THREE RUNAWAYS

Make Things Lively—H. H. Major Thrown

Make Things Lively—H. H. Major Thrown from a Carriage.

Yesterday morning a horse driven by Gl. H. Major and George Moon ran away near the crossing at Dundaff street, and threw both the occupants out of the carriage, quite seriously hurting Mr. Major.

The horse driven is a spirited animal and when about to cross the railroad at Dundaff, became alarmed at some moving cars. Mr. Moon, who was driving at the time, tried to quiet the frightened animal, but not being able to do so, used the whip. This had no effect, and the horse still continued to back until one wheel ran into a porch. The horse then turned suddenly, and both men were pitched headlong into the road. Mr. Moon did not receive any finjury, but Mr. Major struck his head on a large stone when he fell, which rendered him unconsclous. He was at once carried into a house nearby and Doctor Thompson, who was attending a case in that vicinity, summoned. He at once gave restoratives to the unfortunate man, who soon regained consciousness. The injuries are not thought to be severe.

who soon regained consciousness. The injuries are not thought to be severe.

After pitching the men out the horse continued his wild plunge, but was soon captured. The wagon was quite badly broken up and was sent to a blacksmith's shop for repairs.

Milk Wagon Overturned. While going his rounds yesterday norning, Milkdealer S. F. Burnard had a runaway, and while no one was hurt, quite a bit of damage was done by the animals during the short time they ing that no driver controlled movements, increased their speed.

The horses turned at Lincoln avenue and here broke into a run. When in front of G. W. Reynolds & Son's store the wagon struck the curb and was overturned in an instant. The cans of milk which were in the wagon also became overturned and the lacteal fluid sent spattering in all directions.

The overturning of the wagon proved too much for the team and they were easily caught. They were uninjured, but the wagon top was broken consid-but the wagon top was broken considerably and the loss of the milk will make the whole thing quite a serious loss for Mr. Burnard.

Another Runaway Monday night a most exciting runa-way occurred on Main street, and oc-cupants of the carriage which figured in the runaway are indeed fortunate that they did not receive some serious injury.

Three persons were in the carriage.

Three persons were in the carriage. Frank Shaffer, who was driving and to whom the horse and carriage becong, and two young ladies, Miss Lizie Hosie, of Jermyn, and Miss Annie Farley, of Farview.

The horse driven is but yet a colt and while passing down the street nade a kick at a horse which was passing. The foot did not hit what it was aimed at, but instead passed through the dash board of the vehicle, where t stuck, notwithstanding the where t stuck, notwithstanding the frantic efforts of the animal to release it. Not getting loose, the horse started down the street at a rapid pace, despite the efforts of the young driver, who hung onto the reins. From one side who hung onto the reins. From one side of the street to the other it carreened on, but the good driving of Shaffer prevented it from being run into a curb and overthrown. The young ladies were much frightened and gave vent to their fears in lusty screams. The people on the sidewalk were horrified, thinking that it would result fatally to some one. However, just as the driver was getting the animal under control, several persons vushed out control, several persons vushed out seized it by the bridle, holding it until the young ladies got out. The foot was still tightly wedged and the animal had to be thrown before it could be freed. It was not hurt in the least, but the wagon had to undergo quite a bit of repairing.

ACCIDENT AT FARVIEW.

A Honesdale Young Lady Jumps from a Moving Train.

The Mozart band picnic at Farview assed off without an accident to mar passed off without an accident to mar the pleasures of the day, but there was one escape from a horrible death that few people wish to see again. Miss Swingle, a young lady from Honsedale, was the unfortunate per-son. With several companions, she had come to the picnic, but while waiting for the train, she became separated for the train, she became separated from her companions.

As she could not find them she boarded the train for Honesdale, thinking they were going down the plane. However, Miss Swingle saw her companions on the platform and jumped from the train, which was moving quite fast, to the ground.

She was not an expert at templar

She was not an expert at jumping off trains, though, and fell down beside the track. The persons who saw the accident, hurried to her assistance and she was carried into the depot. She was not unconscious, the blow being hard enough only to stun her.

As it was she was not much hurt, hav-ing but a few scratches.

It is indeed fortunate that Miss Swingle escaped so luckily. When she fell she landed in a hole, or ditch, which had been dug near the track, or otherwise she would have rolled under the cars.

AT THE GRAND.

Andrew Mack, the Singer, Entertains a

A large crowd greeted Andrew Mack at the Grand Opera house last evening, when he made his appearance in the Irish play, "Myles Aroon."

The play was good throughout, but the principle feature of the evening's performance was the singing of Andrew Mack. He made a decided hit in his debut here, and will be warmly welcomed upon any future appearance welcomed upon any future appearance in Carbondale.

said that Miss Arnold should pay Mr. Saunders $18, besides paying all costs. Another case was brought on after this had been settled, being that of James Jennings, a laborer at the new silk mill works, who brought suit to recover wages due him from A. B. Klersted. No agreement could be made between the two men as to how much was due, so the suit resulted. The decision will be made on Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

MRS. MULLADY BURIED.

Impressive Funeral Services at St. Ros Church. Yesterday morning at 9.30 the funera services over the remains of Mrs. Eliza-beth Mullady occurred at St. Rose
