SCRANTON, JULY 16, 1895.

The Liberal party in England, like the Quays phalanx in Lackawanna, appears to be suffering from a painful paucity of votes.

To First District Republicans.

The Republicans of the First Legislative district are noted throughout this section as being great admirers of fair play. This is not fulsome compliment. It is incontestable fact. In the main, they are men who have made their own way in life, and therefore appreciate the justice of giving others a reasonable chance in politics.

Two months ago, we were all Quays in this county; that is, we all admired the senator and took pleasure in aiding him. Then came Judge Willard's appointment from Governor Hastings, given absolutely without conditions.

The chances are that if Joe were home his paper would do considerably less business than it is now doing. He is too experienced a campaigner to fall back on the baby role.

The Whiner in Politics.

A queer creature is the whiner; and particularly queer is the political whiner. The political whiner is the kind of man who, when victorious, swells out into the proportions of a tyrannical and overbearing boss.

Correcting a Contemporary.

Mr. Magee's Pittsburgh organ contends with a good deal of spirit that Governor Hastings is not making this campaign for the empty honor of presiding over a state convention.

Discipline, Not Overthrow, the Aim.

Our esteemed independent contemporary, the Truth, thinks it "is somewhat difficult to realize that all this activity is for the purpose of detroning from power one of the greatest politicians this country has produced.

His Request Should Be Denied.

Wilkes-Barre Record: "In a free government no man ought to have the power that has been possessed by Senator Quay in public affairs.

Advices from Luzerne all indicate that the Republicans will send a solid Rice and Hastings delegation to the state convention from that county.

Philadelphia advices are to the effect that Senator Quay has, in private conversation, virtually conceded that unless some new contingency shall arise to frustrate his hopes, he will be defeated by Aug. 23. It is doubtful if such a contingency will arise.

It will be in order before August 23, to use more aggressive measures. No, no, Mr. Magee; the issue is not Quay vs. Gilkeson.

The Philadelphia Inquirer is an excellent newspaper that has done valiant service for Senator Quay, but it commits a tactical mistake when it tries to comment upon affairs in this county of which it is woefully ignorant.

Is There No Redress?

It is becoming a serious question with thinking men in the anthracite coal trade whether there ought not to be legal means of preventing a debt-ridden and bankrupt institution like the Reading railroad from pursuing its obstinate, obstructive tactics.

No Compromise Now.

There are some things that cannot be compromised. One of these things is party principle. The idea that the present political contest in this state, which has stirred the commonwealth from center to circumference, setting brother against brother and friend against friend, has no basis of principle justifying such a sweeping disruption of past harmony, obtained only while the real issue was obscured.

What the Scranton Baseball Club Needs is a New Brand of Luck.

When the time shall come for the selection of a capable and eligible successor to State Chairman Gilkeson, one who will be thoroughly acceptable to the party at large, and who will honor the position by an impartial, fearless and effective discharge of its onerous duties, the party will doubtless know where to find such a man.

The Results in Lackawanna.

Philadelphia Press: "The election of delegates in the Second and Fourth districts of Lackawanna is the first real trial of strength since the present contest in this county has fully developed.

What the Elections Show.

Pittsburgh Times: "Since Senator Quay began his front on State Chairman Gilkeson and the Hastings administration, without provocation or warning until his deluge of personal attacks by letter and through a well organized and subsidized array of newspapers, just three primary elections have been held in Pennsylvania.

him inside the traces of prudent and sagacious party generalship or those who, like the Truth, would urge him onward to flagrant affronts to the people.

There are signs that the Quay coon is getting ready to come down. It would be singular indeed if the gun which brought Billy Craig down should fail to ruffle the feathers of the Honorable Herring.

COMMENT OF THE PRESS.

The Fight's Local Significance.

Scranton Times: "This battle was for the future leadership of the Republican party in Lackawanna. It was precipitated by the action of Mr. Connelley, who had made a characteristic move to recover himself. The challenge was thrown down by the columns of the Republican, Mr. Scranton made a fierce attack upon Governor Hastings, and indirectly upon Judge Willard.

Should Confess Himself Licked.

Wilkes-Barre Record: "Quay's defeat in Lackawanna is but a foretaste of what awaits him in other portions of the state if he persists in carrying out the bossdom. As the aggressor it is his duty, if he cares anything for party unity, to abdicate his claim as absolute monarch of this state."

On the Right Side.

Wilkes-Barre News-Dealer: "William Connelley and his allies are too strong for the friends of Judge Willard and Hastings to cope with. One thing that gives them strong prestige with the thinking voters is that they are on the side of right and fair play."
