Arrested for Desertion. Edward Griffiths was arrested on Saturday, charged by his wife with de-section. He came before the mayor and said they had been married four years, but had never lived happily to-gether. His wife told him to pack up his things and leave the house and he had done so, and then found himself arcested for desertion. He was per-fectly willing to support his wife, but would not live with her. The mayor held him in $500 bail for court, and in default of bail he was sent below. Located at Canton. longer. They thought she was joking and paid no attention to her. Mary left the house and, taking a rope, went to the Red Ash colliery. She met a friend and had some brief conversation with her, but said nothing of her at-tempt at suicide. After leaving her friend, Mary went into the woods and tied the rope around a tree. She then slipped the noose over her neck and jumped from the tree. The fall did not break her neck and she screamed for help. George Stroble, the butcher, Located at Canton.

TROUBLE AT MILL CREEK.

A Saturday Fracas After a Base Ball Game.

On Saturday night a good sized fight took place at Mill Creek. There had been a base ball game between the out-side and inside men of the Keystone side and inside men of the Keystone colliery, and after it was over half a dozen men went into a saloon kept by a Pole named Mazinski and talked it over. David Carey, one of the men, or-dered drinks and then had no money dered drinks and then had no money to pay for them and was kicked out. While this was being done some one threw a bottle that nailed the bar-tender in the head and made a bad cut. Ed. Jenkins took an active part in the affray that ensued, and with such missiles as he could find stretched sev-eral of the Poles out a smod bit the missiles as he could find stretched sev-eral of the Poles out, a good bit the worse for wear. Then the air became thick with missiles, and everyone threw what he could find. Jenkins was the object of their wrath, and with great difficulty made his way to the Dela-ware and Hudson depot, where Station Agent Powell telegraphed for help from the sheriff and sent an engine and a coach to town to bring back the shercoach to town to bring back the sher-iff's posse. Jenkins had got inside the station and Mr. Powell had locked the door, and the Poles on the outside were besteging the station. Before help could arrive some Polish leaders came upon the scene and persuaded their angry countrymen to go home, which they did shortly after. Jenkins was then arrested and taken before Burgess Ber-gen, of Miner's Mills, who ordered him locked up.
