United States for the year 1894, but it gives United States for the year 1894, but it gives a review of the coal mining industry for years before. As usual, the statistics relating to Pennsylvania anthracite are the work of John H. Jones and William W. R. Ruley, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Parker also makes acknowledgment to A. S. Bolles, chief of the bureau of industrial statistics of Pennsylvania, for information as to bituminous coal as well as to tion as to bituminous coal as well as to secretaries of boards of trade and others at the important trade centers and shipping orts. Mr. Parker says that the entire area of workable coal in all the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania does not exceed four hundred and eighty square miles. Out of this there has been shipped since 1820 906,013,403 long tons, an average of 12,-080,179 long tons per year, and of 1,887,528 tons for each square mile. The amount asumed at the collieries and sold to lo cal trade would average not less than 10 per cent of the shipments, and thus the enormous production of about one billion long tons is shown. In speaking of the output of bituminous coal Mr. Parker eays: "The Appalachian field, while no the largest in area, is by far the most im-portant, furnishing about two-thirds of all the bituminous output. The field exends from the northern part of Pennsyl
