DROVE THE LAST RIVET

Mayor Connell and City Engineer Phillips Weld the Hammers.

THEIR AIM NOT THE TRUST

Set After Hammering Everything Within Arm's Reach They Succeeded in Getting Inspector Hallstead to Approve the Job—A Colored Man's Request.

On the extreme southwestern corner of Linden street bridge is a broad, flat place of wide opening, together with the inner and outer sides of one of the main trusses. It was a goodly piece of steel and looked well in its seat.

In the center of this goodly sheet of steel it was designed to drive the last rivet that would enter into the construction of the bridge. A copper rivet was made, special new nickle plated hammers were secured and the mayor and city engineer were invited to drive into place this rivet, which future generations will point out as one of the interesting sights of the city, relating at the same time the interesting history of the bridge war.

At 3 o'clock there was quite a large crowd thronging assembled to witness the ceremony, among whom were noted Street Commissioner Kinsley, Chief of Police Simpson, Select Councilman Viceroy, Councilman Councilman Leitch, Kolber, Bridge Patrolman Thomas Inspey, Civil Engineer Marple, Bridge Inspector Nathaniel Hallstead and all the bridge employees.

It was an East Task. The copper rivet was heated and set in the hole, and then the fun commenced. Driving a rivet on a level plane is hard enough, but when in an angle of 45 degrees, something is going to suffer. In this case it is the goodly sheet of steel and its nice coat of paint. For a while the air was full of hammers, splitters of steel and copper and pieces of coagulated paint, but after the most desperate kind of perseverance the rivet was snugly clinched so that it did not rattle. Inspector Hallstead shook his head dubiously and then smiled his approval.

Mr. Marple caught several snap shots of the group and also of the mayor and city engineer, who were holding the hammers. These nickle-plated hammers were presented by Superintendent Shedy to the mayor and engineer as mementos of the occasion. There was no end of very appropriate and witty comments and jokes and several amusing incidents. Happening to no give a fancy plate surmounting the front of the Sixth street span bearing the date and the names of the mayor and city engineer, Mayor Connell suggested that it not be an elegant target for the boys on the hill, and advised that it be moved to the center of the bridge, as he did not approve of having his fair name assailed in that way.

Colored Men's Request. On the way out the mayor, with his hammer under his arm, was approached by a colored asphalt maker, who wanted to borrow the sacred hammer to knock in a bung of a keg of beer which the foreman had "set up" for some extra work which was done. The look he made of the colored boy nearly melted him.

"Well, 'twouldn't hurt the hammer," was all he could find breath to mutter as he walked away.

IN THE THEATRES.

Frank Mayo will produce "Puddin'-head Wilson" at the Academy of Music tonight. Mr. Mayo dramatized Mark Twain's quaint story of life on the Mississippi. It ran for six weeks at the Herald Square theater in New York, and was one of the greatest successes among the Broadway productions of years past. Mr. Mayo's work in the title role of Puddin'-head Wilson takes rank with Joseph Jefferson's characterization of the same character.

Miss Emmett, that bright and merry sourette, who has been starring in "Kilnreary," for several years, has for the coming season an entirely new play, entitled "Chat, an American Boy," written by Hubert Skeels and Mark Sackett. Miss Emmett assumes the character of a street gamin, somewhat similar to that which she played in "The Waifs of London," with so much success. Many novel and sensational features are introduced. In one act over 100 people, four horses and a brass band appear on the stage. Miss Emmett will appear at the Academy Friday evening.

The managers of the "Stowaway," which will be seen in this city on Saturday, aver that they put out twice as much money for safes, powder and drills and for the salaries of the two ex-ganglers, "Spigee" Hennessy and "Kid" Miley, who are employed to guard a safe in this stirring play, as the average "show" pays for his bill board posters and window lithographs. In this respect the managers of the "Stowaway" are very high salaried actors and actresses, while the transportation of the costly scenery is another very expensive matter. The Academy of Music Saturday evening.

Davis' theater will open for the season on Monday, when "The Engineer," a fine comedy, will be given. It will be repeated on Tuesday and Wednesday, both afternoons and evenings. It is a brilliant of animation, realism, comedy music, specialties and sensation. Eugene Bertram and Bassett Willard, the authors of the play, two gentlemen so well remembered through their long connection with Chauncy in "The Arkansas Traveler," enact the leading roles. Their company is headed by Eva Tanquary, the bright, clever little sourette, who has taken New York by storm with her acting, singing and dancing. Her song, "My Dad's an Engineer," is very popular in New York.

