TWO STATES IN DANGER

Democrats Are Fearful of Losing Kentucky and Maryland.

CARLISLE CONSULTS CLEVELAND

The Two Leaders of the Administration Democracy Do Not, However, See Much Hope in the Outlook. Other Live Political News.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Secretary Carele's visit to the president at Gray dables has not for its object, as the gossips claim, the determination of a financial policy to be pursued, but is in relation to masters of deep import to the polities of the Democratic party. Fear of losing two Democratic states in the coming elections has caused Section 1. in the coming elections has caused Sec-retary Carlisle and President Cleveland to put their heads together and discuss the situation. If anything can be done in the states of Kentucky and Maryland to avert the impending cal-amity he realizes that now is the time to get to work, for the situation may soon be beyond the grasp of the politleaf managers, even if it is not already

Secretary Carlislie has received word that Democratic affairs are in very bad shape in Kentucky. The incon-gruity of the head of the Democratic ticket there, Colonel Hardin, the nom-inee for governor, declaring openly for free coinage, while standing on a sound money plaform, has caused very prom-inent men in the party to renounce the ticket, and declare that they will vote for a sound-money Republican. It will probably take the combined sagacity of President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle to devise a method of reconciting the differences now existing in the state, and it is considered quite doubtful if such an end can be consummated. Kentucky Republicans are in a white-heat of hope and anticipation of a glorious victory. The situation in Maryland is also becoming menacing for the Democrats. Splits in the party are accurring in a number of counties and more are threatened. It is the anti-Gorman element in that state which is causing the trouble. The alarming feature is the persistency with which the opposition to Gorman is maintained and the length which his opponents seem willing to proceed in order to secure his downfall. It is believed that they would be willing to turn the state over to the Republicans for one term if thereby they could freeze out Mr. Gorman. Indications point to the probability that the Democracy may be downed.

Of course President Cleveland does not want to lose either of these states this fall, for they will be needed very badly in the presidential elections of the succeeding year, so he and Secre-tary Carifsle are putting their heads together over the problem of saving them from Republican rule.

MCGILL NAMED IN JERSEY. The Democrats Hold an Enthusiastic Convention Their Platform.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26.—The Demo-ratic state convention today nominated for governor Alexander M. Gill, the present chancellor of New Jersey. fils nomination occurred on the first ballot, his only competitor, Augustus W. Cutler, of Morris county, obtaining altogether only 143 votes out of a total of 938, or a necessary 470, votes. As soon as Essex and Hudson countles voted the nomination of McGill was assured. Despite the fact that the assured. Despite the fact that the Democrats have been feeling hopeless regarding the outcome of the election this year it was an enthusiastic convention. The delegates sitting in Tay-lor's Opera house in their shirt sleeves shouted and cheered almost continuously, and the mention of McGill's was as many times the signal name was as many times the signal for rafter-ringing demonstration.

The platform reaffirms the national Democratic platform of 1892 and indorses the administration of President Cleveland. It congratulates the people upon the revival of prosperity and asserts that the industrial depression of the past three years is chargeable t othe national legislation enacted by the Republican party. The purchase of silver to be stored in the treasury and the enactment of unjust tariff laws to enrich a few favorites by the oppression of the millions of consumers are cited as main causes of the paralyzation of our markets. These depressing causes, it is claimed, have been remedied by a Democratic congress.

On state matters the platform denounces as malclously false the statements of the Republican platform that the government of New Jersey has been conducted by the Democratic party in a dishonest and extravagant manner. The adoption of a constitutional amendment is favored that will render impossible any law form. The Republican legislature of 1800 is charged with the responsibility for all laws permitting on horse races. The platform pledges the Democratic party to the enactment of laws that will secure to the people of New Jersey control of the portable waters of the state. The final clause in the platform is a demand that the laws of the state be amended to provide severe penalties for discrimination in the fixing of rates of transportation of freight in any wise injurious to the farmer or other people of the state. for rafter-ringing demonstration.

DURANT'S DEFENSE.

Relies Upon the Roll Call of a Medical College to Assist in Proving on Alibi. San Francisco, Sept. 26.—The defence in the Durant case today took up the important question of roll call at the lecture in the Cooper Medical college on the afternoon of the murder. It is upon this that Durant mainly relies for his alibi. This lecture began at 3.30 and continued until 475. It was a few minutes after three when Miss Lamont left the school from which, in the company of a young man, supposed to be Durant, she went to the church. She entered the church about five minutes after the adjournment of the lecture, and the roll call was made at the conclusion of the lecture. In view of these facts it is vital for the defense to show the presence of Durant tion to verify the roll call as to Dur-ant's presence, but the result of this was not admitted. An ineffectual ef-fort was made to get into evidence an opinion from the doctor as to whether or not Durant was present at the lec-ture, but this the prosecution pre-vented. He denied that there was such confusion in his class as to interfere with proper calling of the roll. The he said, was carefully guarded against interpolations, as it was ma-terial in arriving at the standing of the students.

A vigorous fight was made against the introduction of the roll call, but it was admitted. The prosecution tried to discredit the roll call by showing that frequently students answered for one another. The settlement of this ques-tion of the introduction of testimony went over until tomorrow.

Graphic Description of the Loss of a Spanish War Vessel.

GRAND SCENES OF HEROISM

With the Vessel Fast Going Down, Officers and Crew Refuse to Enter the Boats Until Their Friends Have Entered First.

