While working about the hoisting carriage yesterday morning in the Pine Brook shaft, Martin Cunningham missed his footing when the carriage was raised fifteen feet from the bottom; he fell head down from the shaft to the sump and struck on his head and shoulders.

Those working with him expected to find him dead at the bottom, but he did not suffer beyond several painful scalp wounds. He is 35 years of age and lives on the South Side. His injuries will not confine him to the hospital longer than three weeks.

SOUTH SIDE.

Young Kellerman, who was reported in the Tribune yesterday as having been concerned in a drunken episode at George Fuch's hotel, and was alleged to have brandished a revolver, yesterday entered a complete denial as to the truth of the story told by the saloonkeeper. Kellerman said he gave Fuch fifty cents and got no change, that the latter was the aggressor. But the young man is free to confess that he had a shooting iron in his clothes. He was in a state of high dudgeon at being written up and left with all manner of threats in reference to prospective suits civil and criminal against the saloonkeeper. He very charitably accepted the belief that the reporter who wrote the article had been imposed upon.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

(Under this heading short letters of interest will be published when accompanied, for publication, by the writer's name. The Tribune will not be held responsible for opinions here expressed.)

BAND STAND STILL COLLAPSING.

Editor of the Tribune. Sir: Yesterday's Republican had a small article on the "Collapse of the Movement," which refers to the failure of the band stand which a gentleman has seen fit to make his pet hobby. The article speaks of Mr. Bauer and myself having visited Mr. Atherton and told him that it would be an utter impossibility to have either the band play from the band stand on the proposed site, and also impossible to get the strings or the Scranton United Choral society together for the purpose of free concerts. I have never seen Mr. Atherton on this matter and never knew that he had anything to do with the project. I am sorry to receive your article and the receiving of funds for the erection of the stand.

I believe the people of Scranton have for many years past been aware of the fact that both Mr. Bauer and myself are public spirited citizens and have always been in the front ranks of every movement in the musical line for the benefit of Scranton, and it is decidedly absurd for this newspaper to credit us with an interview with Mr. Atherton with the result stated in the article, "Collapse of the Movement."

There has been a good deal said in connection with the band stand and two open air concerts, which were merely imaginary and not facts. I promised the gentleman my support in the matter and to do all that I possibly could, and he said that he had made, on the board of the board of trade had appointed Tallie Morgan as secretary of the affair, and Mr. Morgan was to have called together the musicians of the town. We have been awaiting the call, which was never received, and we are positive of the strict interpretation of his own or some previous measure, he insists upon the blind passage of his own ordinance to which is added the stereotyped "all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith or supplied by the provisions hereof, be and the same are hereby repealed," etc., etc.

Would He Legal, He Says. "Understand me, my views do not concern the state laws, the act of 1889, under which cities of the third class are governed; that is a separate matter and purely a state affair. I refer strictly to the minor measures passed by councils. It cannot be held that such a commission would be inconsistent with the incorporation act because that law, after its own provisions are complied with, is plain in providing that cities may govern themselves as they see fit."

DEATH OF JOHN SALTRY.

Editor of the Tribune. Sir: It was with feelings of deep sorrow and sincere regret that the entire community of the North End received the sad tidings of the death of John Saltry, son of the late John and Sarah Saltry. He died at his late home, 14 West Market street, on Monday afternoon at 2.35. He had never been unwell and had never had any ailment, but he was taken by a sudden stroke of apoplexy, which he never recovered from. He was a most devoted and gentle hearted man, and his death was a great loss to his family and to the community.

RICH SAND DEPOSIT.

Found in Excavating for a Linden Street Building. In excavating for the new Gould Carriage works on Linden street near Washington avenue the workmen came upon a strata of the finest quality of building sand. Up to the present time about fifty wagon loads of the sand has been shoveled out to make room for the foundation walls and the cellar.

A swamp occupied this locality a few years ago and even now water has been reached at a depth to which the foundation walls will reach, but the water is on a bed of clay and will not affect the stability of the new structure.

ANOTHER NEW INDUSTRY.

