A CRAVITY WRECK.

The of Lights at No. 2.

It was reported in this city yesterday that a dissertous wreck had occurred at No. 2. We that one man had been stilled and man had been stilled an really affair, however, was greatly affair, however, was greatly affair, however, was greatly of Birkett avenue, was the only person hurt, and his injuries person hurt, and his injuries person further than the second before the wreck occurred. He is employed as a brakeman on the gravity, and is one of the oldest and most trusted employes in the service of the company. How the accident happened nobody knows but himself. He was picked up by Conduc-He was picked up by Conducpassenger train near bond, and he must from the train at He was taken to the Lincoln avenue station, where the Del-awar and Hudson ambulance removed him to Emergency hospital. The doc-tor who has charge of the case, on examination of his injuries, found that the injured man had received a terrible d, but thinks that the skull

ed. He was also bruised

Mr. Pengally was on the last car of the train of four coaches when it left Farview, and the train proceeded to this city. Christopher Schultz, of Park street, another trusted employe of the company, was head brakeman of the train. The train was running at the usual rate of speed and when it reached the cut in the vicinity of White's crossing. Mr. Schultz was heartified to see ing. Mr. Schultz was horrifled to see a train of cars on the track ahead. He applied the brakes and signalied to Mr. Pengally to do likewise; he noticed that the cars did not slow up very much and clanced back toward the last car. He cay that Mr. Pengally was not there and he went back to the next car and put on the brakes, but it was of no avail, the collision could not be avoided. The next instant the crash came. Two coal cars were overturned and the first ger car was badly wrecked. There were only about one dozen passengers on the train, and, with the exception of a shaking up, they escaped harmed. This is the first wreck that has ever occurred on the Gravity road during the picnic season. The company has always handled the large crowds without accident. But for the injury to the brakeman the wreck would not been easily stopped if he was in his position on the last car.

HIS MODESTY.

Walter Wellman's Washington Letter. A good story is told here about a Demo-cratic congressman who, in the fifty-first or Reed congress, had a good deal to say, hough he was not much encouraged by instign he was not made a now for some unknown reason compelled to live in the retirement of private station. When Tom Reed was carrying everything before him, counting quorums and silencing the fierc-est of the opposition as if he liked that est of the opposition as it he liked that sort of amusement, this congressman became very much excited. In the cloak-room one day he addressed Crisp, Mills, McMillan and a lot of leaders on that side of the house as follows: "I'll fell you what we have to do. This thing must be storned. We must opening an assault. topped. We must organize an assault. Four or five of the strongest, ablest, most forcible and eloquent men on our side must attack Reed one after another. And The same gentleman, who was endowed with the sort of conceit which gave him many hours of unclouded happiness, was called upon at a dinner given in honor of the completion of the monument to the late Senator Shields to make a few remarks. He talked for a long time, the most striking feature of his discourse being the following: "It was a fortunate thing that I occupied a seat in the house, I was I who introduced the bill making appropriation for this status. When God in His infinite wisdom made me a member of congress He secured the erection of this noble monument." The same gentleman, who was endowed

EATING CROW.

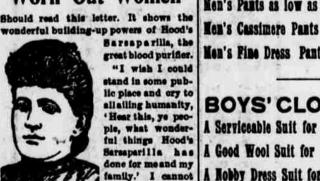

In this country "eating crow" is a practice confined to unsuccessful politicians but it appears that in the guise of ploves these blackbirds have been eagerly voured by epicures in Germany. ago, plover being unusually scarce in the woods around Wittenberg, where each spring thousands of those delicious birds are snared for the gormets in the large cities, a speculative dealer hit upon the plan of trying young crows as a substi-tute. It was found that crow when young, inexperienced and well-fed, is a dainty morsel, the flesh white and tender and of fine flavor. During the last weeks this dealer and others who followed in his wake had been supplying hotel and pri-vate tables in Berlin and elsewhere with young crows under the name of plover and nobody found out the difference until sebody told the secret.

ECZEMA

That Distressing Skin Discase

Eczema is one of the most distressing and annoying of the many so-called skin diseases, and a great many people are afflicted with this complaint that really do not know what their trouble is ant to think it something triffing thus will disappear in a short time, an little attention to it, until by its annoyance it develops the fact that it is ther to stay until driven out or eured; but that sometimes is not so easily done, so the following case will show: Mrs. C. Webber, a lady aged 47 years, had en-joyed good health up to two years ago ast winter. She commenced to complain of not feeling well, felt tired and slumpish all the time, had no ambition to do anything. It required a great fort on her part to do the lightest kind of work, would have severe headaches could eat but very little, then would be sick at the stomach. Such feelings kept up for about three weeks, when she commenced to experience an itching ensation on her arms and lower limbs. Then she commenced to break out with eruptions or vesicals containing a yellow, watery secretion. The skin felt sore and chafed, and at times would itch so as to almost set her wild. She commenced to take blood remedles and patent medicines of different kinds, but kept getting worse. She gave up taking those medicines and went to her family physician. He told her it was bad case of eczema. He treated her for some six months, with no good results. He finally told her to consult some good specialist, as he had done his best. She came to Dr. F. B. Smith and stated her case from beginning to that date. She was satisfied with the terms and conditions under which Dr. Smith agreed to take her case, and commenced at once to take treatments of Dr. Smith and staff, and in three months' time was completely cured, and is today a well and happy woman. Dr. Smith and staff are located at 505 Linden st., opposite the court house, where they can be consulted free daily from 9 to 5, except Sundays, Tuesdays
