C. H. Reynolds, of Kingston, was in the city yesterday. William Coyne, of Adams avenue, was in the city yesterday. Captain E. E. Morris has been added to the staff of the Scranton Truth. Miss Genevieve McCann left on Monday for New York. Mrs. Louis Gortz and Mrs. George Farber have returned from a visit with friends in New York city. Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Brown and children are home from Sag Harbor, where they spent the summer. Congressman and Mrs. J. A. Scranton are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Thompson of Birmingham. W. J. Northup, late receiving teller of the Third National bank, will sail for Europe on the steamship St. Louis. Mr. Northup will be absent from this country about one year, during which time he will travel through Europe. Fred Kenyon Jones, musical director for the Noss Jolly company, now playing at Davis theater, was a resident of this city twenty-five years ago, that time he was associated severally with N. A. Hulbert and L. B. Powell, two of our leading dealers in musical instruments. He left Scranton on March 13, 1868, and returned on Oct. 13, 1893. Since Professor Jones was in this city last he has traveled extensively and is now filling a good position with the Jolly company. He marvels at the change that has taken place here during a quarter of a century. During his short stay Professor Jones has been busy writing for the friends of his younger days. He is the composer of the incidental music for "The Kodak," which is pleasing many patrons at the Davis. Professor Jones is still a young man and he aims for higher achievements in his chosen profession. Mrs. Frances B. Swan, of Scranton, who is a member of the Lackawanna county delegation to the convention of directors of the poor, enjoys the distinction of being the only woman poor director in the United States, outside of Massachusetts, as evidenced by the courts. Her appointment was by Judge Archibald six years ago, and it came as a well-merited recognition of her long and noble efforts in various lines of philanthropy. The wisdom of the appointment has been time and time again justified. Mrs. Swan has been greatly sought for what she believed right, and has invariably triumphed. In appearance she is extremely attractive, of stately presence and very charming countenance. Her abundant hair, which is pure white, is styled in a simple and youthful, contrasts markedly with the freshness and healthfulness of her complexion. In every branch of her work she has been in Scranton Mrs. Swan has long been the acknowledged leader.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

At Menz & Hanson's. The Best Feather Pillows. Live Geese Feathers. Down Quilts and Comforters. Blankets with neat and elegant Borders. All at the lowest possible prices. On the Death of Mrs. Jessie D. Connell. At a regular meeting of the Teachers' Mutual Benefit association, of the city of Scranton, the following resolutions were unanimously passed: Whereas, The angel of death has called upon and taken flight with the spirit of one of our most esteemed and talented members, Mrs. Jessie D. Connell, a lady possessed of rare, innate and acquired abilities, a zealous teacher and lover of her kind, a lady in all that the word implies, of fixed principles evolved from thought formed from deep research in the mysteries of the learned and occult sciences and correspondingly kind in word and manner. Resolved, That her death has left a void in our organization that cannot easily be filled. Resolved, That the face no more seen and the voice no more heard shall be remembered by us, and that her noble life be a constant reminder of lofty purposes and an example worthy of close imitation. We therefore mourn her loss and extend to her sorrowing relatives, friends and pupils our heartfelt sympathy, commending them to His care who hath said: "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." VISHNISKI MURDER CASE

Getting the Evidence on the Part of the Commonwealth.

STORY OF DEFENDANT'S SISTER

Was Given with Much Reluctance and District Attorney Jones Says It Differs from the Story Told at the Inquest.

There is something strange in the great fascination that surrounds a person who stands charged with a grave crime. The trial of John Vishniski, the Polish defendant, for the murder of Felix Davidzak on the South Washington avenue flats, Feb. 9 last, which is now on in the district court room at the handsome defendant. Alex Jankowski and his wife, who is a sister of Vishniski, at best she is a defendant in the case. She is very much as though he does not realize the ominous situation wherein he is placed. Joseph Tereshevitz, who was the witness stand when cross-examination was cross-examined yesterday. There was a surprise in the evidence. John Davidzak, a brother of the murderer, was the next witness. He described the shooting, said he saw the defendant point the revolver and fire into Felix's left breast. He identified the victim as the man who had been shot; there was a bullet hole in it. The garment was offered in evidence. Thomas Davidzak was one of those who might have been the witness. The commonwealth suspects that he has been spirited away to avoid telling anything derogatory to the defendant. A Blood-thirsty Witness. Telesko Purshewitch is not much older than the defendant. He is Polish, but speaks English well. He testified on a first story that he arrived at the scene of the murder a few minutes after the shooting. He saw the defendant described what he saw. Davidzak was dead, there was no doubt of that. The witness answered the district attorney that he was standing on the porch where he lived. Attorney McGinley, by devious cross-examination, got the witness to make exceedingly long and rambling statements, which went far to nullify his testimony in chief. Purshewitch unhesitatingly admitted that he bears no love for Vishniski and would be delighted to see him hanged.

