MERELLO FULL OF FIGHT.
Will Strongly Oppose the Efforts to Bring Him Home.
Advisers received yesterday from the Barring & McSweeney detectives in Boston stated that the Italian arrested as Crescenzo Merello, the Old Forge murderer, continues to deny his identity and will make a strong legal fight at Friday's hearing and then later against requisition. The Lackawanna county commissioners and the detective agency, however, are sanguine of the possibility of landing Merello in the county jail within ten days.

Affiliated Boards of Lackawanna County in Session.

BOROUGH COUNCILMEN SCORED

The first convention of its kind ever held in the state—Two Eminent Sanitarians of Philadelphia Present. New Sanitary Code Discussed.

The first semi-annual convention of the Associated Boards of Health of Lackawanna county was held yesterday in the board of health rooms, in the city hall. Two sessions were held, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. The event was remarkable for two reasons. First, because it was the first convention of its kind ever held in this state, this organization being the pioneer in the county. Second, because the sessions were honored with the presence of two of Pennsylvania's greatest sanitarians, Dr. Benjamin Lee, of Philadelphia, secretary of the state board of health, and Dr. W. B. Atkinson, of Philadelphia, secretary of the associated boards of health of Pennsylvania.

The convention opened shortly after 2 o'clock, with Dr. J. K. Bentley in the chair. There were present the following officers and delegates: President, J. K. Bentley, M. D., Scranton; vice-president, F. L. Van Sickle, M. D., Blakely; secretary and treasurer, M. C. Judge, Taylor; executive committee, S. D. Davis, M. D., Jermy; Dr. J. C. Elmhurst, M. D., Elmhurst; J. W. Houser, M. D., Taylor; B. W. Cooney, Dunmore; H. L. Thompson, Blakely; Joseph J. Dolphin, Olyphant; W. A. Payne, M. D., Scranton; Sylvanus Smith, Dunmore; L. S. Graves, M. D., Jermy; W. P. Kennedy, M. D., Priceburg; Thomas F. Mahely, Jessup; William Van Doren, M. D., Archbald; Michael Moran, Archbald; J. Burke, Archbald; Thomas Boundy, Mayfield; Walter Briggs, Scranton; Richard Thomas, Scranton; E. E. Weston, M. D., Taylor; J. F. Tabbs, Taylor; William A. Atkinson, M. D., Philadelphia; Benjamin Lee, M. D., Philadelphia; Charles P. Knapp, M. D., Wyoming.

Dr. Bentley's Opening Address.
Dr. Bentley delivered a short opening address, which he introduced Dr. Benjamin Lee, who gave a lengthy and learned dissertation on the sanitary code of Pennsylvania for the restriction of communicable diseases. In his professional remarks he outlined the growth of health boards in this commonwealth. Ten years ago, when the state board of health was organized, there were only fifteen municipal boards in existence. Now there are 600 boards, and it is hoped that by the enactments of the next legislature 1,500 boards will be organized.

Dr. Lee commended the organization of the associated boards in this county, the first and only organization of its kind in the state, and hoped that the sanitarians of Lackawanna county would be emulated throughout the state.

He then had read the new sanitary code, approved June 13, 1895, which makes of a board of health an independent body co-ordinate with the council and not a creature of it. Dr. Lee pointed out the important phases of the new law and gave a detailed explanation of some seemingly ambiguous clauses. The law gives the board almost unlimited powers. It lays down the duties of the board, and instructs it to enforce and in addition gives the board the power to make the regulations even more stringent if it so wishes.

With regard to the Social Evil.
The question of regulating the social evil was touched upon lightly by Dr. Lee. He hoped in a few years that the matter would receive legislative attention. Placarding houses where cases of contagious diseases are located is, by the new law, left to the discretion of local boards. Dr. Lee spoke in favor of placarding and advised the local boards to make this clause mandatory. Many people, he said, contend that placarding is liable to create a panic and that a person in dread of a disease is more likely to contract the disease. He pointed out that this is a very old and a very often a desirable thing as a "good, wholesome dread" of a disease is a very good thing to have up to the necessity of better sanitation.

Among the many new features of the law upon which Dr. Lee laid particular stress was the clause governing undertakers. Hereafter they will not be permitted to use an ice box in cases of death from contagious disease and it will be the duty of the undertaker to print the notice of death and to have appended "no funeral." This latter clause is to prevent members of the afflicted family from going to the newspaper and placing notices in the paper, thereby placing newspaper men in danger of contracting the contagion. Dr. Lee recommended the erection of a disinfecting plant in this city.

The utter disregard which borough councils show to their local boards of health occupied the attention of the after-noon session.

Thomas Boundy, editor of the Jermy Press, who represented the Mayfield board of health, stated that there is a continual warfare in his town between the board and the council. Joseph J. Dolphin, of Olyphant, reported that a similar condition of affairs existed in his borough. Sylvanus Smith, of the Blakely board, in commenting on the sanitary condition of Olyphant, said that he had occasion to pass through the place every morning on his way to work and after inhaling the fresh and wholesome air of Blakely, he could scarcely bear the stench that exists in the central part of Olyphant, where the Huns and others of careless habits and bad sentiments. All this, it was claimed, resulted from health authorities being handicapped by indifferent councilmen.

