PERSONAL.

C. E. Schmidt, of Adams avenue, is in Borea, O., on business.

Attorney George B. Davidson has returned from Philadelphia.

Frank Detweiler, of this city, is home from Chicago, where he spent three days among friends visiting.

Rev. Foster L. Gift has gone to Ellysburg to attend the North Branch synod of the Lutheran church.

Alderman W. S. Millar returned yesterday from Philadelphia, where he had been for a few days on legal business.

John L. Wagner and Miss Lena Minich were married this evening at the home of the bride's parents, 125 Liberty street.

D. V. Gardner and H. H. Fordham, two prominent Montrose business men, the latter accompanied by his son, Edward, are in the city.

Fred S. Godfrey, proprietor of the Valley House, is in New York on business connected with the Forty-third Regiment association to witness the dedication of the tablet marking the regiment's position in the Pickett charge at Gettysburg.

Among those who left yesterday for Gettysburg on the excursion of the One Hundred and Forty-third Regiment association to witness the dedication of the tablet marking the regiment's position in the Pickett charge at Gettysburg, are: Lacy, Captain M. L. Blair and two children, City Assessor H. D. Jones, M. J. Kelly, John H. Kneib, James Young, J. L. Crawford and wife, Attorney T. F. Penman, Attorney A. J. Colborn, T. C. Snover and E. V. Vanhook.

Mr. R. Bell, until recently the editor of the Scranton Times, yesterday bade farewell to the metropolis of northeastern Pennsylvania and departed for Washington, where he will serve a number of newspapers, including The Tribune, as capital city correspondent. Mr. Bell's stay of a year in Scranton has been profitable in the formation of many pleasant acquaintances, and has not been without substantial business success. He has proved an amiable, gifted and honorable journalist, whose departure will occasion to many friends a sense of sadness.

In an article about the newspapers of Buffalo, Major Moses P. Handy, of the Chicago Times-Herald, writes in a well-known former Scrantonian: "The Butlers—E. H. and Ambrose, who run the Daily Buffalo News, have taken over the country for their enterprise and industry. They were poor boys in a Pennsylvania mining town and used to go to work with dinner pails. Starting Sunday paper in Buffalo about twenty years ago with $1,500 they are now prosperous enough to indulge in a car. By his side was his sister and her husband, Alexander Jankowski. She showed far more anxiety concerning the trial than did her brother.

About 10:20 the prisoner was arraigned and the task of securing a jury entered upon. Fifty-four jurors were called before twelve men, competent to try the case, were secured. There were the usual number of men who had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and who had fixed opinions concerning the murder that evidence could not shake. Twenty-two were stood aside and twelve challenged by defendant. At 3 p. m. a jury, consisting of the following, had been secured:

Benjamin Smith, farmer, Scott; Jacob Walk, carpenter, Scranton; William Meade, farmer, Greenfield; Horton S. Gardner, tax collector, Scott; Henry Henitz, laborer, Scranton; Arthur Hausman, clerk, Scranton; Seth Wrigley, carpenter, Scranton; R. W. Woodworth, bookkeeper, Scranton; D. W. Wylie, bookkeeper, Scranton; J. F. Culey, conductor, Dunmore; J. W. Lally, miner, Archbald.

Case Opened for Commonwealth.

Attorney C. E. Balentine opened the case for the commonwealth. He said that on the night of Feb. 9 last a number of Polanders were assembled in the saloon of Peter Kozialyak, on South Washington avenue. Among those present were John Vishniski, the prisoner; John Davidzak and Felix Davidzak, brothers, and Alexander Jankowski, with whom Vishniski boarded. All were drinking beer and presently a fight started. John Vishniski seemed determined to cause a disturbance. The Davidzaks took no part whatever in the quarrel.

After the disturbance had subsided Alexander Jankowski started for home and was followed by Vishniski, whose sister is Jankowski's wife. The accused boarded there and arriving at his home Vishniski went to his room and secured his revolver and against the entreaties of his sister, who thought he meditated trouble, prepared to go out again. At his request Jankowski accompanied Vishniski and they started back to Peter Kozialyak's saloon. On the way to that place they met Felix

WAS SENTENCED TO DEATH
Death Penalty Imposed on Murderer Boschino.

JUDGE REFUSED A NEW TRIAL
Immediately After Discharging the Rule Judge Gunster Sentenced Boschino to Be Hanged—Date Will Be Fixed by Governor Hastings.

Murderer Joseph Boschino was re-sentenced to a new trial and Judge Gunster yesterday morning sentenced him to be hanged. The crime of which he was convicted was the cold-blooded murder of a young countryman, Francesco Conforti, at Bunker Hill, Dunmore, on Sunday evening, Nov. 11, 1894.

Boschino, Conforti, Rocco Salvatore, Antonio Imbranio and John Friganon met together in Rinaldo Lall's saloon, on "Duck" or Willow street, Dunmore, that Sunday afternoon. Conforti had been invited to the place by three other men to the parochial residence of Rev. Gerald McMurphy, pastor of St. Mary's church, to make arrangements for the funeral on using the way home Conforti dropped into Lall's resort and joined the others aforementioned in a few rounds of drinks. About 5:30 they left their home, at the same time and direction, as they all lived at Bunker Hill.

