WEST SIDE EVENTS.

Rev. Dr. A. L. Ramer, LL. D., pastor of the Fourteenth Street Lutheran church, and Miss Kate Kress, of Allentown, were married Thursday evening in Michael's Lutheran church, at Al-lentown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. S. Smoll, bride and groom standing under a canopy of green and flowers. The ushers were Professor J. Richmond Markel, of Muhlenburg, Col.; Richmond Markel, of Muhlenburg, Col.; Rev. W. H. Eddleman, of Royersford. S. C., and Loos and George Kercher, of Mount Airy Theological seminary. The bride was unattended and wore a cos-tume of white corded silk with pearl trimmings. Mrs. Cora Derr acted as maid of honor. She wore white silk with pink organdies. A reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. Ramer at the close of the service. They arrived in close of the service. They arrived in this city yesterday morning. New Church Will Be Erected for the Congregation of St. John's Catholic Church-Mr. Nordt Expected Here.

The congregation of St. John's church of this side will, in the near future, be called upon to undertake the erection of a new edifice. When the building that is now in use for a church was built it was not planned for anything built it was not planned for anything more than temporary quarters, and was so laid out as to be readily converted into a school building. Rev. E. J. Melley, the pastor, intends to make preparations soon for the erection of a new church that not only will be commodius enough for the growing needs of the parish, but will be an ornament second to none in architectural design of any n the diocese.

The edifice will be built on the two lots on the corner of Pittston avenue and Fig street. During the recent mis-sion given by the Paulist fathers, the necessity of a new church was very ap-parent. It is understood that Rev. Father Melley will not postpone action on this matter very much longer.

mall Audience Greatly Pleased by Creston Clarke's Brilliant Acting. Asmall audience enjoyed a treat at the Academy of Music last night in Cresion Clarke's portrayal of "The Fool's Revenge." Mr. Clarke's father is John Sleeper Clarke, the English comedian who was seen in this city some years ago as Dr. Panglass in "The Heir at Law." and his mother was Edwin Booth's sister. That he has inherited much of the talent for the stage the Clarke and Booth families have for generations been famed for was demonstrated last night by his splendid work Asmall audience enjoyed a treat at the strated last night by his splendid work as the duke's fool.

He is still a young man and his greatest fault is a tendency to declaim too much. Carried away by the exuberance of feeling the young actor is prope to paint a grief too deep a tint or carry passion to a more lofty pinnacle than it merits. These are the faults that were nost pronounced in Mr. Clarke's work ast evening

He showed true dramatic instinct and gives certain promise of one day rank-ing among the very foremost of tragic and emotional actors on the American stage. He received excellent support from Frederick Vroom, William Owen and Adelaide Prince, By the latter the role of the fool's daughter was most acceptably treated.

The remainder of the company was very ordinary.

A spectacular version of "Faust" was given by Joseph Callahan and company at the Frothingham last night. Mr. Callahan, for a long time, acted as understudy for Lewis Morrison and the "Faust" that he gave las: night is an almost exact counterpart of that with which Mr. Morrison has for years been identified.

Nowhere is this more apparent than in the character of Mephisto, which Mr. Callahan essays. His conception of the role is the same, but his voice and face are less expressive than Mr. Morrison's and much of the fine sarcasm with which Mephisto's lines are liberal-ly sprinkled, is lost as the words fall from Mr. Callahan's lips. He cannot. from Mr. Callahan's lips. He cannot, in any way be said to be an improvement on his mode!

MINE LAW INTERPRETED

Decision of Supreme Court with Regard to the Act of 1891.

IT IS A LUZERNE COUNTY CASE

Verdict Obtained Against the Kingston Coal Company in the Common Pleas Court Stricken Off, but It Stands Against the Mine Foreman.

An opinion of great interest to mine owners was handed down by the su-preme court in the case of Durkin against the Kingston Coal company, an appeal from the common pleas of Lugerne county. It is a formal to the common pleas of an appeal from the common pleas of Luzerne county. It is of particular in-terest from the fact that it is one of the first cases tried under the law of 1891. On the trial before Judge Lynch a verdict of $700 was given to the plaintiff for the loss of the services of his son, who was killed in the mines by rea-son of the floor of a gangway giving way and precipitating him to the gang-way below.

The supreme court directs that this redict be stricken off so far as the Kingston Coal company is concerned, but allows it to stand as far as it relates to foreman William Jones. The case was tried under the act of 1891, which makes mine owners re-sponsible in damages for accidents that result from carelessness or inefficiency of employes. The supreme court ques-tions the constitutionality of part of that act, principally for the reason that that act, principally for the reason that before a mine foreman or miner can enter a mine he must have a certificate of competency granted by the state. Thus the employe's ability is vouched for by the state and the mine owner is relieved of responsibility.

What the Opinion Says. The opinion in this case goes at length into the discussion of this contention and gives a full history of the acts which require certificates of competency. The opinion continues:

acts which require certificates of competency. The opinion continues:

It has been long settled that a mining boss or foreman is a fellow servant with the other employes of the same master engaged in a common business, and that the master is not liable for an injury caused by the negligence of such mining boss. The duty of the mine owner is to employ competent bosses or foremen to direct his operations. When he does this he discharges the full measure of his duty to his employes and he is not liable for an injury arising from the negligence of the foreman.

