11. He said this quite unconcerned, and not a bit ready to argue the point out with me. It was all very well for him to glide over it in that easy way, but what I wanted to know was where had Michel Grey first heard talk about us? That the gossip was new to him was evident from the fact that he played billiards with my matter the way for billiards with my master the very firs night he came to Paris. What chatter he had heard was heard betwe per that evening and breakfast two days after. And this was what troubled even in the face of Sir Nicolas' tale about him taking drugs and forgetting. "There's danger moving." I thought, "and if you're married within the month, Nicky, I'm a Chinaman." This is how the thing looked to me, then and for days after. While, on the one hand, Michel Grey talked no more, either to me or to Sir Nicolas, of his suspicions, on the one hand, I could see that he would have no truck with us, and was doing his best to make his master think as he did. That he did not succeed in this is to be set down to many things, but above all down to many things, but above all to the fact that for days together he would hang about the hotel like a man without a mind; and was, as all the world could see, tottering fast to his grave. What drug he drank or whos it would be cover for you." "I'll do that," said he, shortly. "Is there anything else?" "One thing," said I. "This young fellow has a father in America. If three days pass and we hear nothing of him send a cable out to Boston, and advise that a reward be offered—a big one, say ten thousand dollars. Mean-while, offer a reward of two thousand francs yourself." "But I'd have to pay. What's the world could see, tottering rast to his grave. What drug he drank or where he learned the habit, no man could say, but a more pitiable spectacle than he made, looking for all the world like a blind thing come out of a coffin, I hope never to see. Luckly for us, I hope never to see. Luckny for us, there was no affection lost between him and Miss Dora. Talk as he might, the day was rare when she did not plan some excursion with my master. "But I'd have to pay. What's the sense in that?" "Sir, said I, "if Mr. Grey, of Boston, plan some excursion with my master. They spent hours together out at Fon-tainebleau or Versalles-were half leries, the other half at the cafes and theaters. I saw them walking arm in them the gradens I saw them wilk for the recovery of his son, there is one man who will find him." arm in the gardens. I saw h her when she went to her painting in the morning, I saw him kiss her when she came home again to dejeuner, and In exame nome again to depender, and I began to think that after all he was right and I was wrong. Then, all of a sudden, the trouble came, and we woke up from our dream like men roused by artillery fire. Michel Grey had disappeared. For the first time since we had been at the hotel, he had changed words with my master over the dinner table. It did not come to blows, but the hands of the ople around alone kept the two men apart, and Sir Nicolas was heard by twenty folks to say that he'd beat the life out of the American with his hunt-ing orop. That night and the next Michel Grey did not sleep in his bed at the Hotel de Lille. At 10 o'clock two mornings later his sister Dora was knocking at my master's door, wanting to know what he had done with him. I can see her now, with her pretty hair streaming down her back and her face that flushed that she might have been rubbing her checks with a glove. Many women would have thought noth-ing of a man going off like that; but the quarrel stuck in her head, I sup-pose, and she was as scared as a habbit. life out of the American with his huntpose, and she was as scared as a habbit. When Sir Nicolas came out to her, she was no longer gentle with him as she had been before this, but stamped her foot and spoke angry, with quick, bit-Well," she cried, "where is he? You know, of course?"

The man who will claim the reward is my friend, Jim Pascoe..." "What! Jim Pascoe..." "No other. If there's anything in Paris that's new to him I should be glad to hear of it. He'll do the job for a hundred pounds, and gladly." "Ye don't fear to trust him?" "Fear," I replied, "why, I know enough about Jim Pascoe to buy a dozen men." This was a true word, and half an hour after it was spoken I was seated

She began to cry at this, and my mas-ter took her hand. "You poor little thing." said he, draw-ing her head down upon his shoulder, "Would I harm him, whatever he was What do you mean by a private drugden? "Would I harm him, whatever he was --and your brother, too? Don't ye see, child, that he's just gone off in a bit of a huff, and will be back before your tears are dry. Ye'll be the first to iaugh when he walks in here." "He is not the man to do that." said she, though she was no longer angry; "I am sure of it. 1 dreamed of him all night. He is dead, Nicolas." Now what should Sir Nicolas do "Why, a place where they dose 'em and bleed 'em at the same time. Such shops are cheap this way. They trap a man with cash, and make it pleasant man with cash, and make it pleasant for him so long as his money lasts, then they knock him on the head, or leave him to sleep it off in the gutter. You couldn't have named a worse job. I doubt that you'll ever set eyes on Grey again, if you live to be a hundred." That was a facer. I'd thought all-along that the American was laid by the heels in some onium-shop, but that Now what should Sir Nicolas do when she said this but give her a great when she said this but give her a great kiss, and burst out laughing. "Dead!" said he, "then I'm thinking we should get ready for the waking, and ask him to crack the first bottle. Bedad! he's as dead as I am, little wothe heels in some onlum-shop, but that we should have any difficulty in getting him out was a fact that never entered my head. (To Be Continued.)

