RAILROAD NOTES.

Third Vice President Charles E. Pugh, of the Pennsylvania railroad, says that electricity is not going to take the place of steam on long distance runs until some radical changes are made in the method of generating and utilizing the electric current. Weade along the railroad track are

The latest and apparently most com-plate figures at hand give a table of street railway statistics for the United States, as follows: Number of roads, 976; miles of track and motive power-electric, 10,363; horse, 1.914; cable, 632; miscellaneous, 679-total, 12,588; num-ber of cars (3.29 per mile of track), 44,-745; capital stock ($55,000 per mile of track), $748,014,206; funded debt ($40,600 per mile of track), $552,125,505; capital liabilities ($95,600 per mile of track), $1,360,193,711. $1,360,193,711. The Pennsylvania railroad company now has an almost solid chain of 100-pound steel rails on the main line, be-tween Broad street station and Paoli, tween Broad street station and Paoli, and they will gradually be extended along the Philadelphia division. A few years ago 65-pound rails were consid-ered very heavy, but now they are not in favor. The new rails are being put in gradually and without any inter-ference with the running of trains, and in many spots new and heavy ties are being put down at the same time. Most of the contracts have gone to the well-known large compa-nies. In addition to the order of 500 cars recently given by the Clevland, Lorain and Wheeling to the Michigan Peninsular Car company, the same road has contracted with the Wells and French company for 16 and and French company for 150 cars, and with the Pullman company for the same

THE COMING TENNIS TOURNEY It is Awaited with a Good Deal of Ex pectation-James L. Council and A.

E. Connell Home from Europe. Personal Mention.

Possibly never before in the city's his-fory has so long a period passed with-out the suspicion of a formal social event on the hill. The reason is shown in the silent testimony offered by scores of houses tightly closed on all the prominent residential streets. Last year was characterized, socially, by the large exodus to Europe, but there was a sufficient number left to prevent a total stagnation of social events. This season, although the European travel-ers are not as numerous as in 1894, leaves the city more deserted than last year because hundreds have for the first time established summer homes in the country. Add to these a little mountain throng and the reason for the social quiet may be understood. Possibly never before in the city's hissocial quiet may be understood.

The only nearby event of special im-portance will be the te mis tourney of the Carbondale club at Farview the last week of the month. On Aug. 29 John-son, of Scranton, will go up and do battle for the "D. & H. challenge cup." and many local enthusiasts will go along to applaud him. Torrance, of Carbondale, has won it once and John-son has won it twice; if he again suc-ceeds it belong to him permanently.

The Scranton Lawn club has done practically no playing on its Platt place courts this season, but beginning next week play will be resumed by a few who wish to get in condition for the Carbondale tourney and before Sept. 1 the early homecomers will begin play-ing preliminary to the tournament of the Scranton club, which will probably be held during the middle of Septem-ber.

Weeds along the railroad track are now killed by the "electric weed killer." It consists of a cas carrying a dynamo, which sends a heavy current into a sort of rake of fine wires drag-ging among the weeds on either side of the track.
