WATCH ON ONE ANOTHER

That Is the Purpose of the Car Service Association.

IT'S A NEW RAILROAD IDEA

llow the Joint Agreement of Seventee Railroads Is Watched and Enforced by One Bureau-Little Known of Its Workings.

For four and a half years there has een located in Scranton the headquarters of one of the most modern asso-ciations connected with latter-day railoading, and one of the most useful in its relation to the great freight car-riers. Yet it is probable that scarcely more than one in a hundred persons, outside those who have daily dealings with the railroads, know of the existence of the association referred to, which seems all the more strange considering that this one of many similar institutions saves each year hundreds of thousands of dollars to the railroads it represents.

Reference is made to the Northeastern Pennsylvania Car Service association, a long title which, however, does not reveal a purpose. Briefly stated the concern is an association of six-teen railroads in this region whose main office is in the commonwealth building, and whose purpose is to keep a check on one another in seeing that their joint agreement to charge demurrage on loaded cars is enforced.

For several years Poor's manual has contained statistics showing that the average daily earnings of the freight ears throughout the whole United States is a little over $3 each, no allow-ance being made for the time the cars stand on switches or are in the shops. This is an important fact to remember in perusing this article about the Car Service association, as it looks to the enforcement of a joint agreement, payenforcement of a joint agreement, joy viding that $1 per day per car shall be collected from consignees who fail to unload their goods within forty-eight hours after a delivery at a given point. The difference between the $3 per day earning capacity of the car and the $1 penalty exacted from the consignee represents a theoretical loss of $2 per lay to the company.

Has Been in Existence Six Years.

It was only about six years ago that in association, similar to the one whose headquarters is in Scranton, was lo-cated in Buffalo. It represented all the railroads operating in western New York, and was fought from the beginning by the press and large buyers, who printed and said things about "more robbing and screwing by greedy erporations.

on the shoulder of A. G. Thomason when he came from the Buffalo office to manage the business of the Northeastern Pennsylvania association, but the business was a reform which had come to stay, so the chip never had a blow aimed at it; in fact, the business of the association is almost unknown outside the circle of car-lot consigners with whom it comes in contact.

many other roads suffered a car famine. There Were Not Cars Enough. Shippers were making a demand for cars at a ratio of almost 3 to 1 compared with the ability of the railroads to supply the need. The Lackawanna road proposed not to be caught in such a predleament again, and 1,000 new box cars were forthwith ordered. It was about this time that the association began its work in Scranton. A weeks later Mr. Hallstead was asked what he thought of the new idea.

"I think so well of it that if I had known what it was capable of doing I would not have ordered 1,000 new box cars." This remark merely proved that the association had done much toward lifting the blockade of loaded cars and had given the companies rollng stock to meet the demands of ship-The car service association idea

The privi-iege of re-shipping is still accorded consigners, but the time for so doing is curtailed to meet the joint agreement of the railroads, which agreement is looked to by the association.

GATHERED HERE AND THERE.

Firwood in South Wilkes-Barre was evidently an Indian burying gound and has many historical associations clustering around it, judging by the number of Indian skeletons that are being unearthed by workmen who are excavating for cellars and making streets. A few weeks ago a number of Indian bones were dug up, but a few days ago Contractor W. G. Dowas' workmen came across three or four skeletons close together. The bones were has good state of preservation and the fact that they were those of Indians was shown by the general formation of the skull and the prominent cheek bones. One of the skeletons was that of a woman. The frames were not lying horizontally as is customary, but were standing erect, the skulls being about four feet from the surface and the feet about ten feet. This was limited to the skeletons held a pipe between its teeth. It is made of stone, the bowl being perforated, and worked around with rings, in the usual manner of Indian pipes. Historians tell us that it was at Firwood or near it that the famous "grasshopper" controversy took place between Indians attached to Queen Esther, who guires so prominently in the history of Wyoming valley, and other tribes and that many were killed.

