Auburn-Haired Thomas Cooper Says That the Fight Will Go on Until the Combine Is Exterminated-Does Onav Favor Mckinley.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Senator Quay's victory yesterday at Harrisburg over his opponents in the Republican party may not be the absolute triumphed that it appeared in the rout that followed the defeat of administration forces. In fact vesterday's battle tion forces. In fact, yesterday's battle may be but the first of a long and des-perate campaign. Senator Quay has had no more determined adversary during no more determined adversary uniting the late struggle than the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph. Although routed the Telegraph was as defiant as ever yesterday, and in its editorial columns scored Quay savagely. This afternoon The Telegraph has a long story in its news columns which declares that yesterday's seeming harmony between the two factions was more apparent than real and that a truce and not peace was patched up. Continuing the Telegraph says: "The Hastings-Gilkeson men, or the administration people, as they are frequently termed, in speaking of the turn of affairs as a result of the conference on Tuesday night and early Wednes day morning, gave it as their opinion that the so-called harmony that prevailed throughout the proceedings of the convention amounted to nothing, and that today there is no more harmony in the party than there was on Monday and Tuesday. They say that nothing was gained beyond preventing two conventions, which seemed inevi-table on Tuesday night, and which would have happened had not an agreement been reached between committees representing the two factions. The fear expressed today was that there will be trouble over a portion of the city and county ticket."

"It was declared at Harrisburg by men who are prominent in the Dur-ham-Penrose faction that a new Re-publican city committee will be formed, and that an anti-combine organization will be effected in every election division of the city. To this are added ominous whisperings of trouble for some of the members upon the Republican city ticket. That Quay will control the state delegation to the next national convention there is no doubt. That Quay will control the next legislature and name the next senator, and that he will be chairman of the next national committee. also accepted as being highly probable. David Martin, the present member of the national committee, will unquestionably resign, and this may be expected at any time. Quay named him for the place, and it is not a secret that he does not intend to show him any more favors.

That Quay at present favors Mc-Kinley for president there are reasons to believe, but that he is so far committed to him as to make an aggressive fight for him is not taken for granted.

The Friend of the Anershiets Reloices at the Triumph of Senator Quay. Altoona, Pa., Aug. 20.—Governor Alt-geld, of Illinois, stopped here for a short time today on his way to Maine. The governor spoke freely on the poli-tical situation in Pennsylvania, and the great national significance the re-sult would have in relation to the pres-idency in 1896. "Coming from the state of Illinois," said the governor, "I have no direct interest in the fight in Pennsylvania for political supremacy, but, nevertheless, I am more than pleased and much gratified over the great victory achieved by Senator Quay at yesterday's convention.

Quay at yesterday's convention.

Continuing, he said the reason he was so elated was on account of the stand Quay had taken against the mighty monopolies in the state. In the opinion of Governor Altgeld, Quay's fight was beyond all doubt the greatest battle ever won by the people. From a national standpoint, Governor Altgeld believes General Harrison's presidential pretensions are at an end, for the state of Pennsylvania, with Quay as leader of Pennsylvania, with Quay as leader of the delegates, will undoubtedly be for ex-Speaker Reed as first choice and McKinley as next best man. The gov-ernor says he has met Senator Quay several times, and was greatly im-pressed with him as an admirable leader and an enemy to corruption-