Theodore Swantac was sworn. He was an eye-witness of the shooting. He was with the defendant and saw him murder a man when it happened. There was little or no provocation, according to his story, when Vishniski drew the pistol and sent a human soul to eternity. The witness on cross-examination said that Chief of Police Simpson is saying his heard now; has promised to pay him for his services. The witness on cross-examination of Buffalo, through whose instrumentality the defendant was captured, was put upon the witness stand after dinner. When he was sworn, he testified that he saw the defendant shoot a man in Scranton, the prisoner answered that he knew it. Defendant's Sister on the Stand. Mrs. Alexander Jankowski, sister of the defendant, was called to the stand by the commonwealth. She was sitting with her husband at the defendant's table alongside her brother, and when District Attorney Jones called out her name she cast a wistful gaze upon him and seemed reluctant to go upon the witness stand. Her answers were given with reluctance. She testified that she saw the movements of her brother the night of the murder, before it happened and afterward. Vishniski boarded with her. He came in about 9 o'clock, went to his room and left in a few minutes with her husband. They walked leisurely out of the house. Her brother was the first to come back. She doesn't remember the time her husband returned. She denied that she charged him with shooting Felix Davidzak. The district attorney had the stenographic notes of the testimony taken at the coroner's inquest. He inquired if she had not sworn at the inquest that she charged her brother directly with shooting Davidzak. She denied that she ever said these words. She did not, she said, advise him to hide under the bed, away from the police officers, but she admitted that she gave him some money to go away. Attorney McGinley objected to the manner in which she was examined and asked the district attorney to let her go on and tell the story according to the best of her recollection. McGinley charged Mr. Jones with endeavoring to entrap the witness by asking a list of catch questions.

Story on Cross Examination. The story told on cross-examination was that her husband came home from the office at 9 o'clock and she and her husband retired to bed about 8:30. A few minutes thereafter John, the defendant, came to the bedroom door and asked her to get up. John was the first to return. She heard no shots while they were gone, and when John returned to the house, he came in through the kitchen. She was standing in the kitchen. His face was covered with blood and he had a revolver in his hands. She took the revolver from him and hid it in the chest and threw the weapon in the vault. Her brother was in his bedroom when she came back. The police arrested her husband and took him to jail. Her brother was in the house while the officers were searching for the murderer, but they did not take him. She gave him $10, with which to get away. She advised him to go away, because her husband had been arrested, and she thought that her brother might be arrested, too. The district attorney proposed to prove that the witness had been tampered with. That she swore differently at the coroner's inquest, and that she had several conversations with Officer Steven Dyer, which were in direct contradiction to her present testimony. Mr. McGinley objected on the ground that the district attorney cannot contradict his own witness, that the offer did not show in what language Mrs. Jankowski made the admissions to Officer Dyer, she being unable to talk English, and that the matter of tampering with the witness has existence in the minds of only the district attorney and Chief Simpson. The objection was sustained.

Bennet Saw the Wounded Man. Fred Bennett, who lives diagonally across the street from where the murder was committed, heard pistol shots the night of the murder. His testimony was that he saw a man leaning against the fence, apparently in great agony. At least four men in a group came out and at first assisted, later carried this man away. He saw another man entering. Mr. Bennett could not recognize any of the men. He pointed out on the map of the street, where the murder was done, and the direction he saw the man running. Anthony Bekak was the last witness heard yesterday. The only bit of information gleaned from his testimony was that Peter Koziolek ran the time of the murder, and in which liquor was sold without a license. Koziolek is now under indictment for keeping a tippling house. Bekak said he does not sell intoxicating drinks there, dispensed nothing more ardent than gingerale. He said he never witnessed on the part of the commonwealth to be heard.

Blazing Stump Shooting Affray Tried Before Judge Edwards.

IT MAY CAUSE A LEGAL FIGHT

Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company Claims to Own the River—Two Wilkes-Barre Water Companies Are Also Anxious for Fight.

In connection with a new plan of the Scranton Gas and Water company for increasing its present large water supply and storage, there seems to be a lively legal fight in prospect, which may involve the Scranton company, the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company and the Citizens Water company, and the Crystal Water company, of Wilkes-Barre. The issue is destined to be of especial importance to Wilkes-Barre and Scrantonians for many seasons. The Scranton company has for several years been following a policy of increasing its water storage capacity by buying up the property of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, and the Crystal Water company, of Wilkes-Barre.
