GUILTY FIRST DEGREE.

Nelson Miller Will Hang for Killing the llungarians on the Mountain.

At the opening of court yesterday morning the big court room was jammed full of people eager to hear the verdict in the Miller dynamite case. After several juries in minor cases had come in, the jury in the Miller case filed into court and took their places in the jury box. Judge Woodward, be fore taking the verdict, asked if the prisoner was in court, and after being satisfied that Miller was sitting in the prisoner's corner, the jury handed their verdict to the court. Court Clerk Ward then went through the usual

"Gentlemen of the jury, hearken to your verdict as the court hath recorded it. You do say you find the defendant, Nelson Miller, guilty of murder in the first degree. So say you all?" Instantly every eye turned to the cor-ner in which Miller was sitting, but he had not changed his position nor made any outward sign when the verdict was Martin J. Mulhall, attorney the defendant, asked to have the polled, and each member of the jury ported, and each member of the jury arose as his name was culled and an-nounced as his verdict guilty of murder in the first degree. Judge Woodward then discharged the jury without any

It is understood that the jury stood eleven to one for conviction of murde in the first degree from their first bal lot until they agreed at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Miller would not say anything except that he was innocent and the verdict was a mistake. He will probably be sentenced today. Messrs. McGovern, Mulhall and Freas will, at the proper time, move for a new trial and will fight the case to the

When the verdict was told to Sarah Miller and Hester Brace, who are in jail charged with being implicated in the same crime, they broke down, and their howls were heard all through the jail. The other negroes, Bird, Jordan, Shafer and James Miller, said nothing when told of Miller's fate, and would

HELD UNDER BAIL. The Scranton Attorneys Must Stand Trial

for Barratry.

Yesterday morning Watson & Zimmerman, the Scranton attorneys recently arrested for barratry and con-spiracy, were brought before Judge Lynch on a writ of habeas corpus.

M. F. Clifford, a detective, told how he had worked Zimmerman by telling him he wanted to help canvass for parties to bring damage suits against the Traction company. Zimmerman told him that he had already hired Perrego for this work, but promised Clifford a $5 commission on each case Chamberlain, it seems, was another detective. The two got Zimmerman to come to Plains and then back to Scranton, where Michael Hines was induced by misrepresentations of Perrego's agent to enter suit against the Trac-tion company. Watson also gave wit-ness a letter of introduction to one Loftus, of Moosic, who he said was an agent for him in the same business.

Clifford's testimony was corroborated Lynch held each attorney in $500 ball for their appearance at court.

BIG FIRE IN THE MINES.

A Body of Gas Is Touched Off and a Fire Is Started That Is Uncontrollable.

What promises to be one of the biggest fires in the history of the anthra-cite regions started last evening at Plymouth. Six men were at work in the shaft of the Gaylord mines of the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal company, at Plymouth, doing some crib bing. A body of gas was touched off by the lamps of the party and the mine was set on fire. The six men were hauled up to the surface through the fire and escaped with slight burns. In spite of every effort the fire spread rapidly and was soon beyond control. At a late hour last night it was still spreading into the mines, which will probably have to be flooded to extinguish the flames.

THE MAN THAT'S HERE.

Alas! alas! the Man That's Here, how jealously he rants, Because he is the only one he thinks should wear the pants!
But go and see him on the bike, when racing forms appal.

And there you'll find The Man That's
Here pants with no pants at all!

His scrawny arms are bare and brown, and gnarled and brown his legs, And with a sponge held in his mouth he moves his weary "pegs," Thus, as his cycle moves along, his back seems to aspire
To rise as camels' backs arise, or go a little higher.

And thus The Man That's Here, you see, as every one doth know,
Displays his body by the "yard" while scarce a "foot" we show.
Now view the "Bloomer Lady," or as you've said, the "it."
How calm she seems upon the bike. How well her "bloomers" fit!

All modestly she moves along. How straight she is-how fine! A symphony upon the blke-a Goddess of the Nine! Don't envy woman's longing thus to seek the sun and breeze—
To view the fields, the orchards, and the lovely lawns and trees.

Don't shame them from the blessing which, ah, much to their surprise, Has come with cycling journeys and needful exercise.

Her privilege is not abused. Her joys are void of flaws, Because her sphere is circumscribed by well-known social laws.

But view the way The Man That's Here propriety disdains— He storms decorum at his will and breaks through social chains, eless has he grown about his That now the wayward creature seeks in vain to win a wife!

And so, the girls, remembering well the stories read of old.
How lovers brave sought ladies fair, and tales of romance told.
Wear "dickles," "vests" and "necktles" as mementos of a time When lovers were real lovers, and love was most subkme! -Buffalo News.
