Strong Right Hands of Pitz and Cor bett-How They Are Hardened.

THE PIGHT OF THE CENTURY

It Will Bring a Princely Sum to th Winner-How the Two Gladintors Train and the Advantages of Each.

For the next month presidential as-pirants, the doings of kings and queens, panies and wars, the ups and downs of commerce and other ordinarily inter-esting news events will all be overdowed by the modern gladiators, Corbett and Mr. Fitzsimmons, says Chicago Daily News. Should either of these gentlemen run a splinter into his left thumb the news would be ashed to all quarrers of the civilized world. Should Mr. Corbet consume three mut-ton chops and half a glass of mixed ale for dinner, instead of two mutton chops and a whole glass of mixed ale, his press agent will flaunt the stupendous fact in the face of an anxious world. If Mr. Corbett punches the bag 168 times a minute to Mr. Fitzsimmons' 164 punches in the same space of time, mathematicians will be on hand to show that it will just take Mr. Corbett thir-teen rounds two and one-eighth min-utes to put Mr. Fitzsimmons to sleep.

But should Mr. Fitzsimmons invent a new right-hand stomach blow the supporters of Mr. Corbet will become sanle-stricken until it is announced that Mr. Corbett has just created a wonderful left-hand upper cut which will lift Mr. Fizzimmons into the land

This is one way of looking at the com-ing fight at Dullas, Tex., on Oct. 31, which is to decide the ownership of $61,-000, to say nothing of the title of cham-plonship, which is worth another $60,000 a year or more, Fight of the Century.

One thing is certain-that it will be the fight of the century, both men being exponents of the new school of pugilism, in which science is everything. Both men are crafty, evenly matched physically, and are after the almighty dollar with a zest and energy which promises a bitter contest. Besides, they hate each other. When Mr. Corbett spat in the face of Mr. Fitzsimmons in Philadelphia cafe a short time ago he did it for a purpose. He wanted to provoke Fitzsimmons into doing some-thing which will cause the Corbett hate thing which will cause the Corbett hate to rise up in all its strength.

Few people know it, but it is part of Corbett's creed not to fight a man until he has made of him a personal enemy. Corbett says when he goes into the ring he wants to be "dead sore" on the man against him. Dozens of fights have been lost by men who have allowed their sym:pathles to interfere at the critical time. No one has yet acthe critical time. No one has yet ac-cused Corbett of being sympathetic or of showing mercy to an opponent when money was at stake

But the cain and deliberate Fitzsimmons is not looking for sympathy at any stage of the game. "All I want," says he, "is an even run for my money and if I can't thump his pompadour head off I'll take my medicine all Terrible Right.

Each man counts upon putting the other man out by a right-hand swing on the point of the jaw. As such a blow will be worth a great fortune to the man wha lands it it is a matter of interest to inspect these right hands. If anything, Fitzsimmons, right is a better one that Corbettie. the man who lands it it is a matter of interest to lappect these right hands. If anything, Fitzsimmons' right is a better one than Corbett's. In the first place, it is larger, the circumference being nine and one-half inches, measured around the palm inside the thumb, while Corbett's measures but eight inches.

Fitzsimmons is as careful about his hands as a society belie, but in an en-

Fitzsimmons is as careful about his hands as a society belle, but in an entirely different way. While she endeavors to keep them soft and small, Fitz works to keep his hard and large. The fact that he labored many years in a blacksmith shop in Australia ac-counts for the great strength and hardhands. The individual fingers on Fitz's hands are thicker and stronger looking than Corbett's and all the tiny muscles and cords seem better Corbett never had the advantage of a muscle-making trade to follow. The strength of his hands has been largely cultivated. He exercises daily on a wrist machine. wrist machine which also strengthens the hand. Close attention is paid to this work. The need of hands which can stand a terrific strain without weakening any of the numerous small bones is a fundamental requirement of the fighter. In a long-drawn-out battle the best man has more than once been deprived of victory by weak hands, particularly when pitted against hands, particularly when pitted against a "glutton for punishment." The incessant smashing of the hand against the face and body of a well-trained fighter forces the lower knuckles into the back of the hand, breaking many of the small bones. Such an accident takes the heart out of the best fighter and no matter how great his courage he cannot put the same steam into a blow when he knows that when his blow when he knows that when his hand lands it is going to cause him the most acute agony.

