NINERS' NARROW ESCAPE

Fight Their Way Through Flames and Stifling Smoke.

FOURTEEN MULES SUPPOCATED

Pump Runner Gives the Alarm and Bo comes Unconscious-Sturges' Shaft, in Peckville, the Scene of a Fierce Fire - Thrilling Experience.

Soon after the night shift went to work in the Sturges shaft of the New York and Scranton Coal company at Peckville, last night, fire broke out in the pump house, and the fourteen miners who constitute the shift were only saved by the bravery of the pumprunner, Edward Williams.

Fourteen mules suffered the fate that might have been the lot of the miners had they not received the timely warning that they did.

Williams, who was badly burned about the face and suffering a partial collapse from the effects of the smoke and the excitement and exertion which he underwent, was in a semi-conscious condition up to the time of this writing, and the story of the origin of the fire could not be fully learned. It appears, however, that the fire was started by an electric light wire, and that upon discovering it Williams attempted to extinguish it unaided, he being the only person at the foot of the shaft at the Dashed Through Smoke and Flame.

Finding that his efforts would prove futile he made a dash through the smoke and flames to open the mule barn door, which adjoined the pump house, but he was driven back by the fire, and, with his face badly burned, he turned his attention to the men who were working at a distance of about half a mile or 3,500 feet from the foot of the shaft, and on the opposite side from the fire.

Frank James, a driver, and Charles Rowles, a leader, were together in the main gangway when they saw a light advancing rapidly toward them, and a moment later heard the startling cry disappeared. Rushing to the spot they discovered the pump runner where he had fallen, his lamp extinguished by the fail and he unconscious stretched out across the truck.

Picking up the senseless form between them they hastened to alarm the in various chambers. When all had cution was issued on it by Prothonotary been given the alarm they banded tosmoke grew dense as they advanced and by the time they reached the carriage it was stifling. They were quickly raised to the surface through the dense volume of smoke that poured Francis E. Ehrgood, of Dunmore, wishes through the shaft, which was a veritat stated that he is not the Ehrgood who ble chimney for the blazing furnace bety, but almost suffocated. Blue Ridge Gave the Alarm

During the time that the engineer of the Sturges' shaft was engaged in hoisting the men, the engineer at the Blue Ridge colliery, seeing the smoke issuing from the Sturges, and having heard no alarm, sounded the breaker ware, Lackawanna and Western train, gong, which soon brought the whole settlement to the mouth of the shaft. The mine ambulance was hurriedly prebearers. H. C. Shafer and Joseph Jermyn pared and doctors dispatched for. None of the men needed particular attention with the exception of Williams, whose case was found to be very serious. He was conveyed to his home, in Peckville, and at last reports was no better. He was in a state of utter/collapse and It is thought, however, that he will ultimately recover.

Superintendent Henry Chapman was among the first on the scene. He imfire, and with the co-operation of In- the torrents. side Superintendent Sab Williams, of the Blue Ridge, organized a gang to attack the fire by way of the air shaft. Matt Walker, George Mowles, Nerron Williams, James Davy and Moses Howells volunteered to accompany the two superintendents. By stopping the fan when the men reached the bottom the air course was changed and they were enabled to approach the fire with the current at their backs. The Wilson Hose company, of Peckville, which had responded to the alarm, let their hose down the shaft and soon a strong force of water was being thrown on the fire, which had now become double flerce, as the grainary adjoining the pump house had also taken fire.

Fire Under Control.

10 o'clock the men came to the surface and announced that they had prevented the fire from communicating to the coal. The barn also escaped destruction, but the fourteen mules were found suffocated. They were dead before the fire-fighters reached the place. Williams, the lajured man, was married only last Wednesday. His father, and Williams, is a cripple, having received a permanent injury to his back a number of years ago in a mine accident.

J. Schubmehl, of the Olyphant Gazette. Through Attorneys Joseph P. O'Brien and John P. was printed on the fourth page of the Gazette in its issue of Feb. 16 hast, and was headed "Smash the Dickson Ring." It starts out with the following paragraph: "Like New York city before last fall's election. Dickson City is now, and for years has been, grasped in the tentacles of a huge octupus receiving strength and support from a coterie of ring boodlers, who have been bleeding the public treasury of the public funds in almost every manner known to politicians. But it is pleasing to note that this year the electors of the borough propose to make a desperate effort to overthrow this techerous gang."

The article goes on to charge the plaintiff with divers offenses, among them being one of misappropriating public funds to the amount of $1,500 per year; also, of being concerned as a publie officer of the borough in granting a concract for the maintenance of twenty electric lights for street purposes, at the rate of $75 each annually, and the lights have not been in operation more than She deposed that Penny accosted her half of the period of darkness.

