changes. Yale and Princeton have also legislated about catching punts. They have stricken out the clause which re-quired the player about to make a catch to signal with his hand, by which means the rule has reverted to that of the year previous. The other change which they have made is, I think, unfortunate. They take foot ball, to use a paradoxical ex-pression, back before its birth. PUNTS AND PASSES.

The players are much amused over the Yale-Princeton game of foot ball. They thing it is an effort to contrast the two styles of play in order to pose as reform-ers, and if possible to cast Harvard, Penn-sylvania and Cornell into the position of those who are opposed to the elimination of brutality from the game.

Among the many brilliant feat-ures will be the Spanish ballet, the most expensively costumed act yet staged, which is presented with special and ap-propriate scenic effects. Another, the grand opera, will also be a telling act. For an evening of pure enjoyment of wholesome mirth, good music, excellent inging, resplendent surroundings and clean production, it would be well to see "Isham's Octoroons." Not very long since stars in the legitimate repertoire scorned such acces-sories as special scenery, appropriate costuming and the minute detail of stage production which the more ambitious producers of modern plays af-fected, but in later days they have come to recognize the merits of such an equipment, Messrs Wagenhale and Kemper, the progressive managers of Louis James, who will be seen here tomorrow night, are great believers in handsome stage settings, and have pro-vided their star with some of the handsomest scenery and most elaborate costumes ever devised. Their pro-duction of "Othello" is said to show a series of wonderfully attractive stage pictures of which the chamber of tapes stage tries, the chamber of Desdemona and the garden scene are said to be marvels of the scene painter's art. Mr. James will be at the Academy of Music tomornight in a fine production of

"Othello." . . . In these days of realism in stage effects there is a great rivalry among managers to see who can outdo the others in the realistic features that can be introduced. We have had tanks of real water, real railroad engin real rain, real steamboats, real fire engines and a host of other real things, around each of which plays have been built, but it remained for Lewis Morri-son to invent a method of using real lightning. This effect is used in his spectacular production of "Faust." but unlike others he does not make it a feature. It is merely an accessory to feature. It is merciy an accessory to bis magnificent performance. This scene ends with a veritable rain of fire. Mr. Morrison will be seen at the Acad-emy of Music Wednesday and Thurs-day. Sept. 25 and 25. One of the most remarkable scenes that has ever been presented on the stage is the one in Morrison's production of "Faust" called the Brocker. As a stage incluse

Funeral of James Durkin. Many relatives and friends attended the funeral of James Durkin from his late home, on Jackson street, Saturday morning. At St. Patrick's Catholic church a solemn high mass of requiem vas sung by Rev. J. B. Whelan. Rev. D. A. Dunne was deacon, and Rev. F. P. McNally sub-deacon. Professor Haydn Evans presided at the organ and sang the Gregorian requiem. At the conclusion of the services Rev. Father Whe-lan preached the funeral sermon and paid a worthy tribute to the deceased. The remains were interred in Hyde Park cemetery. The deceased was a member of the Hyde Park branch of the Catholic Mutual Benefit association, the following members of that or-ganization acting as pall-bearers; F. P. Brown, Martin Roche, Patrick Tay-
