LESSON ON PATRIOTISM

HORTON'S BULLETIN, Expounded by Rev. G. L. Maice to the Sons of America.

EXAMPLE OF CENTURIES AGO

Present Day May Be Compared to David's Relations to Judea-Evils Which Threaten Patriotism in the United States-Ideas Foreign to America.

One of the best patriotic sermon-addresses of the year was that delivered last night to Washington Camp, No. 342, Patriotic Order Sons of America, in the United Evangelical church, on Capouse avenue, by the pastor, Rev. G. L. Maice.

From the relations of Israel to Palestine he drew an apt and interesting comparison, applying to that time of long ago certain conditions in our own country during the present day. His remarks were from Psalms, xvi, 6: "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly her-

The text is from the words of a king The text is from the words of a king, a patriot and a Christian. Hence David was pre-eminently qualified to use so energetic language, expressive of his state in life and which reflected the experience of every Israelite who, as a people, were the most illustrious of all nations. But however significant these words are, as figurative lof Israel's glory in King David's time, they are none the less applicable to us as a people whose national diberties and freedom are no less sacred than the natural and spiritual resources of Cafreedom are no less sacred than the natural and spiritual resources of Ca-

David's Language Considered. Our highest conception of David's our ingrest conception of Paville language is by way of comparison. In our imagination let us go back over the pages of history and behold the state of Israel 1240 years before David's time, when their lives were made grievous by a heartless tyrant and the servitude of their Egyptian taskmasters. Look at And Always Have their forty years in the wilderness of Arabia, their conquests with the heathen nations. It took many years of hardships, discipline and suffering to prepare them to rightly appreciate the worth of this heritage. And in view of all this, and that they were now in undisputed possession of a land whose undisputed possess equal was not known for productive-ness, and under a system of civil and religious government far superior to that of surrounding nations, David as their king and of the tribe of Judah. the only tribe that had not lost its identity until "Shiloh come," might well exlaim, "Mine is a goodly heritage."

The Bible student never tires perusing that part of sacred history that relates to Israel's glory and prosperity. But that is only part of Israel's history. There is another phase, though not in-dicated in the text but necessarily a part of this introduction: Solomon declares that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." When we acquaint ourselves with God's law, and upon which was B. A. This was a positive command of God. But in violation of this as the first step to their downfail, they were no less guilty of the second, "Thou shalt make no covenant with them, neither shalt thou make marriages with them." well hope the future safety of our republic.

Our danger lies not so much in this that hitherto our doors were open to our foreign neighbors (although the time has come when we need to discriminate), but in our conforming to ideas that are foreign to American principles. There is an element comping to our shores that has a reversated. ing to our shores that has a perverted conception of our national liberty, and whose influence is demoralizing.
Your first duty as Sons of America

s to emulate the noble principles of our departed heroes, and to perpetuate their achievements. "Coming events cast their shadow before them." Washington must have foreseen the dangers to which we are exposed when with a prophetic eye he looked down the vista of the ages and said; "Beware of foreign influence."

We have evils in our land today that are far deadlier and more shameful than slavery ever was. Look at the

than slavery ever was. Look at the powers of intemperance, socialism and anarchy, robbing us of the sanctity of the Christian Sabbath, tramping under foot our laws, and seeking to overthrow our free institutions.

In a Garman paper called the Freiheit a few years ago, under an article entitled "Fruits of Fatth in God," appeared this biasphemous expression: "Religion, authority and the state are all chips from the same block; to the devil with them all." It was the New York Freeman's Journal that said, in speaking of our public schools: "They came from the devil, and to the devil they must go."

But the basest of all evils and that which has already corrupted the poli-tics of our land, and ruined the boy of many a mother's love, is that hydra-headed monster, intemperance, and for whose destruction and crime not a few praying church deacons and elders are responsible. I am no pessimist, but I responsible. I am no pessimist, but am fearless in saying that unless thes evils are speedily arrested, our chil-dren will wade deeper seas of blood than our fathers ever did, or else be than our fathers ever did, or else be under the band and tyranny equal to that of the dark and middle ages.

Arouse, ye Sons of America, in your country's defense! Don't let the ensign of liberty be brought into disrepute; stand by the laws that make tyranny tremble, and don't sell your American birthright to any foreign power for a mess of pottage! Let the Patriotic Order Sons of America be a picket line, every camp a picket-post, and every member on duty to jealously guard our American principles and inguard our American principles and in

More Than One Evil.

But don't waste all your ammunition in fighting only one evil, and in defens of but one principle at the expense of another. The first basis and sure de submission to His word and reverence for his institutions. With these we rise or fall, regardless of all our literary at-

The means for our country's defense are not the musket and bayonet only. Solomon says: "Wisdom is better than weapons of war," and Paul, the great missionary warrior, says: "For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." Cultivate the American spirit and teach American principles. This should begin at the breast of American mothers. In them lies the possibility of making their sons lies the possibility of making their sons malefactors or benefactors.

Next in the public schools, the bulwarks of American citizenship, and last but not least, keep burning the fire of patriotism. This is the chord that binds ond holds together every other principle. It is the web and woof of our national life. For in the language of the importal Scott. the immortal Scott: Breathes there a man with soul so dead "This is my own, my native land"

Love is the one and chief element of patriotism; and love is a divine prin-ciple. It is said a man will die for the object of his love. But what is better is to live for an noble object. Hence the argument that we can best be pa triotic when we have divine convictions of right and then moved to act out those convictions by the love of God. Patriotism does not destroy Christianity, but is a part of it. Neither does Christianity destroy patriotism, but develops and sanctifies it. O for
