SCRANTON, JULY 31, 1895.

It is to be assumed that Senator Quay has heard from Bucks.

Will They Ratify the Bargain? The Susquehanna county traders who bargained with Senator Quay for the delivery of the two delegates to the Republican state convention are now appealing to the honest Republicans of that county to ratify the corrupt bargain at the primaries to be held on Saturday.

The question which now confronts the Republican voters of Susquehanna county is: Will they, on Saturday, ratify this infamous bargain of the state delegates?

Recognizing the Truth. The Wilkes-Barre Times looks at the Reading system's present attitude toward the anthracite trade with a much clearer vision than is possessed by its contemporary, the Record.

Talking of Compromises. The kind mention of Colonel Waters' name, made by prominent Republicans throughout the commonwealth, in connection with suggestions of a compromise of the present state political fight, will be appreciated by our distinguished townsman's many friends.

Why is the ordinarily clear-headed Record in this one instance so oblique to the real facts?

stance, even though it would bring to the front so brilliant and adroit a politician as the ex-lieutenant governor, is not to be thought of. The war begun without cause by Senator Quay upon public and party servants holding commissions from the people more emphatic than any ever held by him, can end only in one way, and that way is the way to utter defeat.

"A Remarkable Disclosure." The Philadelphia Press yesterday printed a remarkable story, the reading of which must inevitably cause a revision of feeling among Republicans hitherto friendly to Senator Quay.

By a slip of the pen in yesterday's issue, we spoke of the Third district primary election occurring on Friday, when we should have said "next Saturday." Fortunately the official call, published in an adjacent column, neutralized the mistake.

MR. MAGEE TALKS. Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—To a staff correspondent of the Washington Star who is reporting the Pennsylvania political fight, C. L. Magee said last week: "This contest with Mr. Quay was not precipitated by those who are now opposing him."

"Then you maintain that Senator Quay was the aggressor in this fight?" "Why, certainly. At a time of profound peace and unexampled prosperity in the Republican party he intruded himself as a bone of contention to produce factional fection. No disturbance to the party would have occurred had he kept out."

Why is the ordinarily clear-headed Record in this one instance so oblique to the real facts? As a friend of Pennsylvania's junior senator, we sincerely hope he can survive his recent mistakes.

a narrow machine organ. The Tribune is a newspaper, an exponent of Republican principles, and the defender of the rights of the Republican masses. Its sphere of action is not limited to Scranton or Lackawanna county, or North-eastern Pennsylvania, for that matter. The Republican can continue to plod along in its narrow track; The Tribune covers a larger sphere of action.

Reverent to His Critics. At a matter of cold fact, Police Commissioner Roosevelt has his critics well on the hip when he says: "If it is right to violate this excise law because a large number of people want to violate it, then it is right to violate any law for the same reason. If it is right for the poor man or for any other man to violate the law in order to get beer on Sundays, then it is right for him to violate the law in order to get bread on any other day. It is more important for him to get food than it is for him to get drink and there is much more to be said in favor of the relaxing of the law for the sake of the hungry thief who would steal bread than there is to be said in favor of the man who is not hungry at all, but who chooses to spend on liquor the money he ought to keep for his wife and children. The people who have clamored for honesty in the police department would do well to remember that the connivance of the police in the old-time illegal selling of liquor was the most fruitful source of corruption that there was in the police department."

become more and more of a political dictator. His candidacy for the chairmanship of the state committee simply made an issue where the people can meet him and overthrow his political despotism. He has insisted upon being chairman and thereby forced the issue upon those who have grown tired of his methods.

Such is the plain English of a political dictator. His candidacy for the chairmanship of the state committee simply made an issue where the people can meet him and overthrow his political despotism. He has insisted upon being chairman and thereby forced the issue upon those who have grown tired of his methods.
