JEWISH NEW YEAR TODAY

Opening of the Year 5656, Which Dates from the Day of Creation.

BEGAN AT SUNSET YESTERDAY

Social Intercourse and Religious Observa tion Will Feature the Doings of the Festival Day-Services Held in the Linden Street Temple.

At sunset last night began the Jewish New Year, 5656, which is from the beginning of creation. Sociability and religious observation on a scale greater than is observed by Christians and their churches will be the order of things until sunset tonight, when terminates the greatest of Jewish holidays. Ten days from yesterday, or, on Saturday, Sept. 28, will occur the Day of Atonement, the daylight hours of which will mostly be spent in worship in the Linden Street temple and other Jewish churches in the city. The New Year and the Day of Atonement are called "fearful days," but the latter rather than the former is given up exclusively a spin of the results of t

During today nearly all the places of business owned by Jews will be closed, many of them being tight shut at 6 o'clock last night. New Year's calls, family dinners and social intercourse will be the order of things until this evening, or, to be exact, at the hour of sunset, when the festival ends. As every New Year's day is a most propitious time for the exchange of civil-ties and the compliments of the season, so is the Jewish. In the ritual of the synagogue, the prayer is on that day that all men, without distinction of race or cread, he recorded in the book of life for a year of happiness and good so is the Jewish. Opinion of Talundie Bostors

Opinion of Talmudic Doctors. That on this day the world was created is the opinion of some of the Talmudic doctors. Hence its annual occurence adds another year to the number chapsed since God commanded chaos to range liself into his designed order. But, nevertheless, the habit of counting according to the era, from the creation of the world is, comparatively speaking, very recent the creation of the world is, comparatively speaking, very recent among the Jews. The first indications of its employment are found in documents of the latter half of the tenth Christian century. The number of the year opening last night, 5656, is based on the following figures, computed, partly from biblical data, and partly from traditional calculations.

From the creation to the exodus from Egypt were reckened 2.448 years; from exodus to the destruction of the section.

lengths. The Jewish year is a lunar one. But, as the solar years and the lunar do not correspond, and the sonsons of the feativals are fixed by biblient ordinance, the Jewich year is in contra-disdiction f. I. with the Mohammedan lunar year—not movable, but fixed. Cycle of Nineteen Lunar Years.

The Jewish calendar has a cycle of nineteen lunar years in which seven intercalary months occur. 'cound (though not quite) to nineteen solar years. The intercalary year consists of thirteen months, the twelfth Adar being doubled; while the other has twelve months of thirty and twenty-nine days respectively. Two months, the eighth and ninth, may have either twenty-nine or thirty days, while the intercalary month, and in leap years also, his namesake have thirty days. also, his namesake have thirty days.

The fact that the eighth and ninth leading attractions and theaters of this months may be increased or decreased country and Europe. At the Academy months may be increased or decreased is due to certain astronomical-arithmetical considerations, and ritual necessities. Fragments of days are neallected each year until they amount to a full day, when it is added to the eighth month, making it thirty days. For certain ritual reasons, New Year's day can only fall on a Monday. Thesday or Saturday, in consequence, we have six different kinds of years—(1) ordinary; (a) defective of 23 days; (b) regular, of 25 days; and the three corresponding kinds in the intercalated class of 383, 384 and 385 years respectively. The year now beginning will end on Sout, 8, 1896. It belongs to the class, of 383, 384 and 385 years respec-tively. The year now beginning will end on Sept. 8, 1896. It belongs to the