Dr. Lee remarked that, generally speaking, borough councilmen are ignorant men who do not rise to the necessity of proper sanitation and who have no appreciation of the work that a board of health can do for a town. Being appealed to for a remedy to overcome the existing difficulty Dr. Lee advised that the law be reported to.

MARRIAGES OF ONE DAY

Miss E. Lena Minich Wedded to John U. Wagner at Bride's Home.

WEDDING AT THE CATHEDRAL

Miss Mazie G. Leonard Became the Bride of John H. Jordan, of the Truth. An Afternoon Wedding at Green Ridge.

John U. Wagner and Miss E. Lena Minich were married last evening at the home of the bride on Mulberry street at 8 o'clock. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Anna Dreischer. The groom was Joseph A. Wagner, brother of the bride. The bride wore a gown of satin, with duchess lace and pearl trimmings, and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a pink silk. A reception following the ceremony was given at the home of the bride. The bride and groom left for a wedding tour which will include a visit to Philadelphia, Washington and other points. The bride is a teacher in the Colliery Engineer School of Mines, and his bride is a most charming young lady.

SANG IN FINE VOICE

Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir Pleas'd a Large Audience at Frothingham.

An appreciative audience which filled the commodious Frothingham theater last evening greeted the Royal Welsh Ladies' choir, which sang in a most pleasing manner which re-emphasized American discernment and hospitality. Nearly every number on a programme of considerable length was enthusiastically received, and at times the audience's enthusiasm was not satisfied with one recall. There was unmistakable cordiality in the welcome vouchsafed to the choir by the visiting of the curtain first brought singers and auditors face to face. This was intensified as the choir recognized the popular conductor, latter recognized the popular conductor, latter recognized the popular conductor, latter recognized the popular conductor.

There was a simple but impressive morning wedding at the cathedral yesterday. At 11 o'clock John H. Jordan, of the Truth, and Miss Mazie G. Leonard, a pretty and accomplished young lady of this city, attended by Miss Jose Leonard, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Miss Marie G. Leonard, of the Truth, as bridesmaid, were united in matrimony. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. J. McLaughlin, pastor of St. Peter's cathedral, and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

ONE THRIVING BUSINESS.

Some Facts About the Progressive Seranton Bedding Company.

It has truthfully been said that the Seranton of today possesses more than the usual variety of business enterprises contained in other cities of the same class. This comment might suggest inquiry about Seranton's new and thriving industry, and in this connection the Seranton Bedding company and its increasing business cannot be overlooked. The company began at the corner of Lackawanna and Adams avenues, when it was a small business, and has since expanded its operations to make the building four stories high instead of three and to build an addition from the ground to the roof along the western side of the structure.

Today the four stories and basement are teeming with activity necessary to a trade that has extended to nearly all parts of eastern Pennsylvania. The mere phrase "Bedding company" does not convey the real meaning of the entire business of the company, which upholds the furniture, carpets, non-ovate feathers, makes over old mattresses and sells new ones, makes and repairs springs, sells iron beds, and, in fact, deals in every possible way in the bedding business.

The company includes such well-known Seranton men as Dr. N. Y. Leet, Conrad Schroeder, P. R. Finley, H. Kingsbury, S. G. Korr and L. J. Slesinger. They are progressive men, who have seen to it that the plant is equipped with the best and most complete appliances for performing the work peculiar to the business. The building, which contains factory, office and all working departments, is a substantial structure, and does credit to busy Lackawanna avenue, on which it is situated.

THE OCTAVE REDAL.

Exhibition of Possibilities Given at Guernsey's Music Store.

W. L. Gebhart and Professor Wittich, retained charge master of visitors at J. W. Guernsey's music store on Washington avenue yesterday in giving exhibitions of the various effects that can be produced on the A. B. Chase piano by means of a new attachment known as the Octave pedal.

By this additional feature of usefulness a variety of tones can be produced that almost seem incredible. The octave pedal, which is the invention of a western musician, is a step towards perfection that may revolutionize the piano-making business, opening as it does the door to unlimited possibilities.

INQUIRING FOR ODELL.

Evidence of Former Crimes Being Piled Up Against the Youthful Forger.

Chief of Police Simpson yesterday received indisputable evidence of the correctness of his theory that Forger Frank Odell, alias Baird, is old in criminal ways. He is now in the city, and a letter later in the day, from Chief of Police Russell, of Tully, N. Y., asking for particulars concerning Baird. The letter stated that a Frank Baird had passed a forged check for $45 on a clothier from whom he purchased a $25 overcoat. He escaped with the coat, and the $25 change. The Baird, as Chief Russell described him, tallies with Odell, now in custody here.

Another letter was received from Norfolk, Va., stating that a young man answering Odell's description had wanted there for forgery, having worked the same game there that caused his arrest here. Chief Simpson is now compiling descriptions of a man, whom Chief Simpson believes to be Odell, worked merchants in Athens and Sayre a few weeks ago by the same game that he is now using here. The chief will investigate to prove the truth or incorrectness of his belief.
