bleb near Barre is trotting at The water supply is all that is neces-

Many travelers who manage to keep well and on deck during the day pass very qualmish and uncomfortable nights when shut away down below deprived of air. All such will derive great comfort from this use of the salts in their state-room.

Don't Eat Too Much.

A great mistake and one from which delicate travelers suffer frequently is the ignorant conviction of many well meaning persons that the continual pouring of tea, soup and the like down the unlucky throats of those who are seasick will improve their condition or essen their misery. Nothing can be further from the truth or further from real kindness. Except in the stage of ecovery, when the patient begins to eel an appetite once more, food, and particularly liquid food, should be wolded.

One experienced traveler, who suffers from the "sorrows of the sea," always goes immediately to bed upon going aboard. This is a wise precaution, be cause usually the work of packing and preparing for the voyage has produced pervousness and fatigue, the two mos actively predisposing causes of mal de mer.