BETTING ON THE FIGHTS.

Sporting Men Confident the Pugillation Carnival Will Come Off.

Governor Culberson's edict adverse to pugilistic encounters in the state of Texas does not seem to have had much effect on the sports who take a deep interest in pugilism, says a New York dispatch to the Philadelphia Inquirer. They all believe implicitly in Dan Stewart's ability to bring off the big fight at Dallas, Tex.

As "side shows" the O'Donnell and Maher and Ryan-Smith fights have also engaged the interest of the sporting fraternity. In the up-town hotels the lovers of pugilism, who never lose an opportunity of making a wager on a sporting event, gathered and discussed the possibility of Stewart's scheme coming out on top. Word was received from New Orleans that pools had been established in New Orleans, Hot Springs, Galveston, Jacksonville, Atlanta, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Cheinnati, Richmond, San Francisco, Denver, St. Paul, Kansas City, El Paso, Chattanooga, Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo, Co-lumbus, Indianapolis, Boston and New York, where the following odds can be 400 to 600 against Corbett. 500 to 400 against Fitsimmons.

700 to 800 against Maher. 600 to 700 against O'Donnell.

400 to 500 against Ryan.

500 to 600 against Smith. Combination betting—Five hundred to 100 Corbett to win and pick the other two winners; 800 to 100 Fitzsimmons to win and pick the other two winners. The backers of the book are so confident that Governor Culberson's recent proclamation will not hold water in the state of Texas.

In sporting circles tonight the majority of those who are on the "inside" expressed themselves as being perfectly satisfied that Stewart knew his business and Dallas would get the fights.

SAILS MADE OF PAPER.

From Information.
Yachtsmen, appreciating the value of a big spreading sail in going before the wind, felt the need of a material that will big spreading sail in going before the wind, felt the need of a material that will permit the sail to increase quickly in area and in propulsive power in proportion to the force of the wind. Experiments recently made with rubber sails, under the direction of the Herreshoffs, the boatbuilders of Bristol, proved that the sails expanded too much and proved unmanageable. Paper stock was then tried with success, it proving light, air-tight, durable and elastic. Sails made on this new plan are not woven from strands or threads, but are made up from compressed sheets, these being cemented and riveted together in such a way as to form a smooth and strong union. The first process of manufacturing consists in preparing the pulp in the regular way, to a ton of which is added one pound of bichloride of potash, twenty-five pounds of giue, thirty-two pounds of alum, one and one-half pounds of soluble glass, and forty pounds of prime tallow, these ingredients being thoroughly mixed with the pulp. Next the pulp is made into sheets by regulgr paper-making machinery, and two sheets are pressed together with a glutinous compound between.

THE SYSTEM IS WRONG.

Princeton's Training Methods Failed of the Chief Aim-Men Weakened by In-Juries and Excess of Work-Underg adantes to Take Decisive Steps. The last year has been the most disastrous of any in the athletic annals of Princeton, says a special dispatch to the Chicago Record. In every field, and in every effort, the supporters of the orange and black were unsuccessful, and now, after the excitement of the last few games has subsided, the undergraduates are busy assigning causes for their defeats. The gentiment that the cause, whatever it may be, must be eradicated has found frequent expression from all during the last few months. Various causes have been suggested, the most reasonable being a system of training too severe in theory and worse than no system in practice. With the notable exception of the championship eleven of 1893, the teams have for four years entered the contests crippled and weakened by months of work much more severe than that undergone by the strongest professionals.

As regards management, it has often been said "on the inside of the quadrangle" that in the elections the spirit of loyality to college has given away to love for club, and this has been too well proven in the last few years, when the fittest and most deserving were pushed aside for one whose only qualification was that of belonging to the club having the largest number of men on the team

A review of the teams and their work this season will readily show that the training system has not only failed in its chief aim, that of strengthening the nen, but has materially weakened the team by injuries and an excess of work. In September the season opened with the championship team of 1893, with two exceptions, working on the gridiron with a snap and vim which augured well for a repetition of their former victory. Week by week the veterans tried and true were injured or incapacitated, until when the Tigers met Pennsylvania but four of the men were in condition to play and three left their beds to enter the game. The fallacy of such a training system is only too obvious when the very means employed for attaining success becomes the chief destroying factor.

In track athletics and base ball the mistakes of training were as flagrant door exhibition in February were superior to those of the Harvard team and equal to those of Yale at that time. However, six weeks of training resulted in crippling the two most valuable men. Kumler and Susk, and weakening the entire team, while mismanagement lost Can Goodman and several of the best men. Financially speaking, the season was dismal failure.