City Engineer Phillips was recently called upon to decide a nice question of equity which possibly never had a precedent. A number of property holders along the line of the new sewer in the Fourteenth ward, some years ago constructed a private sewer, in which was used $120 worth of terra-cotta pipe. Contractor Koons in constructing the main sewer dug up this pipe and appropriated it to his own use against the protests of the property holders who paid for it. Councilman Nealis was appealed to and he in turn laid the matter before City Engineer Phillips. The city engineer consulted his turn laid the matter before City Engineer Philips. The city engineer consulted his knowledge of the law all the way back to Solomon's time, and after much cogitation decided that the contractor could retain the pipe, reasoning that if the property holders had wanted to reclaim it they should have dug it up or made some arrangements with the contractor for d'gging it up for them. The decision went and Contractor Koons' terra-cotta mine stays.

St. Luke's summer home at Lake Ariel will close today for the season. During the last three months it has been filled constantly with peer women and children, who were in ill health, but had not the means to take a vacation in the country, where pure air, rest and wholesome food would win back their health. To scores of such women and children the summer home was an undisguised blessing and the good accomplished cannot be estimated. The number entertained at the summer home this year was one-third larger than during any preceding summer in its history and it is to be hoped it will receive such financial assistance as will enable it next summer to still further increase its power of doing good. Only those who are at the head of the many noble charities of the city realize the necessity of such an institution as the summer home and the great good that it is capable of accomplishing.

LARGEST PARADE IN YEARS

There Will Be Visiting Companies from Binghamton, Hallstend, Archbald, Taylor and Pittston-Route Over Which the Parade Will Pass,

Next Tuesday's inspection of the fire department will possess one feature which will mark an epoch in the his-tory of the department. It is that every piece of apparatus and every horse appearing in the procession will belong to the city, with the exception of one team of horses, which will draw the Nigara engine, this company not hav-ing as yet secured their own team. Chief Ferber stated yesterday that he has given orders that no four or sixhe has given orders that no four or six-horse teams will appear in the parade. Mission Services Last Night in St. John's Church-Sermon by Rev. Father Burke.

Martin Golden Injured. The services at the mission in St. John's church last evening were conducted by Rev. Father O'Callahan and Rev. Father Burke. The former gave instruction on purgatory. This, he said, the church teaches is a place where the atonement of sins that have been forgiven lakes place. The soil undergoes time enough to turn to God in the last hours of life, trusting to a death-bed repentance.

He unfolded the life of an ordinary man, how fraught with sin it is, and impressed upon his hearers the necessity of acting in accordance with God's law in whatever they do. It is a poor recourse to make a virtue of necessity, to turn to God and seek forgiveness when the lamp of life is almost extinguished.

Better Store Keeping.

Better Store Keeping.

We are pleased to notice that Mears & Hagen have found it necessary to enlarge their store. In two years they have completely outgrown their old quarters. With more room and a larger stock they are prepared to do better store keeping than in the past. The push and energy with which this firm have put into their business made failure impossible. They have built up a successful business. The haldes have found out that the goods in their store have been selected with exquisite taste with due consideration to the demands of fashion. This is particularly true in regard to their dress goods. This department has been removed to the rear of the store, and now occupies much larger quarters. The light is abundant, making it impossible for customers to be mistaken in regard to the true shade of the goods purchased. Greater attention will be given to this department.

We also noticed a commodious cloak room on the first floor, which has just been arranged and stocked with a large assortment of ladies' coats and capes. The larger room gives this firm an opportunity to greatly extend their trade, for the stock of each department has been increased. They have advertised an opening for next Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. The store will be decorated with plants and flowers. Bauer's orchestra will furnish music. All are invited.

FUNERAL OF MR. M'CORMACK. Interment Was Made in Hyde Park Catholic Cemetery.

Many friends attended the funeral of Edward McCormack from his late home on Phelps street yesterday morning. At St. Peter's cathedral a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. J. A. McHugh, who paid a deserved tribute the high character of the deceased. Interment was made in Hyde Park Catholic cemetery. The pall-bearers were Patrick Brown, Hugh Collins, James Cush, James Kelly, James Gavigan and James Ratchford

It is the newest thing for the coming season which we are offering to the trade at very low prices. It is almost unnecessary for us to remind our customers that our line of contains styles and effects not to be found elsewhere. So long we have been as originators it's our constant aim to produce new designs to set the current of style. We have a larger and more extensive line than ever before.

AFTER OCTOBER 1

We will occupy three floors instead of one. That shows more plainly than words that we have the confidence and patronage of the people.