Hand & Van Dyke Will Build a Big Lager Beer Brewery. A new lager beer brewery will be established by Michael Hand, proprietor of the Scranton Ale brewery, and his former partner, W. Van Dyke. It will be erected on Capouse avenue and will cost $150,000.

Negotiations have been completed with the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company for a tract of land 200 feet square nearly opposite Mr. Van Dyke's caramel factory, which the brewery plant will be located.

ENDED WITH A PUN.

The Washington Star cites what it calls another instance of woman's skill in having the last word. "The ostrich is a foolish bird," a gentleman was saying. "When it sees an enemy coming it takes flight into the sand instead of running away." "Oh, well," said his wife, "that's its nature." "I know it. But just the same it isn't foolish." "Oh, yes, it is, my dear." "How do you make that out?" "It's ornithological."

WANTED TO BE IN LINE.

Barrett Building Vies with the Big Structures in a Certain Way. While working on the Barrett building, on Spruce street, yesterday morning, three bricklayers, Paul Costello, Anthony Huber and John Mungo, were precipitated to the ground by the collapse of a scaffold on which they were standing.

Luckily the scaffold fell in such a manner that the men were not severely injured. A part of the wall containing about 300 pounds of brick, was loosened by the careless action of an Italian laborer. It fell against the scaffold, breaking it in the center and causing it to form a V. The men slid along the boards into the apex, and thus escaped injury. They returned to work as soon as the scaffold was repaired.

NEW PUMP ORDERED.

The Trouble Over the Abatement Will Be Soon Overcome. Work on the troublesome abutment of the Roaring Brook bridge has been suspended, pending the arrival of a new six inch pump, which, it is confidently expected, will easily relieve the pits of water, and permit the continuance of the excavating.

If all things turn out favorably little if any further delay will be experienced.

CITY OFFICIAL'S NEW IDEA

Recommends That Conflicting Ordinances Be Repealed or Revised. COMMISSION IS SUGGESTED

Contradictory Measures Said to Hamper Officials—Three Lawyers, Three Business Men and the Mayor Suggested to Recommend Changes.

The head of one of the most important city departments suggests a novel, but what seems a practical, way of eliminating the many conflicting clauses in city ordinances which are constantly causing annoyance not only to councils and heads of departments, but to the public as well.

He recommends that a commission of three lawyers, three business men and the mayor be selected by councils to examine and compare ordinances and resolutions and make a final report. It is suggested that the commission recommend whatever repeals or new measures seem necessary.

Councils Too Unwieldy. "Of course," said the official, "it is really the council's business to do all this, but there are too many axes to grind to make the thing possible in that direction; besides, the councils are too large and unwieldy to perform a work requiring much detail. If ordinances continue to be passed ordering officials to do this or to do that or to follow such-and-such a system—why, how are we ever going to keep track of things; or, what is more to the point, how are we to obey orders? On this day alone, three matters have developed in my department which I cannot definitely act upon, owing to conflicting measures passed by councils in each case."

"Even the councilmen who make the city ordinances become mixed in discussing new measures, and it is quite frequent that 'the matter is laid over' until the next meeting, and the search for conflicting ordinances or resolutions previously passed. And when the father of a measure is not positive of the strict interpretation of his own or some previous measure, he insists upon the blind passage of his own ordinance to which is added the stereotyped 'all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith or supplied by the provisions hereof, be and the same are hereby repealed,' etc., etc."

Understand me, my views do not concern the state laws, the act of 1889, under which cities of the third class are governed; that is a separate matter and purely a state affair. I refer strictly to the minor measures passed by councils. It cannot be held that such a commission would be inconsistent with the incorporation act because that law, after its own provisions are complied with, is plain in providing that cities may govern themselves as they see fit."

Interviews with other heads of departments elicited opinions similar to those of the official quoted in the foregoing. While no definite discussions were taken place in the matter, the trend of opinion is toward some way out of the present labyrinthical code. It will not be surprising if some such plan, like that of the commission, is devised or attempted in the near future.
