Precisely at 1.30 Grand Marshal A. J. Atkinson called out "Forward, march," and the parade moved down Linden and the parade moved down Linden street, up Washington avenue past the municipal building. Mounted Officers W. H. Burke and Steven Dyer rode on their chargers at the head of the column. Next on horseback came Grand Marshal Atkinson, Chief of Staff Daniel Harris and Aid E. E. Knapp. A delegation of the Central Labor union carried the blue banner of the federation and then came the carriages concarried the blue banner of the federa-tion, and then came the carriages con-taining Mayor Connell's private secre-tary, Mark K. The next organization was Scranton
Typographical union, No. 112. The Cigarmakers' union was next in line. On every breast was worn the blue label badge, and several inscriptions were carried in the ranks, one of them reading like this: "If you are opposed to contract labor, ask for labeled goods." The cigarmakers were out in full force.

Drawn by four horses, the leaders

Drawn by four horses, the leaders were bay and the hindmost gray, a "float" highly decorated and showing a thorough and original spirit of enterprise, appeared advertising the Industrial News. The wagon contained a job printing press presided over by a youth clothed in the garniture of a spectacular imp of the man below, and other appliances of a printing office.

The Forest band was the first musical organization in line and it brought up organization in line and it brought up ahead of the following unions of the Building Trades' council: Carpenters union No. 563, No. 484 and No. 757. An amusing incident was the presence of two able-bodied darkies clad in polar region style bearing an advertisement.

The Germania band came next, ahead of the Bricklayers' union, No. 18, the members dressed in linen dusters and white felt hats. The Plasterers' union made up the rear of the first division.

The Second Division. The Mozart band led the second division, with the Tinner's union, No. 86, first in line. The Excelsior band of Providence preceded the Plumbers' union, which, many remarked, made the best showing of the day. They were an able-bodied and active looking force of machinics. That was the last force of mechanics. That was the last of the parade except a number of turn-outs advertising this or that business

The line of march continued from Washington avenue to Mulberry street, down to Franklin avenue, to Lacka-wanna, to Jefferson, to Linden, to Madison, to Laurel Hill park. Not all of the societies in line marched to the park, more than half of the ranks fall ing out at Madison avenue and Linden

Mr. Edgar's address.

Mr. Edgar spoke for less than a half hour, but he was eloquent and kept his hearers' attention closely by his well chosen ideas. He said that in this age men are organizing and influencing legislation as a settlement of the labor legislation as a settlement of the labor question and other questions that affect public interest, rather than having recourse to the more forcible way that was the ruling passion in past ages. In olden times the people were divided into the masses and the classes, but fortunately this era has departed, and one of enlightenment has superseded it.

The speaker was roundly applauded. Owing to a misunderstanding there were no other speakers. The crowds left the pavilion and scattered about left the pavillon and scattered about the grounds again. The celebration was a successful and creditable one in every this fall. At a special meeting of the Scranton Bicycle club last night it was decided to organize an eleven which will represent the bicycle club on the gridiron. The team will be known as the Scranton Bicycle Club Foot Ball Eleven. It will wear the orange and black of the bicycle club and be under the direction of a committee composed of members of the same.

The management of the eleven was entrusted to a committee consisting of Ernest A. Gilmore, Frank J. Leonard and W. R. Pierce. Among the players already secured are Harry P. Decker, who was appointed captain; Ed. Thayer, Daniel Gelbert, Fred Gelbert, Rob Allen, James Connery, David Hyman, Louis Rockwell, Frank Benore, Owen Walsh, David Owens, Fred Eang, George Brooks and J. Walsh, who will be remembered as the captain of lust year's Shamokin team. Decker and Thayer, together with the committee of three from the club, will constitute the advisory committee.

A schedule will be arranged in which it is expected to include several of the big college teams and also teams from Wilkes-Barre, Shamokin, Carbondale, Camden and other places. The management will try to arrange the opening game for Sept. 21. The ball park has been secured for practice and games. The men will commence training at once, and as soon as a coacher can be secured active practice will begin.

this beautiful Irish play, as given by Mr. Mack and company, was one of the greatest successes known in the history of drama in Scranton. Whatever doubts there may have been as to Andrew Mack's ability to sustain in a new role his reputation as a comedian and sweet singer were dispelled entirely last evening. From his first appearance on the stage until the fall of curtain upon the last act the genial star held the audience by the subtle magnetism that is essential to highest attainments in the histrionic art.

Mr. Mack is happy in the possession of this inherent talent to a marked degree and moved the immense audience from humor to pathos with an ease that seemed almost magical. The musical features of the entertainment were pleasing throughout. Mr. Mack possesses a high tenor voice of marvelous sweetness, and he rendered the various numbers of his own composition which were introduced in the play in an inimitable manner, holding the listeners breathless at times by his artistic shading of the diminuendo passages.

