D. C. Hughes, D. D., Has Resigned His Charge at Jackson Street Church.

As was anticipated for many weeks Rev. D. C. Hughes, D. D., has resigned from the pastorate of the Jackson Street Baptist church. The resignation is the result of church discord and lack of appreciation.

When Dr. Hughes came here six years

When Dr. Hughes came here six years ago he found his congregation worshipping in a small, unpretentious structure. Immediately after his arrival a new and handsome place of worshipwas talked of by pastor and people, and, at Dr. Hughes' urging, the congregation tore down the old structure and built on the site a beautiful church at a cost of many thousands of dollars.

The church roll of members was increased gradually, but even at the high water mark the church debt was a burden, and the members were handleapped.

Monday evening, and was kept a secret from the public.

The church will take final action on the evening of Oct. 14. Whatever will be the result of the meeting it is stated that Dr. Hughes will not reconsider. He has arranged to preach next Sunday at the Penn Avenue Baptist church, which is pastorless. This makes the third resignation in Baptist church circles in a short time, Revs. Partridge and Collins having departed a few weeks ago. weeks ago.

Wedded Last Evening.

At the home of the bride's parents, on At the home of the bride's parents, on Hampton street, last evening, Edwin J. Davies, of North Bromley avenue, and Agnes E. Jenkins were married by Rev. D. P. Jones, of the Tabernacle church. The service occurred at 8 o'clock and was witnessed by a number of the friends of the contracting narties. Wiss Lenkins was dressed in parties. Miss Jenkins was dressed in a fawn color costume with silk lace. She presented a beautiful appearance. She was accompanied by Miss Cassie James and Miss Margaret Reese. Mr. Davis had Charles Majer and George Davies, brother of the groom, as at-tendants. After the ceremony a sup-per was served and the following guests enjoyed an evening's pleasure: Misses Margaret Davies, Louise Davies, Kathrine Davies, Alice Davies, Mrs. Enoch Davies, Arice Davies, Mrs. Enden Davies, Mrs. Reese Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs Wil-liam J. Thomas, David Jenkins, John Richards, Alfred Josephs, Eugene Cosgrove, John Mackreth, Charles Gallon Alfred John, John Davis, Lewis Jen-kins. The young couple w'll live with the bride's parents for a time.

Death of John Evans.

John Evans, father of Police Officer Thomas Evans, died of heart trouble et 11.10 o'clock last evening, at his home, on Hampton street. Deceased was well known on this side. He has been suffering for some time, and the death last evening was not wholly unexpected. An extended account of his life will be given tomorrow.

always a blue swallow tail, with brass buttons, and his eyes focused at a point about three inches from the center of his nose. But that didnt prevent his carrying a very big heart, and he al-ways had scores of friends. One day when the bill was up for consideration, the late General Denver was upon the floor of the house as an ex-member from Ohio, and while passing around in the rear of the seats on the Republican side he met the Democratic Gabe, who was walking back and forth gesticulating excitedly, and bringing his elenched right fist down into the hollow of his left hand to the accompaniment of ex pletives that would hardly look well

What's the matter, Gabe; what's all this excitement about?" questioned the general, as Gabe let out an exceedingly jagged cuss word. "Trouble?" snorted Gabe, excitedly:

"trouble enough! That pension bill is up and all these cowardly nincompoops up and all these cowardly nincompoops are going to vote for it. It's sure to pass, sure to pass," and the trate statesman cavorted around like a wild bull that had unexpectedly run afour a red flar.

"But why don't you get the floor and

One Flirt Neatly Rebuked.

And that calls to mind a story of Bouck that was current on the streets during his public life here. He was very popular among society ladies, and his bright witticisms made him a gen-eral favorite at receptions and banquets. One day while riding toward the capitol in an F street car he sat opposite several ladies near the center. One of the ladles noticed that Gabe was smiling sweetly and indulging in a sly wink occasionally, so she crowded a sly wink occasionally, so she crowded up closer to her neighbor and motioned him to sit beside her. As Gabe seated himself in the vacant place she said: "Mr. Bouck, what's the use of sitting over there smiling and winking at me when you can sit close beside me and "blaves"." "I beg your pardon, madam," said Gabe; "I was smiling and winking at that little colored girl up in the further corner."

The misfit eyes had caused her to miscalculate.

One Impossibility.

Senator Edmunds was once standing with a visiting English statesman on the high steps at the west front of the capitol, looking down Pennsylvania avenue toward the treasury department. The stranger had seen much to interest and amuse him in Washing-

"You have a wonderful country and a wonderful people here, Mr. Senator. Nothing can be impossible with such go-ahead inhabitants."

"Oh, yes." said the senator; "some things are impossible here. It is impossible to march a brass band down that avenue and have a crowd of colored people go in the opposite direction at the same time."

Not Up in Art.

Not Up in Art.

A congressman from the far west, walking along F street one day, saw in a show window a little statuette in clay of a ragged, bare-footed urchin who had stutzted his toe, and had the injured foot up on his knee caressing it. On the margin of the base were inscribed the words, "By gosh!"

"By Josh," mused the statesman, thoughtfully, "I wonder what the sculptor's other name is."—Washington Star.

Gabe Bouck and the Detested Peusion Bill-Senator Edmunds' Definition of the Impossible—An Art Note.

While Gabe Bouck was a member of congress from the Oshbosh district in Wisconsin a pension bill was before the house during one of its sersions that caused him considerable vexation of spirit and tribulation, for while his personal convictions were directly opposed to it, his personal interests were strong enough to whip him into line, and when the bill came up for final disposition Gabe voted with the majority and the bill came up for final disposition Gabe voted with the majority and the bill came up for final disposition Gabe was peculiar, both in dress and looks. His coat was always a blue swallow tail, with brass louttons and his eyes focused at a point to detail the content of the content of the first of the series of centests for the Temple cup between Cleveland, and Baltimore today.

For four innings it was a pitcher's battle between Young and McMahon, both men pitching superb ball. Then the batters got to work and the next five innings were replete with hard and scientific hitting and phenomenal fielding. When the Baltimores forged ahead in the eighth the game seemed lost to Cleveland, but Tebeau's men pulled themselves together and tied the score in their half. for which the governor assembled them in special session.

The vote by which the bill was carried turnishes the strongest proof of the sentiment of the state with reference to prize fighting. The only rallying point of the minority was opposition to the emergency clause which carried the bill into immediate effect. Certain of the members honestly regarded this as an injustice to such of the citizens of Dallas as had spent large sums in anticipation of the fight and opposed it for that reason alone. Their argu-ments were not effective, however, and the vote in the house on the final pass-age of the bill showed but five votes in opposition with 107 in its favor. In the senate the bill was carried with only one negative vote in the twenty-seven that were cast.

The bill makes prize fighting a felony and imposes a punishment upon the principals for every infraction of the law by imprisonment in the peniten-tlary for a term of not less than two and not more than five years.