Hitting Muscles. The hitting muscles are those on the sides of the back, close to the arm-pit, and those running from the neck to the top of the shoulder. Corbett's back muscles are longer and cleaner than Fitzsimmons', but the latter is better off in the top shoulder muscles. The average strong man would look with disdainupon the muscular develop-ment of either Corbett or Fitzsimmons. He would find no great bunches of muscles on any part of their respective amatomy. Both of these men avoid tightening their musicles or accumulating too much of them, in the fear of interfering with their speed. If either one were hampered by great bunches of muscles he would fail an easy vic-tim to the other. A body with every muscle and cord, down to the smallest and most minute, evenly developed, is what both are aiming at. Long, hard the man becomes muscle-bound and in first-class company he is sure The neck is the most vulnerable part of the prizefighter, and both Fitz and Corbett are devoting considerable at-tention to building up the muscles on the sides to protect the delicate cords and bones from assault. An examination of all clever prizefighters will show that the neck from the ear to the shoulder is almost in a straight line, while the neck of the average man curves inward at this point. It is the constant development which gives this straight line. Both Fitz and Corbett would consider it a great acquisition if their necks bulged between the ear and shoulder. Then they would be almost invulnerable at this point. sides to protect the delicate cords Wright's chances of surviving were very slight. As he is 60 years of age very slight. As he is 60 years of ago, he is less able to cope with the disease than a man some years his junior. Over two-thirds of the veteran's life have been spent upon the ball field.

Reports from his bedside yesterday stated that his condition was unchanged.

READY FOR FOOT BALL. ranton's Best Eleven Will Meet the Strondsburgs on Saturday. On Saturday the first real, live foot ball game of the season in Scranton will be played at the Base Ball park be-tween the Scranton Bicycle club eleven and the Stroudsburg Normal school. Several weeks of practice play have put the Scranton men in fine fettle and they gave an idea of their ability Tuesday, when, deprived of four of the reg-ular players, they ran up a score of thirty-six points against the eleven of St. Thomas' college, who could not make a tally. Connery and Allen played guards; Thayer and Walsh ends: Decker, quarter-back, and Walsh, Coggins and Noakes back of the line.

The great penna	nt race in the National league is very aptly commented upon by Sam Crane, the base ball writer for the New York Commercial Advertiser. What follows appeared in yesterday's paper and is a sensible view of the situation, which is only slightly al-tered by yesterday's Baltimore's vic-tory: "Under the league rules the Philadelphia club has the right to the postponed game, and consequently the game to have been played at the Polo grounds on Thursday will have to be played on some other day. The rules also make it imperative for the Baltimores to play their postponed game with the New Yorks, as it is the last se-ries with them. Consequently the Orioles are in the same position as they were previous to yesterday's game. They still have six games to play, and must win four to insure them the champlouship. Two games in one day, as will be made necessary here, is apt to be a great strain on the leaders, and I con-sidentheir chances of winning from the New Yorks somewhat lessened. If they can win both games from the Phillies they are all right, for no one looks for the New Yorks to beat them more than two games of the four."

CUP IS IN WILKES-BARRE.

Base Ball Trophy Was Yesterday Delivered to E. F. Bogert, President of the Wilkes-Barre Association and H. G. Merrill, Base Ball Writer of the Record.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 25.—The Tribune trophy cup, forfeited by the Scranton base ball club, of the East-ern league, to Wilkes-Barre, was delivered in this city this afternoon to E. F. Bogert, president of the Wilkes Barre base ball association, and H. G. Merrill, the base ball writer of the Wilkes-Barre Record, who have been selected as custodians of the trophy for one years. Upon the delivery of the cup the following acknowledgment was made;

(Copy.)

We, E. F. Bogert and H. G. Merrill, of Wilkes-Barre, hereby acknowledge the delivery to us of the Scranton Tribune Trophy cup; we receive it with the knowledge that it belongs to the donor until such time as it is finally given according to the trophy agreement; we bind ourselves to return it to the Scranton Tribune one week preceding the close of the 1896 Eastern league base ball season or at any time that the Scranton Tribune may dictate. was made: may dictate.

