In history alongside those of Sir Walter Scott, Lord Lytton, Thackeray and Dickens. And the field thus entered will soon be explored with even larger and better results.

We take pleasure in announcing the appearance, beginning early next month, of a new series of stories better than any yet printed.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Free Press, must be mistaken when it predicts that may be Burke's petard will get tramping down both Herring and Colquitt.

Do We Need More Land?

Chicago's Union League club was recently the forum of an interesting and instructive debate concerning the question, "Should the policy of the United States be to extend its dominion?"

Not every extension of territory is wise any more than it is prudent to buy things in sight without respect to our necessities or profit.

Political Gossip.

A. H. Lewis, an observant Washington correspondent, combines this opinion to the effect: "The situation is what it is."

Comment of the Press.

The Issue in New York. New York Evening Post: "What is 'Revolutions' in fact? Simply this: Here are laws which forbid the sale of liquor on Sunday."

Stand Up for Principle.

Chicago Times-Herald: "It has always been supposed that the Republican party stood for law and order."

Campaign Money Often Wasted.

Chicago Times-Herald: "As for campaign money, it is not so much as it is made out to be."

Final Speaker, Congressman Mason.

resembled certain contemporary opera in that the gem of his address lay in the overture.

Philadelphia Times: "There is every reason to believe that there are no irreconcilable differences between Governor Hastings and Senator Quay."

A Joke on Senator Quay.

Eugene Field, in the Chicago Record: "Matt Quay seems to have gone before the public on some such platform as that piloted by the Irishman when he said: 'For honor's sake we must stand aside and let the more factious fight out their battle to their hearts' content.'"

It Needs Fortifying.

Washington Star: "If the Monroe doctrine is to stand at all, the time is rapidly approaching when it must be put on a firm foundation."

Has Enemies to Spare.

Cleveland World: "If President Cleveland is still loved for the enemies he has made, he has won the affection of the American people as no other president ever did."

Trust Not the Wild Report.

Washington Post: "The man who places his trust in a flying rumor frequently gets lifted off his feet."

TOLD BY THE STARS.

Daily Horoscope Drawn by Ajaxchus, The Tribune Astrologer. Astrologic cast: 3:11 a. m., for Tuesday, Oct. 22, 1895.