Havana, Sept. 26.—The following are Havana, Sept. 26.—The following are the particulars of the accident off El Morro, Cuba, on Wednesday last, when the Spanish war vessel. Sanchez Bar-calztegul, sank: The Spanish cruiser left the bay of Havana with Admiral Manuel Delgado Y Parejo and his staff. He was about to make a circular cruise around the island. She cleared from her moorings at 11.30 on Wednesday night, steering for the narrow channel leading to the open sea. She was under easy steam, or half speed, when the lookout noticed a red and white light on the signal station at the entrance on the signal station at the entrance to the harbor, indicating that a steamer was standing in for the entrance of the channel. She was steaming in from the northeast end of the island. She was only two cable lengths away. Instantly Captain Banez, of the cruiser, ordered the helm to starboard, thus steering in to his right and close in on El Morro, leaving ample room for the incoming steamer to pass on his the incoming steamer to pass on his port side. He duly announced his course by a single blast of the whistle, that being the signal under the inter-national code. Both ships were rapid-ly nearing each other, bow to bow. Captain Ibanez's signal failed to elicit an instant reply. He repeated the single blast, but as less than the usual gie blast, but as less than the usual time interval clapsed between the two, the incoming steamer, the Mortera, in-terpreted is as one signal of two blasts, indicating the port helm. She answered by two whistles and changed her course. This made the collision inevi-table. They kent keys to seek other fense to show the presence of Durant at the college at that time. It produced two witnesses on the point today.

One of these was Dr. William F. Cheney, who delivered the lecture. He testified as to the subject, which was "Infants' Food," and said the rule to call the roll was followed at its conclusion. He had made an investigation to verify the roll call as to Durant at the college at the college at the college in table. They kept bow to each other. Captain Ioane, realizing the great and instant peril, gave the order for full speed astern, and ordered his wheel hard over to meet the new and unexpected condition of things. This necessitated thirty-four turns of the wheel and involved a loss of very valuable time.

Under such circumstances the ship was doomed. In vain did the captain of the Mortera order his ship full speed > of the Mortera order his ship full speed astern. Ere he could stop his headway the two iron steamer came together with a dreadful blow and crash It was 12.05 when they struck. Even in the face of instant death, full and perfect discipline was maintained on board the cruiser. With the stoical heroism of the Spanish sailor, Captain Ibanez gave orders to clear away and lower the boats. Lieutenant Ricardo Garcia Junco was on duty forward, and he knew that an immense hole had been knocked in near the bow plates. The forecastle was full of water. It continued to your into the ship, and > she commenced to sink by the head. Lieutenant Junco, recognizing the danger, Instantly reported to the admiral as follows: "Admiral, in five minutes the Sanchez Barcaiztegui will go down. The admiral, advanced in years and in poor health, in a quiet, self-possessed tone, replied: "Report what you have said to me to your captain, that he may take any precaution he deems ecessary." Obeying this order Lieuenant Junco reported to the captain, who issued his final orders. Previousv Cantain Ihanez had ordered the loading and firing of a cannon as a signal for help, but time did not permit. She was sinking too rapidly. All the boats were floated.

A Remarkable Scene Then followed a remarkable scene-the rough and ready sallors entered on contest of generosity and heroic selftental. "I will wait for the last boat; I have no one to mourn me," said one. Another cry was heard: "You that have wives and children get into the boats." The brave fellows refused to be first. The same spirit actuated all on board—officers and men alike. They were cool and self-possessed. The captain and his officers surrounded the venerable admiral on the bridge. The latter insisted on being the last to leave the ship. "Admiral," said Lieutenant Garcia, "If your excellency wishes, you can be lowered to a bost," which he declined, saying: "Thanks, my son, although aged I can help my

Then the admiral addressed the crew. "Haste, men, let all save themselves." The ship was sinking under them into the deep waters off the Moro. Almost by force the admiral was placed into a boat—that of Lieutenant Garcia Junco. Still, many remained on board, when a general cry went up that the ship was sinking. The third boat, containing the admiral, was still alongside, when an effort was made to clear her. When but a few yards away the ship gave a final lurch and disappeared amid a sea of creamy foam. The suc-tion caused by the sinking of so large a ship drew in everything nearby, including the boat containing the admiral, who, with all the crew, were lost.

WE ARE ALWAYS BUSY.

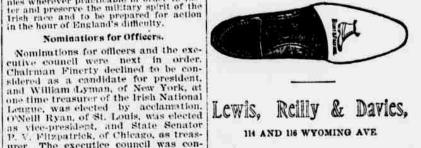

It has become evident after many years of earnest endeavor to obtain a measure of independence from the English government by peaceful agitation that appeals to reason and for justice are futile. It is left, therefore, for the men of the Irish race to proclaim against the truth recorded by all history that the liberties of a people ond the independence of a nation cannot be achieved by debate, but must be won upon the field of battle, and we declare our belief that the men of Ireland who are being driven into exile or into the graves of serfs in their native land by the English government, are entitled by the laws of God and man to use every means in their power to drive from their country the tyrant and usurper, and we believe that Ireland has the right to make England's difficulty her opportunity and to use all possible means to create that difficulty.

In view of these facts the members of this convention appeal with confidence to their American fellow citizens and all lovers of liberty to co-operate with them in adding the people of Ireland in the achievement of the same measure of liberty enjoyed in these United States.

Resolved, That this convention recommends the formation of military companies wherever practicable in order to foster and preserve the military spirit of the Irish race and to be prepared for action in the hour of England's difficulty.