Now the act of 1891 undertakes to reverse the settled law upon this subject and declare that the employer shall be responsible for an injury to an employe resulting from the negligence of a fellow workman. Prior to the act of 1891 the man whose nestigence caused the injury was alone liable to respond in damages. He might not always have property out of which a judgment could be collected, but the plainiff must in any case take his chances of the solvency of the defendant against whom his cause of action lies.

The act of 1891 undertakes to furnish a responsible defendant for the injured person to pursue. Plassing over the head of the fellow servant at whose hands the injury was received it fastens on the owner of the property on which the accident happened, and declares him to be the guilty person on whose head the consequences of the accident shall fall. To see the true character of this legislation we must keep both lines of objection in mind.

The Cause of the Injury.

We must remember that the injury

The Cause of the Injury.

The Cause of the Injury.

We must remember that the injury complained of is due to the negligence of a fellow workman for which the master is responsible neither in law nor morals. We must also remember that this fellow workman has been designated by the state, his duties defined and his powers conferred by statute, and his employment made compulsory under heavy penalties, by the same statute.

Finally we must remember that it is the negligence of this fellow servant whose competency the state has certified, and whose employment the state has compelled, for which the employer is made liable. We have no doubt that so much, at least, of section 8 of article 17 of the act of 1801 imposes liability on the mine owner for the failure of the foreman to comply with the provisions of the act which compels his employment and defines his duties is unconstitutional and void.

This disposes of this appeal so far as the kingston Coal command.

pels his employment and defines his duties is unconstitutional and void.

This disposes of this appeal so far as the Kingston Coal company is concerned. But why should the certified mine foreman be releved from the consequences of his negligence? The Jury have found that the injury was due to his want of attention to his proper duties, and his liability is clear without regard to our mining laws. But the statute required him to examine the roads and ways in use in the mine each day.

He knew the film of rock separating the upper from the lower working was but eight feet thick at best. He knew that the supports for this film were not in line with each other in the upper and lower workings. He knew that layers of the rock were falling off, that the thickness of the floor was reduced under the way on which the accident occurred to about five feet, and that not far away it had fallen down into the lower workins; yet with all this knowledge he did nothins, so far as we can learn, to increase the security of the way.

Was a Neglect of Daty.

we can learn, to increase the security of the way.

Was a Negloct of Duty.

Whether his conduct be considered with reference to the statute, or regardless of it, his fealure to do waxt he must have known to be necessary, was a neglect of duty such as should render him liable to his fellow servant, who has suffered from it. Some difficulty has been suggested, growing out of the pleadings, but the declaration is not before us. We can not determine, therefore, whether an amendment is necessary in order to sustain the judgment against him. We are not prepared to hold the act of 1891 to be unconstitutional as a whole. It relates to all anthracite coal mines and defines what shall be regarded as such mines.

Coal may be taken out of the ground by farm owners for their own use, or it may be taken in such small quantities and for such local purposes as to make the application of the mining laws to the experations so conducted not only unnecessary, but burdensome to the extent of absolute probibition. Such limited or inciplent operations are not within the mischief, to remedy which the mining laws were devised. They are ordinarily conducted for purposes of exploration or for family supply, and ought not to be classed with operations conducted for the supply of the public. The business of coal mining, like that of insurance or banking, may be defined by the legislature. The definition found in the act of 1891 seems to us reasonable, to be within the fair limits of a legislative definition, and to exclude only such operations as are too small to make the general regulations provided by the act applicable to them.

The ground on which we place our judgment is not therefore that the act is local, but that the provisions of it which we have considered are in violation of the bill of rights. The judgment against Kingston Coal company is reversed for reasons that are fatal to a recovery against it. The judgment against William Jones is affirmed.

President Wilbur, accompanied by the directors and the principal officers of the Lehigh Valley railroad, are on a three days' inspection trip over the company's lines. While it is the intention of the officials to take in the entire system as they go along, the main purpose of the trip is to inspect the New York end, where considerable new work has been done and where more is in contemplation. It has been decided to build an extension from Tonawanda to Depew. This will give the Lehigh Valley its own tracks to the Suspension bridge and thereby avoid the necessity of using those of the New York Central. Contracts for this work will shortly be awarded.

Editor of The Tribune.

Sir: The Tribune of Thursday, Oct. 17, contained an article headed "Mr. Holt is under Bail, charged with embezzing funds of the Loma Vista Aid association, his version of the affair." I write the following in vindication of several gentlemen who have been drawn into this filthy severage, yet who are entirely innocent of any connection as directors or officials of said association to wit: Dr. D. B. Hand, Charles Weichel, Arthur Frothingham and E. B. Worden. I entirely exculpate those gentlemen.

In conclusion permit me to say that the true cause of my resignation from the Loma Vista Aid association, and the origin of all trouble, was because the people were not paid promptly as they should have been—this last fact is the whole story in a nutshell.