I'll begin to think by and by that harm's come to hin." "In that case, sir," said I. "it's a pity that what was said two nights ago Pittsburg will soon witness an era of prosperity not seen before. The Car-negles, it is stated on good authority, will spend another million dollars at Duquesne besides the million already contracted for. Jones & Laughlins are spending $150,000 in new furnaces, and the Elba iron works, owned by the Oil Well Surger company will be put in "Good God! Would they think that?" He stood stock still when I had said this, and his face was very white. "It's luck to make one gnash the teeth," said he, presently. "I'd have married her within the week." "There's no reason why you shouldn't now, sir," said I, "always supposing that it's well with him. But there are things to do." "You think so?" "Certainly; and if it was me con-cerned I'd be up at the police station before the clock struck again." "Do you believe they would find him?" "They might, or they might not; but it would be cover for you." "The anything else?" "One thing," said I. "This young fellow has a father in America. If nen. THE WORLD OF BUSINESS STOCKS AND BONDS.

New York, Sept. 3.—There was a broad market for stocks today and operators found no difficulty in dis-posing of them. The early advance was equal to 34 to 234 per cent., Jersey Central, Reading, the Grangers, Louis-ville and Nashulta and the low periord dozen men." This was a true word, and half an hour after it was spoken I was seated with Jim in the little bit of a cabin in the Rue Dupin, where I told him the tale. Jim was a man who got his liv-ing the best way he could, but chiefly at Auteaell and Longchamps, and in being father-in-law to the English mugs who want to "do" Paris. If any one could say what had become of Michel Grey he was the man; and Th hardly got the words out of my lips when he jumped down my throat with his theory. "Bigg." says he, "your man's in a drug-den-and what's more, he's in private drug-den. It's a wonder his people haven't had any note for money before this--that' is, if Grey hasn't a banking account of his own in Paris." "Bigg." says I. CURES THE TOBACCO HABIT IN 4 TO 10 DAYS OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Use All the Tobacco You Want Till Your "Craving" Is Gone.

NARCOTI-CURE is the only remedy in the world that acts directly on the nerves and drives the nicotine from the system tn from four to ten day. It leaves the patient in better health than before taking, and is warranted free from any injurious ingredients.

NARCOTI-CURE is popular because it allows the patient to use all the tobacco he wants while under treatment, or until the "craving" and "hankering" are gone. It is then no sacrifice to throw away tobacco forever.

NARCOTI-CURE is sold at the uniform price of $5.00 a bottle and one bottle cures.

In the same period profits rose from $220,019 to $1,109,579, the gain being equal to $819,560 or 280 per cent. This is something to take note of. Here is the substantial progress from $4,048 earned on every mile of road in 1887 to earned on every mile of road in 1887 to $8,059 earned per mile in 1894, while net results show themselves in an increase from $768 per mile to $2,327 per mile. It must not be supposed that all of this new business and increased receipts has come without being hunted up. Very wide-awake men, with J. E. Childs, the general manager, at their head, have had to cover the territory the road reaches and make business. Where there were the smallest signs of growth the plant had to be fostered. In some there were the smallest signs of growth the plant had to be fostered. In some sections, seeing the need for summer homes, the company offered to carry and actually did carry building ma-terials free. The sprat caught the mackerel, of course. Many points were largely built up by this means, and the income which the Ontario and Western derives from the traffication to see the Income which the Ontario and Western derives from the traffic stanted pays fot the stroke of enterprise and the work done gratis beforehand. The road's coal traffic has been enormously en-larged, "while in another direction—in the business of hauling milk from the up-state farms to centres of distribu-tion—the growth has been almost as marked. The company has a bright future before it.
