THE SECOND DAY.

The Teachers Hear Some Very Interesting Addresses.

The teachers began the second day's institute yesterday, and a large audience composed of many outsiders anxious to hear the instructive addresses, as well as the teachers, were present. The morning sesion opened with devo-tional exercises and music, after which Superintendent J. M. Coughlin, of the Superintendent J. M. Coughlin, of the city schools, delivered a pleasing but brief address. Every child raised in this community, he said, should have an education, and fortunately for them every one who makes the effort can obtain one. A liberal education a few years ago meant but little, but in these days a diligent student finds it hard work to achieve success along the line he has laid down, but persistency wins in the end. In these later days we must discriminate, we must determine what constituets a good education, and must discriminate, we must determine what constituets a good education, and work toward that end. I want to emphasize the word get. You cannot give a child education, he must get it. No teacher can succeed in her work until she can bring her school in a proper state of mind. The speaker conveyed the idea, that many children went to school with the expectation of being taucht, when they should attend with taught, when they should attend with the intention to learn. Mr. Coughlin's address was delivered in that enthusiastic vein, which always makes him interesting and he was warmly received this morning.

The next address by Dr. Andrew S. Draper, president of University of Illinois, Champaign, Ill., on "A Glimpse linois, Champaign, Ill., on "A Glimpse of the World's Educational Progress" was listened to with deep interest. The speaker described fully what education is. He gave illustrations of men who were successful and who could not write their own names. The man who could dig out the most Greek roots was found unable sometimes to earn the money to buy his dinner. All great education progress was due to some cause, particularly to some great stirring up of the people. The birth of Christ was one of the greatest of these causes. The Chinese had a great educational system, but had made little cational system, but had made little progress educationally.

The talk throughout was largely on the cause and effect of educational sys-tems and was very instructive. Dr. J. P. Walsh was the last speaker of the morning session, and his subject was "Grammar." The talk was very interesting throughout, and many questions asked by the teachers were answered by Professor Walsh. He pointed out many incorrect expressions, and placed on the black board, fi sight of the audience, many expressions which are generally considered correct, but which are in direct violation of all rules of grammar.

In the afternoon Mr. Draper, who is rapidly becoming one of the favorites of the Institute, spoke on "The Be-ginning of the Public System." He said that the English and the Dutch are the influences that most largely deter-mine the character of the American in-

The idea has been too common that we have gotten all our systems from the English. The English first brought the colleg and Latin school to America, but the Durch were the first to bring the elementary school, support it at the public expense and open it to the children of all the people. The public schools have been changed in character as the suffrage has been broadter as the suffrage has been broad-ened and population advanced because t has become that a state based upon principles of universal suffrage t have the intelligence and solid must have the intelligence and solid character of the people for its foundation stone.

So schools have been planted within reach of every home on the soil of America, and both the English and Dutch ideas have been extended and united until we have a great free public school system basinning with the lie school system, beginning with the kindergarten and ending with the uni-versity, such as no other nation in the the kindergarten system of which Freeble, a German, was the author. The first Dutch school was opened in New York in 1627. It was supported then at the general expense.

The first English school founded in Massachusetts was Harvard university, in 1626. It was intended for young men who were preparing for the ministry, and was founded on the old English and Latin college plan. The English and Latin college plan. The change wrough in 250 years has been wonderful and beneficent, and a change for the better.

Dr. J. P. Walsh then gave another interesting talk on grammar, and, after singing, led by Professor Gibson, Miss Landes, of the Millersville Normal school, gave a most interesting address on "Mental Pictures." She is a fluent talker, and made a very fa-vorable impression in her only appearance during the institute.

She talked principally upon the use of the imagination in teaching reading The use of the imagination, she said. The use of the imagination, she said, is the best help the teacher can have in school, in stimulating the mental activities of the child. Her talk was profusely dilustrated with extracts from the best authors delivered in a most charming manner. Her elocu-tionary ability was well illustrated in her recitations, and thoroughly ap-preciated by the teachers.

Last evening, Russell H. Conwell, one of the best lecturers on the American platform, gave his excellent lec-ture on "The Silver Crown, or Born a King," to a large audience in (the Grand opera house.

. A New Church.

Rev. Father Jordan, formerly curate of St. Mary's church, of this city, but now pastor of a charge in Rendham, is about to erect a church endific-costing $17,000.

Divisions 12 and 18, Ancient Order of Höbermans, of this city, have already held meetings with a view to entering a contest for the purpose of raising a fund. Committees have been appointed to wait on Division I. Ancient Order of Hibernans, and that division will enlist itself in the worthy cause, and the contest will go with a boom. Rendham is a new panish; there are a num-ber of earnest people there, but they have scant means to build a church. It is a debt of gratitude the Ancient Order of Hibernians owe Jordan that will be paid, it is hoped with interest. The entire county of Lackawanna will come also to the as statance of Father Jordan and the church quickly built.

ARCHBALD.

The recent marked improvement in the coal trade has had a good effect on all the mines in this vicinity. Preparations are being made for the resumption of work at the Pierce Coal company's mine and the mines of the Deith Coal company and the Winter company's mine and the mines of the Dolph Coal company and the Winton Coal company are also about to re-sume. When these and the "Katydid" are in operation there will be few idle men in this neighborhood. For the accommodation of those who

T. F. Jordan, of Olyphant, was in town on Sunday.

The Citizen on Saturday poured hot lead into the borough council for paying granted to the Archbald Electric company right of way over all, except of our borough streets. The editor was particularly severe on President Lane, who, he said, opposed the ordinance at the council meeting and subsequently set the seal of his ap-proval on it by signing it. It is only justice to Mr. Lane to say that he and Mr. Jones were the only members of the council who voted against the or-dinance and the fact that his name appears on it does not prove that he has experienced a change of opinion with reference to it. Mr. Lane was simply doing his duty as president of the council in signing the ordinance. As to the Citizen's reference to the burgess, t was not a bit too severe. Any my ho shows such a lamentable lack backbone on occasions as our chief executive deserves all that can be said in condemnation of his official conduct. If he were to show a little more independence in dealing with matters of this character he would earn the re-spect of a larger percentage of the people and would save money to the borough besides. It was hardly nec-essary for the Citzen to say that the ordinance was "smuggled" into the columns of The Tribune purposely to cover the law. There was no smug-gling about it. The ordinance was given to The Tribune representative in broad daylight on the public streets and there was absolutely no restriction as to the space or position it sould oc-cupy. The advertisement was accepted purely as a matter of business fust in such a way as the Citizen itself would accept it if it were offered to its publisher for publication. MONTROSE

Tuesday, the second/day of the teachens' institute, dawned bright and beauday. At 9 o'clock the young women and men began to file in the school building, and the targe high school room was soon filled to overflowing with intelligent-looking teachers. After with intelligent-looking teachers. After singing by teachers, led by iMr. James, a prayer by Rev. M. Thomas, Professor Elson continued his talk from Monday on "History." This was intently listened to by all present, and proved interesting. His theme was the government, the life, style of dress and manners of the people of this country, after the close of the Revolutionary war. He dwell particularly men the war. He dwelt particularly upon the triais met with by the leading men of the time. After a short recess, Miss Patidge, in her charming manner save another fine instructing lesson upon language.