BEAU DID NOT APPEAR. Management of Academy Refused to Let the Show Go On. George Turner's vaudeville company, headed by Mike Leonard, was billed to give a performance at the Academy of Music last night, but the company became involved in trouble at Wilkes-Barre yesterday and did not arrive in the city in time to give a performance.

When Turner and Leonard were in this vicinity last spring the "Beau Brummel" of the prize ring" did some training out of Wilkes-Barre. He contracted bills not afterward liquidated. Monday night the Turner aggregation gave a show in Wilkes-Barre, and yesterday the receipts of the company were attached by Wilkes-Barre men to whom Turner and Leonard were indebted.

It was almost 6 o'clock when the legal complications in Wilkes-Barre were settled and the company arrived

BADE DEFIANCE TO COURT

Bright and Love Heed Not Judge Gunster's Mandate.

DROVE OFF THE ENGINEERS

Notwithstanding the Injunction Granted on Monday by Judge Gunster, the Claimants of Bright's Court Refuse to Allow Work on the Sewer.

Court injunctions have no terrors for William Bright and William Love, who so far have successfully prevented the city from running a sewer through Bright's court, in Providence, which they claim is their private property.

On Monday Judge Gunster granted an injunction restraining Bright and Love from interfering in any way with the work of the sewer and required from the city and the sewer contractors, Flannaghan & O'Hara, a bond indemnifying Messrs. Bright and Love against any damage that might result from their properties.

Deeming the matter all settled City Engineer Phillips, yesterday afternoon, dispatched a corps to reset the stakes which on several previous occasions had been pulled up by either or both Bright and Love. Flannaghan & O'Hara, likewise approaching no trouble, sent a gang of thirty men to the alley to prepare for active operations this morning, when it was judged the stakes would be reset.

They Were Ordered Off. No sooner had the engineers and laborers entered upon the disputed territory than the doctory claimants appeared and ordered them off. Not having been advised to resist the engineers withdrew and as the laborers could not do anything until the stakes were driven they, too, retired.

When word of the affair was received at the city hall Assistant City Solicitor Davies proceeded to get the necessary attachment to bring the writ down on Bright and Love for contempt of court, but owing to the absence of Judge Gunster action had to be postponed until this morning, when the judge issued the writ from his summer home, at Lake Ariel.

In all likelihood Messrs. Bright and Love will be arrested today, and a show of contempt will be entered against the engineers and contractors from further interference.

Want to Be Arrested. Messrs. Bright and Love acted yesterday as if they were doing what they did advisedly. When they were warned that they were subjecting themselves to arrest, they replied that they wanted to be arrested.

SOUTH SIDE. At 12:35 yesterday afternoon an alarm of fire was sounded from the corner of Pittston avenue and Willow street. A pan of grease caught fire on the stove in a summer kitchen attached to the Strohmeyer-Slaton building, of 114 Pittston avenue. The South Side companies responded, but the blaze had been put out by a stream from the garden hose before the alarm was given.

Rev. Mr. Schivers, the evangelist, was listened to at the gospel tent last night by a very large assemblage. This is the last week he will be here, and all who have not yet heard him will do well to visit the tent before he leaves. He does not expect to come to Scranton again for many years, possibly at all. He has done a great deal of good work with his work, cognizant that countless prayers are being offered up for his success.

Miss Sadie Gillespie, of Pittston, is the guest of Miss Tillie McFiggie, of Cherry street. James Churchill, of Manistee, Mich., is visiting at the Normal school.

Miss Mary O'Malley, of Cedar avenue, and Miss Cook, of Genet street, will leave today to resume their studies at the Stroudsburg Normal school. A meeting of St. Aloysius Young Men's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society was held last evening in St. John's church hall. The members are actively at work in the silk flag contest going on among the societies of the parish, which will close on Wednesday evening, Sept. 25.

Miss Annie Conroy and Kate Connell, of Birney avenue, gave a dance to their friends last night. The enjoyment was indulged in until past midnight. The funeral of Clara, infant daughter of Alex. Seraff, of South Washington avenue, was held yesterday afternoon. Interment was made in the Twentieth Ward Roman Catholic cemetery.

One of Li Hung Chang's compatriots, decked in his oriental attire, jumped from a street car on Cedar avenue last evening. The car was moving quite rapidly. John did not let the conductor know he wanted to get off, but walked off. He didn't stop rolling until he reached the opposite fence. His shirt tails sprang out like a parachute, but that didn't save him.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning the remains of Mrs. Thomas Sheehan, of Orphan street, were conveyed to Delaware, Lackawanna and Western station, to be taken to Danville, where interment was made.