(Signed) E. F. Bogert. (Signed) H. G. Merrill. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 25, 1896.

The trophy was greatly admired by all who saw it, and will for sometime be placed on exhibition in Dilley's restaurant. Later it will probably be kept in the office of the Wilkes-Barre Lead-er, of which Mr. Bogert is editor. er, of which Mr. Bogert is eunor.
Wilkes-Barre cranks feel that the existence of the cup will exert a good in-fluence on the game in the two cities, and will urge both clubs to a greater effort in 1896. It is the general verdict that if Scranton and Wilkes-Barre finish close together next year there will be a real battle royal on the part of Scranton to get the cup, and on the part of Wilkes-Barre to keep it. Under the trophy agreement the cup must be won in three yearly series be-for it can be finally claimed by Wilkes-Barre or Scranton. Until then it is the property of The Tribune, but will be placed in the keeping of custodians for whichever club wins the series from year to year.

was unduly influenced and hypnotized by his young bride.

The elder Cooper, who was 70 years old and worth $20,000, with an invalid wife, became enamored of Jennie Perry, a young girl, who became his chambermaid during his wife's illness It is alleged that Cooper lavished cost-ly presents on her, and that the servant girl frequently ordered the wife to wash the former's clothing and to do other work about the house, till disease confined her to her bed and he died. Two months later Cooper and the ser vant girl, scarcely 20 years of age, were married, and six months after-ward he died. Three days before his death he made a will leaving his en-tire fortune to his new wife.

No better ev-idence than the following, which comes from an Elmira citizen, who has been cured of a very severe case at 77 years of age. Mr. William Thornton, of 127 West Market street, speaks of his case in this way: "I am 77 years old. I have been afflicted with that dreadful complaint (kidney disease) for over ten years, mak-ing my old age a burden. I was so bad as to be forced to carry a belt at all times, and, when my suffering became beyond endurance, I would put on the belt, drawing it tightly around me and buckle it, thus bringing an extreme pressure over thus bringing an extense pressure over the kidneys; this, undoubtedly, forced the urine out, a function which the kidneys themselves had become too diseased to perform. My condition I put down to a strain I received. I began taking Donn's Kidney Pills. I was much surprised, as the aliment was so severe and so long standing, while I had tried many remedies without any relief whatever. The pain I have experienced at times from straining in my efforts to discharge the urine wa in my efforts to discharge the urine was simply awful. I have done away with the use of my leather bett, and the pain has all gone, and I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all afflicted with kidney and rinary disorders."

Revival Services on Hampton Street. Hampton Street Methodist Episcopal church has entered upon a line of true progress. Last Sabbath the pastor anjounced that there was a floating running back over a period of two years and more, and called for subscriptions necessary to liquidate the debt. In a short space of time the necessary amount was in sight. The congregations are constantly increasing and this church bids fair to take its place as one of the effective societies of the West Side. Next Sabbath revival services will begin, in which the pastor will be assisted by that noble lady, Mrs. Grace Weiser-Davis, the singing evan-gelist. Mrs. Davis needs no introduc-tion to many of the people of our city. Yet to many she is not known. She has conducted meetings in many of the largest Methodist churches in the land Young, educated and accomplished, she unites with most devoted charac-ter, zeal and rare talents for Gospel She both sings and preaches the Gospel.

LIBRARY OF A GENTLEMAN DECEASED,

Some people dote on spooks,
Postage stamps, or files and hooks,
While to others old engravings are a feast;
But I much prefer the tale
Of "A library for sale,
Collected by a gentleman deceased."

You may never know his name. Or the limits of his fame.

He might have been a poet or a priest,
But you know his little ways
From the sermons or the plays
Collected by the gentleman deceased.

What phrases can compare With the Scarce or Very Rare, What sorrow with the Foxed, or Soiled or Creused,
As you read the auction mems,
On the Blerary gems
Collected by the gentleman deceased?

It and pages aren't cut, You think he never read them in the least;
While occasional dog's ears,
Or some annotation smears,
Say something for the gentleman deceased.

It is clear, it seems to me
Or, at least, it ought to be,
That a history may realily be pieced
From the books of divers kinds