When they reached the Pennsylvania road, at a point near at No. 5, they began to jostle one another about on the road. Conforti and Boschino locked arms and indulged in a light wrestling. Conforti, the latter, was thrown down and after he arose he whipped out a razor and attempted to slash right and left with it. Rocco Salvatore caught hold of him and prevented him from using the blade. This had apparently been smoothed over, and Boschino left the group and started on ahead of the others.

Conforti, the latter, was thrown down and after he arose he whipped out a razor and attempted to slash right and left with it. Rocco Salvatore caught hold of him and prevented him from using the blade. This had apparently been smoothed over, and Boschino left the group and started on ahead of the others.

Killed from Ambush.

Conforti went up the same path traversed by Boschino, and when he got about twenty feet or so from the wagon road from which the path diverges, Boschino stepped out from behind a bush and shot and killed him. He fired two shots into his victim's body and then ran away, firing from his revolver as he went. The body of the murdered man was found about a short distance from the spot where he was killed.

Boschino remained in hiding for two weeks. He was captured at the house of an Italian in Forest City at the end of that time. He was tried at the January sessions, 1895, of over and terminated by the jury. Boschino was sentenced to be hanged by Judge John R. Jones took part by virtue of his office. Attorney Ward and Horn and L. P. Wedderburn represented the defendant. The trial of the case before Judge Gunster took up twelve days and a verdict of murder in the first degree was returned by the jury.

Immediately after the trial a new trial was granted; the rule was argued before the succeeding argument court, the three judges on the bench. The decision of the court was that Boschino had a fair trial and was not entitled to a new one. He was brought down from the county jail yesterday morning and taken to the county jail, where he was held. Judge Gunster said he would be pleased to give Boschino a second trial if the first had exceeded the bounds of justice, but the court was convinced that the verdict was a just one and it should not be disturbed.

IN THE OTHER COURT ROOMS.

Verdicts of Not Guilty Taken in Cases of Alleged Violation of Laws.

Judge Clinton R. Savidge, of Northumberland, is presiding in court room No. 2, this week, and the first case called to his attention was that of Barney Mackey, of Carthage, charged by John Marion, of the same place, with aggravated assault and battery. A verdict of not guilty was returned and the costs divided.

Verdicts of acquittal were taken in two cases against John Grzywniski. He was charged with selling liquor without a license and selling on Sunday. When called to the stand, Joseph Grzywniski, was on trial on similar charges.

Before Judge Edwards, in No. 3, a verdict of not guilty was taken in the case of Abraham Glazier, who was charged with selling liquor without a license. When court adjourned Michael Krowby was on trial for feloniously wounding John W. Blazinger, of Blazing Stump, a suburb of Carbondale. Peter for a long time hovered between life and death at the Emergency hospital in Carbondale.

Lloyd, late of Dickson City, and letters of administration were granted to the widow, Alice Lloyd.

VISHNISKI MURDER CASE.

Young Man on Trial for Killing Felix Davidzak on Feb. 9 Last.

John Vishniski was put on trial before Judge Gunster in the main court room yesterday morning for the murder of Felix Davidzak, on South Washington avenue, on the night of Feb. 9, 1895. The defendant is a handsome young Pole who has not yet reached his twenty-first year. He was neatly, even stylishly attired yesterday, and sat at the defendant's table along with his attorney, M. A. McGinley, without a shade of care or anxiety depicted on his face. By his side was his sister and her husband, Alexander Jankowski. She showed far more anxiety concerning the trial than did her brother.

About 10:20 the prisoner was arraigned and the task of securing a jury entered upon. Fifty-four jurors were called before twelve men, competent to try the case, were secured. There were the usual number of men who had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and who had fixed opinions concerning the murder that evidence could not shake. Carbon Instrument Has a Capacity for Launching Five Men Into Eternity at a Time and Ours Will Have Accommodations for Three.

Scranton seems destined to have a legal hanging bee or two, and the county commissioners and sheriff are getting ready for it—there is any evidence from the fact that the county officers have been "reading up" on gallows, and have secured a model of one of those beautiful instruments which swung five Molly Maguires into eternity in March Chumk some years ago.

Commissioner S. W. Roberts and Sheriff F. H. Clemons went to Match Chumk yesterday to look at a model of the Carbon county death machine. The model was made several years ago by a prisoner, and Carbon county officials praised the gallows' work so highly that such a thing was possible and explained the condition he found which induced him to believe that it was a bullet from a revolver that caused death.

An Unsatisfactory Witness.

Joseph Tereslevitz was next sworn. He boarded in the same house with Davidzak at the time of the murder and proved a most unsatisfactory witness. At the coroner's inquest he testified about the murder, but yesterday professed to know nothing, and District Attorney Jones openly charged that he had been tampered with. Judge Gunster was evidently of the same opinion, for he said Tereslevitz, though apparently unwilling to talk, would have to tell all he knew about the case before he could be excused.

District Attorney Jones wrestled with him for half an hour, but elicited no information other than that he was in Kozialyak's saloon at the time of the murder and saw the trouble there. He also saw Davidzak when he was dead. This morning he will be cross-examined by Attorney McGinley.

It is evident the prosecution will have a difficult task in getting the real facts with regard to the killing from the witnesses, as they appear to be anxious to shield Vishniski.

DRUNK DIED FROM HIS INJURIES.

Stephen Drunk, who was severely injured Saturday at an accident at Johnson No. 2 colliery, Priebeburg, by which his miner, Joseph Istack, was instantly killed, died yesterday at the Lackawanna hospital from his injuries. This makes the accident a double fatality.