"An Irish Lad's Wooing," which was rendered at the close of the second act with a chorus accompaniment, was one of the most pleasing numbers ever heard on the Academy stage, and the effect was doubtless heightened by the artistic stage settings, which represented a woodland scene at early dawn. Mr. Mack's portrayal of the jovial Irish lad. "Mylcs Aroon," was a finished performance throughout and indicated careful study and thorough comprehension of the character.

Mr. Mack was also fortunate in being surrounded by an excellent company, nearly every member meriting especial mention. Miss Kittle Coleman, an accomplished soubrette, gave a charming interpretation of the part of Maggle Farrell and came in for a share of the honors of the evening. Mr. Ogden Stevens, in the heavy role of 'Squire Thurston, gave a finished rendition of a difficult character and contributed largely to the success of the entertainment. James Vincent and W. J. Mason gave amusing character sketches as Mike Carney and Pat Phelan and kept the audience in laughter when "doing their turn."

A pleasing bit of character acting was also given by Charles R. Webster, who appeared as Mother Bett, a fortune teller. As Lady Glover Miss Lida McMillan gave a painstaking rendition and Millan gave the May Melville.

During the evening Mr. Mack was presented with several very handsome floral offerings from admiring friends in the city. LAST DAYS OF POMPEH.

Spectacle Produced in an Excellent Man-ner at Laurel HIII Park.

At Laurel Hill park last night a two weeks' engagement of Pain's "Last Days of Pompeil" opened before a large audience notwithstanding the chilly weather. The spectacle is produced on a brilliant scale, 350 persons being employed. About 300 are residents of this city and were drilled here for the work. The lines of Lord Lytton's novel, "The Last Days of Pompell," are closely followed in the libretto of the spectacle, and the specking parts are assigned to and the speaking parts are assigned to very competent actors. The climax of the spectacle is the eruption of Vesuvius, which spreads consternation among the easy-going, pleasure-loving people of Pompeli and destroys their people of Pompeli and destroys their beautiful city.

In connection with the spectacle a number of high class specialties were introduced. Among those who enter-tained were La Petite Evelyn, a won-derful contortionist; Harry La Ross, who did marvelous work with the globe; the Martines did a phenomenal turn on the trapeze. Laura Martine was very clever on the high wire, and Harry La Rose did a great bit of work on a spiral plane.

The spectacle concluded with a magnificent display of fireworks. Among the set pieces was a portrait of Presi-dent Atkinson, of the Central Labor union, in fire.

AN INJUNCTION OBTAINED.

German citizens of Scranton and their wives, sons and daughters yester-day at Central Park celebrated in an cay at Central Park Celebrated in an elaborate manner the twenty-fourth anniversary of the capture of Sedan, that decisive and never-to-be forgotten victory of the Franco-Prussian war at which 80,000 French troops and the Emperor Napoleon fell into the hands of the victorious Germans. This cele-Emperor Napoleon fell into the hands of the victorious Germans. This celebration took place on a monumental scale in Germany yesterday. The date of the battle of Sedan was Sept 2, 1871. There was a monster celebration at Berlin, in which the emperor and empress participated. The emperor himself donated 5,000 marks from his personal fortune for the illumination of the Schloss. The whole of Berlin was a blaze of light and color. A company of 31,000 school children participated of 31,000 school children participated in the day parade, and thousands of troops took part in the military man-

The actuating spirit of the Germans The actuating spirit of the Germans in the celebration of the notable event has not even a tinge of prejudice toward the French people nor even the slightest desire to gloat over the great victory. Their rejoicing is merely an evidence of German-American patriotism in memory of the turning point of the fortunes of war which assured the unification of the German empire. unification of the German empire.

The anniversary means the same to the Germans, or they look upon it in the same light the American people re-gard the Fourth of July, and in every city of the United States yesterday wherever there are German residents they celebrated with the fullest measure of rejoicing.

The Event in Scranton. In this city the celebration did not come until nightfall. Then the civic and military German societies assembled on the West Side at Turner hall and formed in line for marching. There were no less than 1.000 men in the parade. City Controller Fred J. Widmayer was grand marshal. There were two divisions made up of four brigades, the first division in command of Frank Moeller, the second in command of Barthold Schott, both gentlemen of the South Side.

The celebration was under the espe-cial auspices of the Scranton veterans of the Franco-Prussian war. The whole command moved at 8 o'clock. The first division formed on West Lackawanna division formed on West Lackawanna avenue, near Seventh street, and the second division on Seventh street. As the procession moved along across the bridge and up Lackawanna avenue an imposing spectacle was presented. Torches burned brightly and lit up the ranks, revealing the old veterans and the membership of the civic societies in uniform.
